

Catalina Plane Hits Boat; 2 Dead

By RUSS McDONALD
Staff Writer

A bizarre collision between a 19-foot runabout boat and a Catalina Airlines seaplane just outside the Avalon breakwater killed two Orange County men and damaged the plane Saturday.

The pilot of the plane, who feared the gash in his craft's hull would take in water, flew back to Long Beach Airport with his two passengers.

Killed were Robert Hill, 38, of 2806 Bayside Drive, Corona Del Mar, and Clarence Nurni, 45, of 2043 Westcliff Drive, Newport Beach, who were returning to Avalon after a scuba-diving expedition.

Avalon Sheriff's deputies recovered their bodies from their badly smashed but still-afloat vessel shortly after the 3:30 p.m. accident.

The two victims were approaching the Avalon harbor breakwater when the plane — going in the same direction — almost landed on top of them, deputies said.

The pilot, Capt. Jackson Hughes, 45, of Laguna Beach said he was making a normal landing outside the breakwater and didn't see the boat. He said he made a sharp right turn and heard the top of the boat hit the hull of his plane.

Hughes said he lifted his craft into the air, circled Avalon and returned to Long Beach.

The pilot of another aircraft told the Federal Aviation Administration in Los Angeles he saw the boat and plane collide when the boat suddenly rose atop a four-foot swell.

Investigators from the FAA and the National Transport Safety Board, dispatched immediately to investigate the accident, returned to the island Saturday night with Hughes.

A spokesman for the Catalina Airlines Division of Golden West Airlines, operators of the twin-engine Grumman "Goose" seaplane said the accident was the company's first in 16 years of operation.

"This incident occurred in an area that's normally reserved for seaplanes," said J.W. Letzkus, vice president of Golden West. But he believed the landing area outside the breakwater used by seaplanes is not marked.

"To my knowledge, they haven't marked it," he said. "The people on the island normally seem to be informed of it."

Bodies of the two dead men were taken to the Avalon Hospital morgue.

The couple who had chartered the seaplane caught another plane to Avalon after returning to Long Beach Airport.

By JACK O. BALDWIN

A $30-million project to expand the Port of Long Beach, largest such undertaking in the 59-year history of the harbor, will begin Wednesday.

"We never before have undertaken a project of this magnitude. It will be a boost to the economy of the entire city," said Robinson A. Reid, president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners.

"The project will develop an estimated $2.8 million annually in new port revenue," Reid predicts.

When completed in 1973 the project will result in the development of the largest facility currently committed to a single tenant of any port in the world.

PART OF the project calls for construction of a new container terminal for Sea-Land Services, Inc. The present 18-acre terminal used by the company on Pier J will be phased out and replaced by a new terminal more than six times larger.

More than 11 million cubic yards of channel bottom will be dredged to

Taiwan to Get 18 F-104 Jets

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The United States has agreed to provide the Chinese Nationalist government with a squadron of F-104 Starfighter jets from Air Force "excess stocks," while Congress wrangles over proposals to equip the Taiwan armed forces with the more advanced Phantom jet fighter bombers.

Administration officials confirmed that the decision to turn the squadron of 18 planes over to the Chinese Nationalist air force had been made but they said it might take several months before the planes were actually delivered.

They said the transfer was approved by the Defense Department shortly before last Nov. 30.

The Nationalist Chinese are to receive the Starfighters at no cost, except for packaging and handling, under the provisions of the military assistance program.

Odd Shod

Q. You once listed a place where amputees could exchange single shoes. I am an amputee in need of this service, and I would appreciate it if you would repeat this information. C.H.C., Long Beach.

A. The National Odd Shoe Exchange was founded to help people with problems like yours. The exchange will provide you with the names of others with matching sizes who would like to exchange shoes with you. This service is available to two-legged children and adults with different shoe sizes who must buy two pairs of shoes in order to get one pair of the correct sizes, and to amputees who only have need for one shoe, but must pay for two. You may register with the exchange by sending your name, address, and shoe sizes along with a $3 registration fee and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to The National Odd Shoe Exchange, 1415 Ocean Front Walk, Santa Monica, California, 90401.

Another Man's Bag

Q. Is there a place in Southern California where I might get a free balloon ride and possibly pilot training? H.J.M., Torrance.

A. You can go up, up and away with George Stokes, head of the International School of Free Ballooning, 17323 Santa Barbara St., Fountain Valley. Stokes said he has no set rate for short-hop sightseeing rides, and sometimes gives them free if he has to go up anyway. He is qualified to train balloon pilots for a Federal Aviation Administration license, charging $495 for orientation and training. Stokes, who holds two world records for distance and duration, usually flies his propane gas, hot-air balloons from open country near Perris. Stokes maintains the largest full-time balloonist school in Southern California, but numerous other balloonists sometimes give lessons. For their names and addresses, call the Van Nuys office of the FAA at 785-8624 or the Santa Monica office at 391-6701.

Q. I have an insurance policy with the National Liberty Life Insurance Co. of Valley Forge, Pa., which is to pay $100 a week if I'm hospitalized. I was in the hospital in September and filed all the necessary forms with the insurance company, but still have received no benefits. They don't give me any information when I call them. I'm still off work and need the money. Can ACTION LINE help? T.C.H., Lakewood.

A. ACTION LINE contacted Marida Eck, claims examiner for the company, who explained that they are waiting for information from one of your doctors. ## Biafra Falling as Nigeria Drives on Vital Airstrip LAGOS, Nigeria — A reliable military source said Saturday that hard-driving Nigerian federal troops were on the point of overrunning Uli airstrip, secessionist Biafra's sole link with the outside world, and that the Nigeria-Biafra civil war appeared to be at a climax — perhaps nearing its end.

The source said the vital crossroads town of Owerri had already fallen.

Diplomatic sources in Libreville, Gabon, reported that relief workers were streaming in from Uli. In Toronto, a spokesman for the Canadian relief, Canadian arm of the Joint Church Aid program, said operations at Uli had broken down completely.

He said only one JCA plane got in Saturday night, compared with the usual 12 to 16. The aircraft evacuated 100 JCA personnel on its return flight, he added, and they confirmed the fall of Owerri.

There was no official confirmation from Nigeria's federal government, which has been reticent recently about war news.

In Geneva, the Biafran news agency Markpress said that contrary to "widespread rumors," air service to Uli had not been interrupted.

Diplomats in Lagos were concerned about the fate of an estimated 500 to 1,000 Europeans and North Americans who might be trapped in Biafra if Uli fell. Most are working on relief operations.

Relief officials say most agencies have told their people to stay or get out at their own discretion.

Korean 'Massacre' of Viet Civilians Charged—Denied

HONOLULU — A report by an American anthropologist in Honolulu that he has evidence South Korean troops shot Vietnamese civilians at random was denied Saturday by a Korean military leader.

A. Terry Rambo, now a student here, says he came across evidence of atrocities in 1966 while heading a government-sponsored research project. He said that he took the information to the Defense Department in 1967 but nothing was done about it.

The spokesman for all Korean troops in Vietnam, Col. Kim Byung Kwon, said in Saigon that Rambo's account of alleged atrocities in Vietnam's Phu Yen province was false.

"From the first," said the colonel, all Republic of Korea troops serving in South Vietnam have stressed "separating the enemy from friendly civilians in the battle area."

"After the civilians were secured, ROK troops destroyed the enemy. But ROK troops did not commit massacres."

Rambo said he heard refugee accounts of numerous atrocities, all by South Korean marines, while he was conducting a government-sponsored refugee research project as an employee of Human Sciences Research Inc., in 1966.

VIET REDS FIRE SAMs AT B-52s

SAIGON (UPI) Sunday — Communist tacticians have moved deadly surface-to-air missiles into Laos for the first time in an attempt to protect their supply depots from U.S. warplanes, informed Allied military sources said today.

The sources said three SAMs were fired at a wave of American B-52 bombers two weeks ago from a key junction along the Ho Chi Minh Trail, a road used by the Communists to shuttle war supplies from North to South Vietnam. No hits were scored.

ACCORDING to Harbor Division Police Sgt. Jerry Leachman the living room and den of a home at 1211 Paseo del Mar cracked and tumbled into the fissure Saturday evening. A home at 1201 Paseo del Mar had its back room demolished and a third house, at 1207, was evacuated by the Larry Tenall family, police said.

Said Los Angeles Fire Chief Richard Ernest, who was on hand during the October slides: "This one has moved more quickly than the last one, but shows no potential of becoming a landslide."

The October slide was caused by twin earthquakes centered in a submerged fault in the Pacific about 90 miles north of here. It is not yet known what triggered the latest slippage.

SUICIDE

Andrew Turnbull, biographer of F. Scott Fitzgerald and Thomas Wolfe, committed suicide today at his home in Cambridge, Mass., his age was 48.

Turnbull had been in a "marked depression," according to his family, and had received psychiatric help. He was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in his automobile in his closed garage.

Surviving are his widow, the former Joanne Johnson; two daughters, Joanne T. and Frances L.; his mother, Mrs. Bayard Turnbull of Baltimore, and two sisters, Mrs. Jerome Kidder and Mrs. E. Sterett Pope.

Turnbull's biography "Thomas Wolfe" was published by Charles Scribner's Sons in 1968. Thomas Lask, in a review of the New York Times, said that Turnbull's "judicious, balanced and completely absorbing biography emphasizes that the life itself had the ring and pattern of fiction."

Turnbull's biography "Scott Fitzgerald" was published by Scribners in 1962, and he edited "The Letters of F. Scott Fitzgerald" for the same publisher in 1963.

For the last year, Turnbull had taught American literature at Brown University.

FOR A DAY

Texas Sen Criss Cole of Houston, blinded by a Japanese grenade on Tarawa in 1943, was sworn in Saturday as governor for a day before a packed Senate chamber in Austin.

Secretary of State Martin Dies Jr. administered the oath after first noting Cole's blindness and then saying, "But he has had more vision than anyone in this chamber today."

A governor for a day is designated in Texas when the governor and lieutenant Governor are out of the state at the same time.

$30-MILLION PROJECT Port Expansion Ready to Start

create 140 acres of new and much-needed land. The project will be a double benefit to the port. Not only will new land be created but sand taken from the channel bottoms will result in deeper fairways to accommodate the deep-draft super tankers and bulk carriers.

THE MAIN fairway extending from the Long Beach entrance in the federal breakwater to the Atlantic Richfield petroleum terminal at Berths 118 and 119 will be deepened to 62 feet. The deeper channel will permit the huge, deep-draft tankers hauling in crude oil to dock at the terminal.

The Southeast Basin, encompassed by Pier J, will be dredged to a depth of 55 feet to accommodate larger bulk, ore and grain carriers.

The multifaceted project officially will start Wednesday with opening of bids for the dredging contract.

Slurry from the dredging operation will be used to create two rectangular land masses. Larger of the two, a 100-acre parcel to be built along the east face of Pier G, will be used by Sea-Land.

The new pier will be capable of handling one super-sized container ship and two conventional-sized vessels. Containers will be on-and off-loaded utilizing eight towering gantry cranes.

WHEN FULLY developed Sea-Land will occupy a 120-acre facility, 100 acres of new land plus 20 acres of existing land on Pier J. Until a similar terminal scheduled to be built on the east coast the container terminal will be the largest in the world committed to a single tenant.

The second parcel of 40 acres will fill-in the corner of the south and west inside faces of Pier J. The new pier, to be identified as Pier Y, will be used to handle steel products, automobiles, and containers.

It will provide for simultaneous docking of two super ships or four of the present sized vessels.

The project is to be financed from the proceeds of the sale of $30 million in revenue bonds. The city council recently authorized the harbor department to issue $50 million in bonds.

LONG BEACH HARBOR — DOTTED LINES SHOW PLANNED LANDFILL OPERATIONS TO CREATE 140 ACRES OF BADLY NEEDED ROOM

Weatherman Sees More Rain Tonight

The weather, in the parlance of the poker player, Saturday pulled a stunt known as sandbagging, so don't be beguiled by Saturday's partly clear skies into planning a picnic or outdoor barbeque.

It was the lull before the storm, and storm it will, says the U.S. Weather Bureau, which predicts increasing cloudiness today, with rain spreading over the Southland by evening and continuing through Monday morning.

The most recent storm dumped .66 of an inch of water on the Long Beach area.

There will be little temperature change, with an overnight low of 59 and a high today of 64. Rain probability for today and tonight is 60 per cent.

The snow level in the mountains will be 7,000 feet.

LOOKING FOR DAMAGE

Antipollution Aid Subzero Weather Shift to Be Asked Abating

N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Nixon, according to informed sources, has about made up his mind to ask Congress to change the method by which the federal government helps states and municipalities meet the costs of controlling water pollution.

If the President requests the new legislation in a message on the environment that is expected to go to the hill in February, it will represent a victory for Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel.

HOWEVER, Hickel's proposed change in federal financing of waste treatment works is meeting intense opposition from the leading environmentalists in congress, and especially from Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., who is chairman of the public works subcommittee on air and water pollution.

Equally opposed are the United States Conference of Mayors and the National League of Cities. These two organizations, which have been aware for some time of the Hickel proposal, plan to issue a joint report next week registering their opposition. Chiefly on the ground that the Hickel plan would put tremendous pressure on the bond market, thereby hampering the ability of the cities to launch bond issues for their other needs.

Under the Clean Water Restoration Act of 1966, the federal government contributes from 30 to 55 per cent of the cost of a municipal waste treatment project.

HICKEL proposes that cities issue bonds for the total cost of the project. The cities would pay the interest charges; the federal government would make the principal payments. According to some sources, the Hickel plan would call for the federal government to make payments of $500 million a year for 20 years — a total of $10 billion. Other sources say he envisages payments of $500 million a year for 30 years — a total of $15 billion.

Hickel has passed the word to friends that White House officials have told him the President looks favorably on his plan.

The East and the Midwest thawed somewhat Saturday but the South continued feeling the effects of the savage winter cold siege which crossed most of the nation this week.

Meanwhile, a fresh mass of polar air edged southward into Montana and subzero readings were forecast east of the Continental Divide in Montana and Wyoming.

Oneida, Tenn., reported 14 below Saturday and the state counted 13 deaths at state counted 13 deaths at that began Tuesday. The string of subzero temperature was the longest continuous stretch recorded in Tennessee since a 1951 ice storm.

The thawing trend trailing the bitter cold may be too late for Florida farmers. The state's citrus commission will meet Monday to determine the extent of damage to the crop because of the cold.

Miami reported a record low of 35 for the date. The low of 5 at Columbia, S.C., was the lowest recorded there in any January.

Tug by Stricken Ship; Storm Looms

With a Long Beach-based tug standing by to begin towing operations, crewmen aboard the crippled tanker Connecticut continued pumping operations Saturday night under the threat of a new storm.

The 676-foot vessel, tossed by heavy seas Friday after flooding in the engine room left it dead in the water, encountered calmer weather Saturday, allowing crewmen to lower the water level below the floorplates.

But a Coast Guard spokesman said while flooding in the drive-shaft alley had been reduced to a trickle, pumping crews had not located the leak.

Two Navy salvage experts who had assisted crewmen with operations involving a half-dozen pumps brought by rescue helicopters, were replaced by Coast Guardsmen Saturday.

They will remain aboard with the 41-member crew, pending a decision by the tanker's skipper, Capt. Lee W. Ayers, on towing, the Coast Guard said.

The Coast Guardsmen are from the cutter Venturous, which dismissed other Navy and merchant vessels Saturday after high winds causing 15-foot swells abated.

But the Weather Bureau said a second, milder storm, off the Northern California coast, is moving southward, and should reach the Connecticut's location sometime today.

The Connecticut reported her position late Saturday as about 150 miles due west of Pt. Arguello.

The sea-going tug Pacific Mariner arrived early Saturday for towing and to furnish compressed air to operate pumps aboard the tanker.

The Connecticut, which sailed from Los Angeles Thursday for Yokohama, radioed her first distress call that night, reporting heavy flooding and all power lost in rolling seas whipped by 70-mile-per-hour winds.

Merchant and Navy vessels, including the carrier USS Hornet, sped to the tanker, and advance helicopters from the Venturous lowered pumps and gasoline to the ship's crewmen.

LOOKING FOR DAMAGE

A Catalina Airlines employee inspects the hull of the Grumman Goose seaplane that killed two men aboard a pleasure boat just outside the Avalon breakwater Saturday. The pilot, afraid the damaged underbelly of the plane would take on water, flew back to Long Beach Airport rather than land in the water off the island.

Antipollution Aid Subzero Weather Abating Shift to Be Asked

N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Nixon, according to informed sources, has about made up his mind to ask Congress to change the method by which the federal government helps states and municipalities meet the costs of controlling water pollution.

If the President requests the new legislation in a message on the environment that is expected to go to the hill in February, it will represent a victory for Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel.

HOWEVER, Hickel's proposed change in federal financing of waste treatment works is meeting intense opposition from the leading environmentalists in congress, and especially from Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., who is chairman of the public works subcommittee on air and water pollution.

Equally opposed are the United States Conference of Mayors and the National League of Cities. These two organizations, which have been aware for some time of the Hickel proposal, plan to issue a joint report next week registering their opposition. Chiefly on the ground that the Hickel plan would put tremendous pressure on the bond market, thereby hampering the ability of the cities to launch bond issues for their other needs.

Under the Clean Water Restoration Act of 1966, the federal government contributes from 30 to 55 per cent of the cost of a municipal waste treatment project.

HICKEL proposes that cities issue bonds for the total cost of the project. The cities would pay the interest charges; the federal government would make the principal payments. According to some sources, the Hickel plan would call for the federal government to make payments of $500 million a year for 20 years — a total of $10 billion. Other sources say he envisages payments of $500 million a year for 30 years — a total of $15 billion.

Hickel has passed the word to friends that White House officials have told him the President looks favorably on his plan.

The East and the Midwest thawed somewhat Saturday but the South continued feeling the effects of the savage winter cold siege which crossed most of the nation this week.

Meanwhile, a fresh mass of polar air edged southward into Montana and subzero readings were forecast east of the Continental Divide in Montana and Wyoming.

Oneida, Tenn., reported 14 below Saturday and the state counted 13 deaths at that began Tuesday. The string of subzero temperatures was the longest continuous stretch recorded in Tennessee since a 1951 ice storm.

The thawing trend trailing the bitter cold may be too late for Florida farmers. The state's citrus commission will meet Monday to determine the extent of damage to the crop because of the cold.

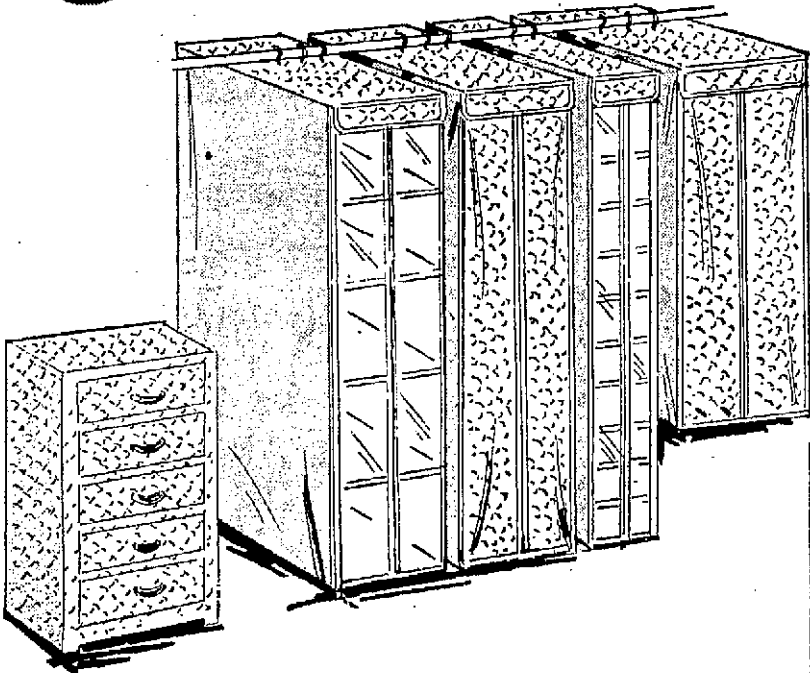

Miami reported a record low of 35 for the date. The low of 5 at Columbia, S.C., was the lowest recorded there in any January.

McCarthy Sees Hanoi Delegation

MOSCOW (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Eugene C. McCarthy, D-Minn., spent an hour with North Vietnamese diplomats Saturday asking if 32 missing American servicemen are alive or dead. He was told representatives of the men's families should go to Cairo for an answer.

McCarthy, acting on behalf of Carl McAfee, an attorney from Norton, Va., submitted all 32 names on a list brought to Moscow by McAfee and two other Americans.

McCarthy refused to comment on the meeting, but one of McAfee's companions, Charles Daniels, said the North Vietnamese promised they will give an answer soon on the fate of one of the men, U.S. Marine Capt. Gary Fors of Puyallup, Wash.

Fors' father, Henry, is the third member of the McAfee group.

After McCarthy's hour-long session with the North Vietnamese charge d'affaires, Daniel said "we really seem to be getting somewhere."

"They (the North Vietnamese) will definitely let us know about Henry's son and we were able to get the other names to the embassy," he said.

Reds Lose 61 Troops in Three Days

SAIGON, Sunday (UPI)—Allied troops supported by air strikes and artillery, killed 61 Communist soldiers in fighting around a bunker complex in the fourth major battle on the northern approaches to Saigon in three days, military spokesmen said today.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division supported by South Vietnamese civilian irregulars clashed twice with a Communist force Saturday around a bunker complex 58 miles northwest of here and nine miles from the Cambodian frontier, spokesmen said.

The battle brought to 259 the number of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops killed in four major clashes in the border region since Thursday. Total U.S. casualties were listed as two killed and 15 wounded.

REP. TUNNEY CLEANS SHOES AFTER WALK

CAMPAIGN BID

Tunney on Tour of Newport Bay

Congressman John V. Tunney, D-Riverside, Saturday opened his bid for the U.S. Senate with a tour of Orange County's environmental "trouble spots."

He called for "a balanced development" of the Upper Newport Bay, telling conversationists who hosted him on a muddy walk into the wilderness area that commercial use can "blend" with wildlife areas and adequate public access to the water.

TUNNEY LAUDED volunteer groups for their interest in preserving the natural habitat of marine life and birds who traditionally use the wilderness area as a sanctuary.

The two-term solon, who said his membership on the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee "merely extended" his interest in conservation, met with leaders of the Sierra Club, Friends of the Upper Newport Bay, and the Orange County Conservation Committee.

They — and dozens of admirers who happened by — accompanied him on a hike along the rain-muddied shores of the upper bay wilderness area.

More Spain Tours

MADRID (AP) — A record 21,678,494 tourists visited Spain in 1969, a 13 percent increase over 1968, Information-Tourist Minister Alfredo Sanchez Bella reported. He said the income from tourism last year was equivalent to $1.265 billion.

bay wilderness area.

HE NOTED THAT, when the upper bay dredging plan was first proposed a score of years ago, "the public was not aware of the crucial need to conserve this natural resource. The result was that no effort was made by citizens to inform their governmental officials of the public's needs."

Tunney paid tribute to the conservation groups, and individuals who are "personally in the fight for public awareness of the need to preserve wildlife areas."

He said he thought it was possible to "achieve a development that could satisfy all the demands made upon Upper Newport Bay."

Congressman Tunney also visited the Huntington Beach steam generating plant which the Edison Co. proposes to enlarge, then toured the south coast area and tramped over Salt Creek Beach, currently an issue because of limited public access.

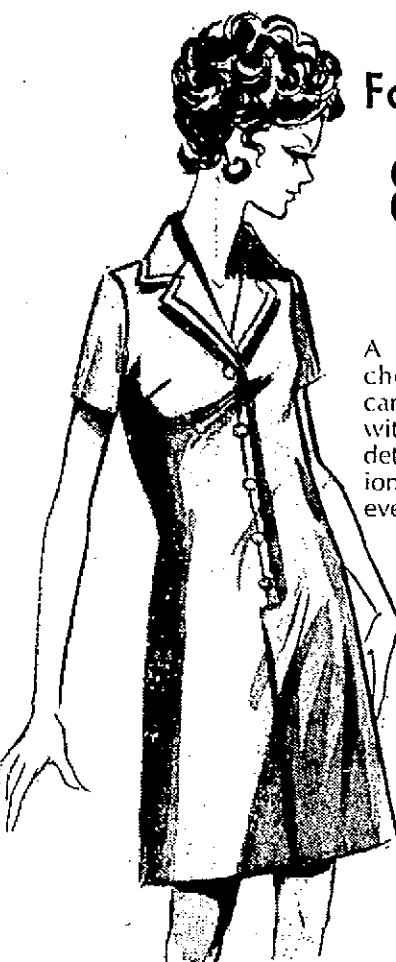

HE REMINDED that, of California's 1,057 miles of coastline, only 385 miles are beaches — and less than half of these are privately owned.

"Once given over to private development, they are lost to the public forever," he cautioned.

His visit to Orange County launched a statewide tour of "environmental trouble spots," which he said would end in Santa Barbara Jan. 28.

INSURED SATELLITE STAYS PUT

CAPE KENNEDY, (AP) — An attempt to launch a commercial communications satellite atop the first U.S. rocket ever insured against failure was thwarted at the last moment Saturday night when the engines of the Delta booster shut down after they ignited.

The towering 10-story tall rocket remained locked on its launch pad, apparently undamaged.

When the countdown reached zero, flames spurted briefly from the base of the rocket and quickly died. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the flames came from igniters intended to start the engine firing sequence.

The Communications Satellite Corp. has paid a premium of $872,000 to insure the Delta. If the four-stage rocket fails to place the Intelsat 3 satellite in proper stationary orbit over the Atlantic, the corporation would collect $4.37 million.

U.S. Can Build New Weapons

Arms Talks
Don't Restrict Development

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon apparently will be able to go ahead with major new weapons buildups in the near future without a holdback resulting from the current state of U.S.-Soviet arms talks.

U.S. government sources said Saturday that nothing in the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation talks, so far has committed either power to delay weapons development. Nor had any such curb been expected from the preliminary round of talks ended last month at Helsinki.

U.S. policy, they said, is to proceed with any weapons system deemed needed for national security until there is sufficient reason to believe a curb agreement covering that weapon will be reached with the Russians.

During the five weeks of discussions in Finland, they said, U.S. and Soviet negotiators reached agreement on a short "work program" listing strategic arms-curb questions to be considered in negotiating rounds starting in Vienna in April.

THEY SAID the work program agreement did not commit either nation to include a particular weapon in any disarmament deal that might result.

The issue of future U.S. strategic arms development came up last week in Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird's discussion of expanding the antiballistics missile system and developing new long-range submarine — and bomber-launched missiles.

Laird said the Soviets are deploying their big SS-9 nuclear strike rockets at a fast pace and that the National Security Council, headed by the President will weigh the Pentagon's proposals.

The Soviet forces newspaper Red Star promptly accused the Pentagon of pushing against the avowed U.S. desire to stem the super-power arms race.

U.S. officials rated the Moscow criticism as relatively mild, however, and they doubt that the Kremlin is surprised at Washington's new weapons plans.

Boss Hague Set Style for Mafia

cally took place in a state where Thomas Edison and Samuel Morse wrought electric marvels — were of conversations by such reputed Mafiosi as Anthony "Little Pussy" Russo, Anthony "Gyp" DeCarlo and Anthony "Tony Boy" Bolardo. Perhaps they were merely indulging in Mafia braggadocio. But the conversations mention a who's who of New Jersey political leaders, although neither the tapes nor the FBI makes clear who did what, if anything.

In one recorded conversation DeCarlo is quoted as saying to one Lucky Carl Silesia and others:

"Do you know what this Cappy, identified as former State Police Superintendent Dominick Capello, wants? ... $1,000 for Long Branch and $1,000 for Asbury."

Sil: "For each town?"

DeCarlo: "Yeah ..."

Sil: "Do you want to hear the rest of the story?"

June, July, August and September, he wants double."

DeCarlo: "Here's what I figure. Let's move all the offices into Long Branch and we'll just pay him for Long Branch."

Capello called the transcripts "ridiculous."

Another tape described David T. Wilentz as having protected gamblers in Middlesex County, an area that includes New Brunswick and which he has controlled politically for 30 years. Wilentz termed the conversations "a total fabrication."

Other tapes referred to "Hugie," Mayor Hugh Addonizio of Newark, who last month pleaded innocent to kickback conspiracy charges.

Outgoing Gov. Richard J. Hughes criticized the "dissemination of gossip and character assassination" that "indiscriminately victimized innocent persons." But no one was denying the Mob wasn't big business in one of the nation's most industrialized states.

Crime is nothing new in Jersey. The crime of the 1920s, the Hall-Mills murder, occurred in New Brunswick. Scarcely 15 miles away was the crime of the 1930s, the Lindbergh kidnapping.

NEW JERSEY took a charitable view to rascality as long as a century ago, when Big Jim Fisk fled the New York law one foggy night, crossing the Hudson in a rowboat with Jay Gould and the assets of the Erie Railroad to take up sumptuous sanctuaries in Parker's Hotel in Jersey City with the bottle, champagne and his lady, Josie Mansfield.

The potential of a happy marriage between civic dictatorship and organized misdeed never reached more glorious realization than during the 30-year reign of Jersey City's mayor, Frank "I am the Law" Hague who set a pattern other Jersey county bosses have followed but none has matched. Who could?

FRANK HAGUE
Founded an Empire

Hague ruled Jersey City and surrounding Hudson County with an iron fist, an outstretched palm and miraculous frugality. On an income of but $7,500 a year, over a seven-year period he managed to save enough to purchase real estate worth $392,910.50, including a mansion on the Jersey shore and a home in Florida.

TO FINANCE his favors, Hague demanded 3 per cent of the salary of every male employee — women were exempt — of the city and county. He kept it all in a bomb-proof safe in his office, which later was situated in the massive medical center he had built. Hague explained some people wouldn't want to be seen going to City Hall but anyone could say he was going to a hospital.

By controlling the city totally, Hague naturally controlled its vice. That meant gambling. He allowed no drugs or prostitution. Women even were forbidden to stand at bars. "Jersey City is the most moralist city in America," he once boasted in his characteristically tortured grammar.

On another occasion he pointed to an old pol and said: "That guy's more corrupter than me."

He also skimmed the cream off the gambling take. He never allowed the Mob — or as he called it, "the elements" — to darken Jersey City's door. His cops guarded every entry, often disguised as tramps, and if a suspicious character showed his face he was tossed aboard the next ferry back to New York.

Hague was accused of voting the dead and the insane to maintain his grip but this was probably overstated. He simply ran a tight ship, although with an eye for appearances.

Home Rule Keeps Jersey Politicians Safe From Public

One election in which his own second ward returned a unanimous vote for him, he growled: "Damn it! We have a two party system in this town. At least the Republican committeeman should have voted against me."

Hague's counterpart in Southern Jersey was Enoch L. "Nocky" Johnson who for 29 years ruled Atlantic County as county treasurer until going to prison in 1941 for tax evasion.

"WHEN I LIVED well, everyone lived well," said Nocky whose take from gambling, bootlegging and prostitution reportedly ran to over $500,000 a year. He toured the county in a chauffeur-driven $14,000 powder blue limousine and the night before he went to prison married a former showgirl and threw a party for 7,000 people that is still remembered. He died in 1968 supported at the end by his wife who had a job with a wine company.

The flamboyance of Hague and the Johnsons was their own, but the system that made them possible went deeply into the state's history just as their own autocracy set a pattern for county dictatorship after them.

"New Jersey never was a colony in a sense," said Dr. John Blydenbergh of Rutgers University's Eagleton Institute of Politics. "It was the place where people kicked out of the other colonies ended up."

They had no common ideas about government, no alliances by which to govern themselves. They settled into separate pockets to preserve their own cultural integrity and from that potpourri, by necessity, was born the doctrine of home rule.

Under it, the county has emerged as a dominant force in New Jersey politics, weakening the authority of the governor and attorney general, giving power to a nonelective county boss who, if he is corrupt, can provide an umbrella for organized crime.

"New Jersey has a corrupt senatorial courtesy system," said Ned J. Parsanian, a former state senator. "Under this practice I hold veto power over any appointments the governor might want to make. All I have to do is say, 'I find him personally objectionable.' Consider how this ties the hands of the governor. Consider what it means if as a state senator I am cozy with the organization."

As a rule county leaders in New Jersey hold no elective position so are not subject to public review. Frank S. "Hap" Farley, Johnson's successor in Atlantic County, is an exception. The so-called "Boss of the Boardwalk" is a state senator as well as county treasurer. They maintain themselves in power because of the wide number of county jobs they control.

'NOCKY' JOHNSON
Ruled 29 Years

"Thus they become strong," said a former high state official. The governor depends on them. In turn, in recent years, the underworld supported them with funds and the organizations came to depend on it.

COUNTY LEADERS are absolutely unresponsive to the public," said a former law enforcement official. "There's not been a time in the last 10 years that Middlesex wouldn't have put out Wilentz if there had been a secret ballot in the county organization."

Because the county prosecutor is appointive and subject to local approval, "the system is apt to come up with a pol who is not doing too well in law practice, who is responsible to county leaders and is apt to back down in a showdown. And a benevolent prosecutor is a most important asset for the Mob."

How the Mafia happened to settle in New Jersey is debated. Some say Prohibition brought them. New Jersey has a long coastline, ideal for running in hotbeds of booze by dark of night. One enterprising plan was to run a pipeline to shore from beyond the three-mile limit. That may explain why the late Mafia chieftain, Vito Genovese, ultimately settled in Atlantic Highlands, a community originally organized by the Methodist church but one which is on the highest point on the Atlantic Coast south of Maine and provided an admirable lookout for all the rumrunning ships at sea. Some blame the completion of the George Washington Bridge which provided easy access to New York and may have accounted for such baronial estates as Anthony "Tony Bender" Strollo's along the Palisades which featured a gold encrusted grand piano and gold fixtures in each of six bathrooms.

Ruggerio "Richie the Boot" Boiardo's estate in Livingston has a lifelike statue of each family member in the garden. Some say the Mob came, like Jim Fisk, fleeing New York's gangbusting Thomas E. Dewey. Anyway, they came. They found willing customers for numbers and bookmaking in the thickly populated cities of northern New Jersey where life had long been something of a gamble anyway. And they experienced, as any new industry in a new location that competition was fierce. It became deadly.

Dutch Schultz was gunned down while washing his hands in a Newark tavern rest room and died on the way to the ambulance murmuring, "mother, mother, mother." Willie Moretti had some opening day tickets for the World Series Oct. 4, 1951. He never made it. He was assassinated in a pizza parlor in Cliffside Park. The tickets were still in his pocket.

Abner "Longie" Zwillman, a former bootlegger whose Jewish origins and high gangland standing showed the Mob wasn't anti-Semitic, was found hanging in the basement of his elegant home in West Orange. It was ruled suicide although there was nothing nearby that he could have jumped from.

GAMBLERS FLOCKED to Mob gaming dens just over the bridge in Bergen County, driven by chauffeurs who had strict instructions not to speed or run lights and were known as the safest drivers in three states. In ornate surroundings the players could be shorn in comfortable barbers' chairs or at the tables. Until a massive investigation in the early 1950s broke up the action.

One indictment for pay-offs was against Harold John Adonis who had happened to have bought a $40,000 home in cash although he only earned $4,100 a year as executive clerk to then Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll.

That was nothing. In 1954 New Jersey learned that one of its most popular governors, Harold G. Hoffman, had embezzled $300,000 and juggled $16 million in state funds involving 68 bank deposits and 38 forgeries. It all came out in a posthumous letter to his daughter.

Home Rule Keeps Jersey Politicians Safe From Public

One election in which his own second ward returned a unanimous vote for him, he growled: "Damn it! We have a two party system in this town. At least the Republican committeeman should have voted against me."

Hague's counterpart in Southern Jersey was Enoch L. "Nocky" Johnson who for 29 years ruled Atlantic County as county treasurer until going to prison in 1941 for tax evasion.

"WHEN I LIVED well, everyone lived well," said Nocky whose take from gambling, bootlegging and prostitution reportedly ran to over $500,000 a year. He toured the county in a chauffeur-driven $14,000 powder blue limousine and the night before he went to prison married a former showgirl and threw a party for 7,000 people that is still remembered. He died in 1968 supported at the end by his wife who had a job with a wine company.

The flamboyance of Hague and the Johnsons was their own, but the system that made them possible went deeply into the state's history just as their own autocracy set a pattern for county dictatorship after them.

"New Jersey never was a colony in a sense," said Dr. John Blydenbergh of Rutgers University's Eagleton Institute of Politics. "It was the place where people kicked out of the other colonies ended up."

They had no common ideas about government, no alliances by which to govern themselves. They settled into separate pockets to preserve their own cultural integrity and from that potpourri, by necessity, was born the doctrine of home rule.

Under it, the county has emerged as a dominant force in New Jersey politics, weakening the authority of the governor and attorney general, giving power to a nonelective county boss who, if he is corrupt, can provide an umbrella for organized crime.

"New Jersey has a corrupt senatorial courtesy system," said Ned J. Parschian, a former state senator. "Under this practice I hold veto power over any appointments the governor might want to make. All I have to do is say, 'I find him personally objectionable.' Consider how this ties the hands of the governor. Consider what it means if as a state senator I am cozy with the organization."

"As a rule county leaders in New Jersey hold no elective position so are not subject to public review. Frank S. "Hap" Farley, Johnson's successor in Atlantic County, is an exception. The so-called "Boss of the Boardwalk" is a state senator as well as county treasurer. They maintain themselves in power because of the wide number of county jobs they control.

'NOCKY' JOHNSON

"Thus they become strong," said a former high state official. The governor depends on them. In turn, in recent years, the underworld supported them with funds and the organizations came to depend on it.

COUNTY LEADERS are absolutely unresponsive to the public," said a former law enforcement official. "There's not been a time in the last 10 years that Middlesex wouldn't have put out Wilentz if there had been a secret ballot in the county organization."

Because the county prosecutor is appointive and subject to local approval, "the system is apt to come up with a pol who is not doing too well in law practice, who is responsible to county leaders and is apt to back down in a showdown. And a benevolent prosecutor is a most important asset for the Mob."

How the Mafia happened to settle in New Jersey is debated. Some say Prohibition brought them. New Jersey has a long coastline, ideal for running in bottled booze by dark of night. One enterprising plan was to run a pipeline to shore from beyond the three-mile limit. That may explain why the late Mafia chieftain, Vito Genovese, ultimately settled in Atlantic Highlands, a community originally organized by the Methodist church but one which is on the highest point on the Atlantic Coast south of Maine and provided an admirable lookout for all the rumrunning ships at sea. Some blame the completion of the George Washington Bridge which provided easy access to New York and may have accounted for such baronial estates as Anthony "Tony Bender" Strololo's along the Palisades which featured a gold encrusted grand piano and gold fixtures in each of six bathrooms.

Ruggiero "Richie the Boot" Bolardo's estate in Livingston has a lifelike statue of each family member in the garden. Some say the Mob came, like Jim Fisk, fleeing New York's gangbusting Thomas E. Dewey. Anyway,

FBI TAPES TAKE VEIL OFF JERSEY

gen, the Mob branched out elsewhere, reportedly even striking it rich in the garbage hauling business as well as vending machine operations, a handy and sensible outlet for small change from numbers operations.

Zwillman had reportedly already gained a foothold in formerly Irish Hudson County by importing $300,000 cash carried in cigar boxes to help defeat Hagane's nephew and successor. The State Police, a crack outfit with a reputation as clean as the FBI's made gambling raids. But the state attorney general too often had to depend on what county prosecutors told him of gambling activities in their territories.

Said a former state official, "What brought things to a head was, one, an atmosphere of laxness in the early sixties. And then the FBI under Bobby Kennedy got into investigating organized crime despite J. Edgar Hoover's kicking and screaming. They were really professional and began getting a lot more detailed information."

In 1968 State Sen. Edwin Forsythe held hearings on law enforcement and mob connections. The hearings set the stage for a law permitting electronic eavesdropping and also brought charges that the state was being slandered.

THEN CAME William J. Brennan III, son of the Supreme Court Justice. He began looking into crime when he was appointed as an aide in the state attorney general's office. At a rather minor meeting of newsmen he said: "Organized crime in New Jersey manages to work its way into the corrupt almost every area of our society except the church."

"Does that include the legislature?" he was asked.

"There are three members of the legislature who are a little too comfortable with organized crime," he replied.

Brennan subsequently was shifted to other duty and a special legislative committee determined that nothing illegal had happened and criticized Brennan for making flimsy charges.

But then came the first FBI tapes last summer, implicating a broad range of Mafia activities centering around Simone "Sam the Plumber" De Cabalcante, a Princeton contractor, an alleged Mafia family chief who was indicted for extortion last December.

The latest tapes, released at the request of the defense of DeCarlo in his current trial for conspiracy-extortion, just added to the chagrin of the state, if not DeCarlo's lawyers who protested the public release of the tapes they had requested.

What with Sam the Plumber and Addonizio and DeCarlo and even Frank Sinatra, who is under subpoena if he ever returns to Jersey, his native state, it is hard for the average man on the boardwalk to know who's winning or even what the name of the game is. But reformers see all the row as a firm tool in the door for change.

Several hope it will mean the end of the appointive prosecutor, at the least.

"It is a partisan job," said John Graham, associate dean of the Rutgers law school in Newark. "They're going to have to get rid of it."

As for the county bosses, Brennan, now in private practice, felt their power "is waning precipitously. Five or 10 years from now the boss system as we now know it will be finished. There may still be a boss system, but it will be one responsive to the electorate. Rather than political bosses we will have political leaders."

Rydenbergh of Rutgers also saw the end of the glory road for the sachsims. "These people are literally dying off. There's a saying around here: 'Where there's death, there's hope.'"

gen, the Mob branched out elsewhere, reportedly even striking it rich in the garbage hauling business as well as vending machine operations, a handy and sensible outlet for small change from numbers operations.

Zwillman had reportedly already gained a foothold in formerly Irish Hudson County by importing $300,000 cash carried in cigar boxes to help defeat Hague's nephew and successor, The State Police, a crack outfit with a reputation as clean as the FBI's made gambling raids. But the state attorney general too often had to depend on what county prosecutors told him of gambling activities in their territories.

Said a former state official, "What brought things to a head was, one, an atmosphere of laxness in the early sixties. And then the FBI under Bobby Kennedy got into investigating organized crime despite J. Edgar Hoover's kicking and screaming. They were really professional and began getting a lot more detailed information."

In 1968 State Sen. Edwin Forsythe held hearings on law enforcement and mob connections. The hearings set the stage for a law permitting electronic eavesdropping and also brought charges that the state was being slandered.

THEN CAME William J. Brennan III, son of the Supreme Court Justice. He began looking into crime when he was appointed as an aide in the state attorney general's office. At a rather minor meeting of newsmen he said: "Organized crime in New Jersey manages to work its way into the corrupt almost every area of our society except the church."

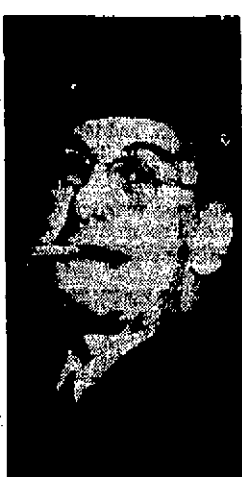

"Does that include the legislature?" he was asked.

"There are three members of the legislature who are a little too comfortable with organized crime," he replied.

Brennan subsequently was shifted to other duty and a special legislative committee determined that nothing illegal had happened and criticized Brennan for making flimsy charges.

But then came the first FBI tapes last summer, implicating a broad range of Mafia activities centering around Simone "Sam the Plumber" De Caballante, a Princeton contractor, an alleged Mafia family chief who was indicted for extortion last December.

The latest tapes, released at the request of the defense of DeCarlo in his current trial for conspiracy-extortion, just added to the chagrin of the state, if not DeCarlo's lawyers who protested the public release of the tapes they had requested.

What with Sam the Plumber and Addonizio and DeCarlo and even Frank Sinatra, who is under subpoena if he ever returns to Jersey, his native state, it is hard for the average man on the boardwalk to know who's winning or even what the name of the game is. But reformers see all the row as a firm foot in the door for change.

Several hope it will mean the end of the appointive prosecutor, at the least.

"It is a partisan job," said John Graham, associate dean of the Rutgers law school in Newark. "They're going to have to get rid of it."

As for the county bosses, Brennan, now in private practice, felt their power "is waning precipitously. Five or 10 years from now the boss system as we now know it will be finished. There may still be a boss system, but it will be one responsive to the electorate. Rather than political bosses we will have political leaders."

Blydenbergh of Rutgers also saw the end of the glory road for the satchems. "These people are literally dying off. There's a saying around here: 'Where there's death, there's hope.'"

Skin Condition May Be Clue to Cancer

By BEN ZINSER
Medical Editor

The appearance of the skin can sometimes be a clue to the presence of unsuspected internal cancer, a skin specialist said Friday in a medical lecture in Long Beach.

Dr. Ronald M. Reisner, chief of the dermatology division at Harbor General Hospital speaking to doctors at St. Mary's Hospital, said the skin clues may appear harmless.

For example, a "sudden shower of warts" appearing on the body of an adult is cause for concern, he said. Such a person, he explained, may have stomach cancer.

Dr. Reisner, who is also an associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, emphasized that persons who have a lot of warts shouldn't panic at the thought.

ON THE other hand, when a person who has never before had warts suddenly finds himself covered with many in a month or two, he should be examined by a physician, the doctor said.

Appearance of multiple skin lesions (alterations) of various types is also cause for physical examination, he continued. This condition, known as Gardner's syndrome, may indicate presence of multiple polyps in the large intestine — polyps which invariably will become malignant.

A dull red patch on the skin, which doesn't itch but may be crusty, may be a sign of Bowen's disease, Dr. Reisner continued. If such a skin sign does prove to be Bowen's, it means look farther.

The patch itself should be removed surgically, and then the doctor should start looking for internal cancer, Dr. Reisner said. One-fourth of all persons with Bowen's will have internal cancer.

Customarily, the cancer associated with this skin disorder will be found in one of three places — the respiratory tract, the genitourinary tract or the gastrointestinal tract.

IN ADDITION, other members of the family should be checked out. One study of 77 families in which Bowen's disease existed showed that one half of patients had members of their families in which internal cancer was found, the doctor reported.

Another skin disorder, acanthosis nigricans, may mean internal cancer, but age is a factor in whether the skin signs are highly significant, Dr. Reisner said.

Acanthosis nigricans is characterized by brown or black pigmented skin patches, often velvety in texture. It usually is observed on the neck or in various body skinfolds. If the disorder appears before the patient is 20 years old, it rarely indicates an association with malignancy.

But among those over 20, particularly those over 40, the ailment signifies that one-half will have an underlying malignant tumor, he said.

Ninety-five per cent of such tumors, if they exist, will be found in the abdominal cavity, he said, and 61 per cent of these will be in the stomach itself.

Kidnaped 16-Year-Old Girl Freed; 3 Arrested, 5 Charged in Case

Combined News Services

TEXARKANA, Tex. — Police say one of three men arrested in the kidnaping of a 16-year-old girl for $10,000 ransom apparently talked another of the trio into releasing her.

Karen Vickers, a high school junior, was released late Friday night. She had not been harmed. Vernon Vickers, her uncle said, 26, of Texarkana, Tex. — at $25,000 cash, each.

Stewart read the names of five men charged with kidnaping Karen Thursday from her home in Texarkana, Ark., and taking her to a motel in Texarkana, Tex.

She was released at the motel Friday night after 27 hours, unharmed and ransom uncollected.

In addition to Bryant, Peggett and Smith, John Tashy, 21, of Lafayette County, Ark., and Booker T. Burkhalter, 24, of Dallas, were charged with kidnaping by the FBI. Tashy and Burkhalter are still at large.

KAREN

"She's in fine shape, outside a little shock and exposure. She was treated very well."

KAREN said the men "never laid a hand on me to harm me. She said she 'prayed a lot hoping the lord would get me out of it and he did.'"

"One man told me he would kill me if it was his life or mine," Karen said. She said she believed him.

U.S. Commissioner Ned Stewart set bond for the three — Paul Lawrence Bryant, 21, and Joe Willie Peggett, 23, both of Dallas, and Hugh Malzac Smith,

Finch Says Nixon Plans Program to End Health Crisis

By AL EISELE
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON -- The Nixon Administration is preparing to launch "a massive program" this year to meet the critical national shortage of doctors and other trained medical personnel.

HEW Secretary Robert Finch said President Nixon will use his state of the union message Jan. 22 to discuss the program, which Finch said is a key part of an Administration effort to solve the nation's growing health care crisis.

"THE PRESIDENT will speak to this in his State of the Union message," Finch said in an interview Friday. "I don't want to detract from it, but we have a massive program underway now."

Finch said the health care problem has reached the point of crisis. "Starting with manpower because that's where the need is most acute."

He called the lack of doctors and other health care personnel "a shocking situation."

"The way we finance medical education is absolutely hypocritical — it's all research-oriented," he declared. He put the blame on the lack of national leadership from both political parties in recent years, the medical profession and the general public. "We've all been delinquent," he said.

Finch said that a number of proposals are being considered to alleviate the health manpower shortage, including:

—Having the government pay for a student's medical education in return for a commitment by the student to spend a specified period of time working in rural areas or big city ghettos.

—Modifying the role of the U.S. Public Health Service to provide medical and paramedical personnel in a federal program that would bypass individual state certification requirements.

—Extending to other parts of the country California's San Joaquin plan, a contractual agreement by the San Joaquin County Medical Association to administer a broad range of health care services for county citizens for a fixed amount of money from the government.

Finch said the latter idea might be expanded to a small state such as Vermont which might contract with the state medical association to provide comprehensive medical care of its citizens in return for a fixed remuneration based on the best actual projections.

Finch who said his "sense of urgency" about the health care crisis is "very much shared at the White House," cited "a severe problem of distribution" of medical personnel.

"The doctors are not in the rural backwaters, they're not in the ghettos — they're in the white Anglo Saxon suburbs where they can make the money," he said.

FINCH predicted that there will be an effort in Congress this year to pass a national health insurance program, and said such an effort will get strong support, "but not from the Administration."

He added that he thinks that even if Congress passes a national health insurance program, "we simply do not have the resources, particularly in the manpower field," to make the program work.

Asked if he supports the idea, Finch said, "We'll have to gear up to the point where within this decade, with a mix of both private coverage and government coverage it is attainable. But we don't want to make the mistake of moving so fast that we build up expectations and are not able to provide it."

Finch indicated that what is delaying a national health insurance plan is "not philosophy but practical problems of ability to deliver."

HE SAID AN "enormous educational job" to change peoples attitudes about health care as well as new techniques such as helicopter ambulances are other necessary factors in solving the health care crisis.

Finch, who took office almost one year ago today, also predicted that "eventually" his department, which is the second largest in the government, will have to be split into at least two separate departments of health and education.

San Jose Cuts Off Fall Registrations

SAN JOSE (UPI) -- San Jose State College announced Friday it had stopped accepting undergraduate applications for the fall quarter, just eight days after it began accepting them.

John C. Montgomery, director of admissions and records, said 6,700 junior and 3,500 freshman applications had been received. No sophomore applications were accepted, he said.

refugee soon. I know I'll need certain information for Social Security about my immigration, but don't know who to contact now that Ellis Island no longer is in operation. Can you tell me? D.E., Long Beach.

A. Ellis Island records dating to the 1870s are available from the Director of Immigration, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Federal Building, New York, N.Y., 10035. In your request for information, include your full name at time of entry, the name of your ship, the date it arrived in New York and the port of departure. If you don't know exactly, estimate. A Social Security spokesman said their requirements are not too rigid to accommodate for unavailable information. You might consider contacting the Social Security office first, and have them advise you on what you need from the Immigration office. They also can help you secure it.

Cars on the County?

Q. I have been in the used car business for a number of years, and recently have had customers on state aid wanting to buy a car. They say that the welfare department will make the payments for them. Is this true? V.W.B., Long Beach.

A. Not exactly, but some low-salaried workers eligible for supplementary welfare income may receive increased welfare benefits if it is determined that a car is necessary for their employment or training. In determining the amount of welfare allotment a worker may receive, allowances may be made for such expenses as transportation and child care. In the case of a working mother earning a small wage, for instance, an allowance of up to $50 a month can be made for the purchase of a car, according to a spokesman for the Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services Long Beach office. Never, however, does the county actually make car payments or have anything to do directly with a recipient's purchase of a car.

Biafra. The bulletin said Arochuku and two smaller towns were taken with heavy Biafran losses in men and weapons.

Federal losses were light, it added.

Third Marine Command Division troops have been within striking distance of Owerri since before Christmas and were reported awaiting two more brigades to link up before pushing on.

The Nigerian army captured Owerri once earlier in the war but lost it again. The last major town in Biafra, Owerri is regarded as an extremely important psychological objective.

Biafran units have been firmly resisting advances toward Uli on two fronts — above Nnewi to the north and below Oguta to the south, from Owerri, there is a third access.

Federal forces are advancing behind new Soviet 122mm artillery pieces with a 13-mile range. They were brought in recently and were believed destined to shell Uli as soon as troops were close enough.

"This is the first coordinated effective action in the history of this war," said one well-placed diplomat. "If this is not the end, it will be in a few days."

Other diplomats spoke of chaos reported in Biafra, quoting travelers reaching Libreville, Gabon. Radio Biafra continued broadcasting as usual, but giving little war news.

The war is now 30 months old and Biafra has been reduced from 30,000 square miles to 2,000 and has about 3 million to 4 million inhabitants, many of them starving.

the Koreans were shooting them," Rambo said of his research interview. The interviewers were mostly Vietnamese students.

He said, refugees from Phu Yen, about 250 miles northeast of Saigon, told the interviewers the Koreans shot some 200 men and women civilians at random, apparently in retaliation for sniper fire.

"I often accompanied ARVN troops but never saw any atrocities committed by them," he said of South Vietnam's Army of the Republic of Vietnam.

He said he heard of "isolated incidents" involving American troops but never found any evidence to back them up.

A. TERRY RAMBO
Lodged Charges in 1967

In Washington, a Defense Department spokesman said that Human Sciences Research, Inc., of McLean, Va., had undertaken a study of peasants for the department. He said the report "has not yet been rendered" and refused to elaborate.

Rambo said he had two American assistants on the refugee project, Jerry Tinker of Washington, D.C., and John Le Noir of New York City.

Le Noir was unavailable for comment.

Tinker, now a doctoral candidate at American University in Washington, confirmed Rambo's story and said the refugee report was printed by Human Sciences Research Inc., in July 1967.

He said Rambo later wrote a separate "memo" specifically on the alleged atrocities. He said that memo has been classified by the government.

"I've never seen Terry's final report," Tinker said Saturday night. He said a copy went to the Advanced Research Projects Agency of the Department of Defense.

"But by the time you get to the nether-nether land of the Pentagon I wouldn't be surprised if no one in that office who was there then even knows about it now," he said.

Tinker said he thought a copy was also given to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's, D-Mass., subcommittee on refugees, part of the Senate Judiciary Committee. "They were made aware of it at least six months ago," Tinker said. "As far as we know they (the atrocity reports) were true," said Tinker, 30. "We never did a judicial study."

"But the very fact that there was such a strong feeling led us to believe that this was something the military had better be told."

War Now Over for Hurt GIs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army and Air Force have changed policies so that service men seriously wounded in Vietnam no longer will be reassigned to combat zones, Rep Paul Rogers reported Saturday.

But the Florida Democrat said similar changes have not yet been made by the Navy and Marines. He said their policy also should be changed.

ROGERS said the turn-about came after four months of contact with the Defense Department and White House when the congressmen maintained men wounded in Vietnam shouldn't have to go back to combat zones in light of President Nixon's policy of withdrawing troops from the war zone.

"Right now, Air Force and Army personnel who have been hospitalized more than 30 days on off-shore hospitals after sustaining serious wounds will no longer be subject to reassignment to Vietnam," Rogers said in a statement announcing the change.

ASSERTING that the Navy and Marines have not changed their policy, Rogers said he plans to bring this "unbelievable discrepancy in policy" to the attention of Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird. "If this does not bring a unified policy I will take this matter to the President," he said.

Since we started this series, we have had many inquiries in reference to AP-PRASALS. Appraisals are probably the most difficult task a jeweler has and the most misleading item a person receives. The next few articles will try to clarify this perplexing problem of DIAMOND APPRAISALS.

If you have read our previous articles, you will recall, we briefly discussed DIAMOND GRADING SYSTEMS. To refresh your memory, we stated that there is NO recognized diamond grading system universally recognized by all jewelers. As a result, even among jewelers, they do not agree as to any one particular diamond because they do not use the same standard for grading.

If a diamond is not mounted, everyone can agree as to its weight. If a diamond is mounted, the only method to properly determine the weight of that diamond is to remove it from its mounting and place it on a diamond scale! Thus, even the easiest, most simple item of an appraisal, the exact weight of the diamond, is usually an approximation of the actual weight as most diamonds are mounted. The jeweler who estimates the weight of the diamond must use tools that do not allow for the exact cut of the diamond he must estimate the weight of. You may have a variation of 5, 10, 15 points or more in the actual weight of your diamond!

Thus, a 1/2 carat diamond mounted may be estimated at as 45 points, less than the permissible range of 47 points to over 50 points (1/2 carat-50 points; 100 points - 1 carat).

The jeweler has to remove the diamond to accurately weigh it. He will not do this unless specifically requested by the customer. Remember this, when you are seeking an appraisal. Otherwise, the weight will not be the same as what the jeweler who sold you the diamond stated. Our advice is simple: IF YOU HAD ENOUGH CONFIDENCE IN THE JEWELER TO BUY THE DIAMOND, THEN YOU CAN ASSUME THE WEIGHT OF THE DIAMOND IS THE SAME AS WHAT HE TOLD YOU!

No-Delay Rule Expected on Desegregation

Israelis Claim Two Arab Jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Re-summing a heavy schedule after a holiday recess, the Supreme Court is expected to order Monday the immediate desegregation of public schools that serve 300,000 white and black children in five Southern states.

The decision would again override the Nixon Administration's advice that school officials be given more time to end racially separate schools.

The justices' order is likely to be terse and unanimous, bypassing the hearings that usually precede such decisions. The court and Justice Hugo L. Black already have directed officials in the 14 districts to prepare for early desegregation.

THE DISTRICTS are in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi, ranging in size from mobile county, Ala., with about 73,500 students, down to Holly Springs, Miss., with 2,743, and West Feliciana Parish, Louisiana, with 2,419 pupils.

School officials in briefs submitted during a four-week recess that ends Monday, maintained they already are desegregating and that a change of plans midway in the school year would be disruptive.

Attorneys for one district, Jackson, Miss., which has about 40,000 students, said schools there might have to be closed for months to put new plans into effect.

The U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans ruled last month that desegregation of student bodies could be delayed until next September. The administration supported this ruling.

However, the administration suggested the court set a fall deadline for more than the 300 districts in the five states, and in Texas, that are not yet committed to desegregation.

State GOP Chiefs Map Strategy

MONTEREY (AP) — Continued control of the Legislature was the No. 1 priority as California Republican leaders met Saturday to begin mapping strategy for the 1970 election campaign.

Dennis Carpenter, state Republican chairman, said, "This is the most critical election year in a decade, at least as far as the Assembly and Senate are concerned."

THE IMPORTANCE of the legislative races is that the 1971 Legislature will reapportion lawmakers' district, including those of the California congressmen.

Carpenter, an attorney from Newport Beach, said that even President Nixon has a special interest in the California legislative races due to the reapportionment factor and the prospect that California will pick up several new congressional seats because of increased population.

The party in power has the upper hand in drawing new districts, based on new census figures. The GOP now controls the Assembly, 41-39, and the Senate 21-19.

"WE WANT TO expand that," Carpenter said in an interview.

"Most of our strategy is diverted in that direction," Carpenter also said he is confident of re-election for Republican Gov. Reagan. Saying Reagan has popular support "as strong as any governor that I know of."

tion plans. The 14 districts would be included.

THE COURT could hold a hearing to examine this suggestion but more likely is a decision ordering immediate desegregation along the lines of the court's Oct. 29 ruling in a Mississippi school case. The court told 30 school districts then that the time for "deliberate speed" had passed and they had to end their racially separate schools "at once."

School segregation is only one of several major issues ripe for settlement by the court.

Due for decisions soon are three major cases heard at the opening argument session last October.

The biggest is whether welfare recipients are entitled to be a formal hearing before their aid is suspended.

The two others concern Southern jury laws that limit jury service to the "upright" and "intelligent," and the long-delayed merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads.

Meanwhile, there are about a dozen major appeals to be argued.

These include a dispute over the ordered reapportionment of the entire Indiana legislature; a challenge to the power of draft boards to compel conscientious objectors to work in hospitals; and a test of the federal law that prevents government workers from participating in politics.

Claim Two Arab Jets

United Press International Israel said its American-made Hawk missiles shot down two Soviet built jets over the Gulf of Suez Saturday, raising to seven its claimed kills of Arab planes in a week of the most intensive aerial warfare since the 1967 Mideast war.

A Cairo spokesman said Egyptian fighter-bombers "completely destroyed" the Israeli Hawk base from which the ground-to-air missiles apparently were fired. But Egypt said all its planes returned safely to base.

Israeli military spokesmen said two Russian-made Sukhoi 7 jets attempting to raid Israeli positions in the Ras Sudar area on the Suez Gulf, 20 miles below the Suez Canal entrance, were blown apart by the U.S.-made Hawks.

"They exploded in the air and were seen to fall into the gulf," an Israeli spokesman said.

An Egyptian military spokesman quoted by Cairo radio said Egyptian planes raided the Ras Sadar area with the object "of destroying a Hawk rocket base."

No-Delay Rule Expected on Desegregation

Israelis Claim Two Arab Jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Resuming a heavy schedule after a holiday recess, the Supreme Court is expected to order Monday the immediate desegregation of public schools that serve 300,000 white and black children in five Southern states.

The decision would again override the Nixon Administration's advice that school officials be given more time to end racially separate schools.

The justices' order is likely to be terse and unanimous, bypassing the hearings that usually precede such decisions. The court and Justice Hugo L. Black already have directed officials in the 14 districts to prepare for early desegregation.

Cigarette Smoking Affects Larynxes

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI) — What Dr. Oscar Auerbach proved about the lungs of cigarette smokers he has now proved about their larynxes.

The heavier their smoking, the more the microscopic abnormal changes in the cells of the "voice box" or organ of speech which could be the earliest signs of cancer.

Auerbach's similar findings in the lungs of smokers are a substantial part of the evidence that cigarette smoking is a cause of lung cancer. These findings are borne out by a relatively large and rising death rate from lung cancer among smokers.

The death rate for larynx cancer among males has risen only slightly, however, from 1.6 deaths per 100,000 in 1930 to 2.3 deaths per 100,000 in 1967, and in females it has risen not at all.

The death rate is too small for statisticians to divide it among smokers and non-smokers.

AUERBACH studied with microscope thin slivers of larynxes taken from 942 men who died between 1961 and 1967 of causes other than cancer in the Veterans' Administration hospital in East Orange, N.J., where he is the senior medical investigator.

For each larynx he had the "smoking history" of its late owner as provided by relatives. He studied 7,768 larynx slices in all, and among them found suggestive cellular changes, particularly around the true vocal cord.

These changes, he reported to "Cancer," a journal of the American Cancer Society, "were highly related to smoking habits. They were much higher in cigarette smokers than in men who never smoked."

"They increased in proportion to the number of cigarettes smoked per day before death and were seen to a greater degree in cigarette smokers than in cigar and pipe smokers. Ex-cigarette smokers had fewer such changes than men who continued to smoke cigarettes up to the time of death."

HE FOUND actual and spreading cancer in seven of the 942 larynxes, in a stage too early to have been detected in life. Six of the seven men had been heavy cigarette smokers. The seventh smoked cigars.

Auerbach's larynx findings were "strikingly similar" to the results of his lung and wind-pipe studies, he commented.

"Perhaps the most significant change is the occurrence of cells with atypical nuclei which are infrequent in non-smokers, always found in cigarette smokers, and increase in number with amount of cigarette smoking."

Brain-Secreted Hormone to Be Tested for Many Uses

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Baylor college of medicine research team will inject into human beings within a few days the first purified and synthesized brain-secreted hormone in medical history.

Dr. Roger Guillemin, head of the team, said he and his colleagues want to see whether the hormone is useful in cretinism, birth control, dwarfism, thyroid diseases and possibly heart attacks, ulcers and other ailments.

"I'll be the first to get the stuff in my own veins," Guillemin said.

Animal tests required by the National Institute of Health have been completed.

A test tube containing a speck of the natural hormone was in Guillemin's hands as he talked.

The speck, officially two milligrams, represented a 10-year study, experiments on brains of 3 million sheep and the expenditure of $1 million.

The synthesized hormone can now be produced at $2 a gram.

The hormone, known as TRF (thyroid-stimulating-hormone releasing factor), is only one of an unknown number of hormones secreted by the hypothalamus, a marble-sized part of the brain involved in regulating emotions, blood pressure, appetite, thirst and water and salt metabolism.

TRF stimulates the pituitary gland to secrete a hormone that stimulates the thyroid gland to secrete thyroid hormone.

"All of the cells of the body require thyroid hormone with no exception," Guillemin said.

"The structure of the first hypothalamic hormone is already giving us fantastic leads about the possible structure of other hormones — particularly ovulation stimulating hormone."

Indonesia, Next Stop for Agnew

SINGAPORE — Vice President Spiro Agnew said Saturday, Americans "don't understand as well as they might what's actually going on in the Asian countries and what the American presence means."

"I can say that," he told several hundred Americans on the lawn of the U.S. embassy, "because I didn't understand it myself until I made this trip."

His comments came after he visited a bank officer's high-rise apartment and a U.S. firm's publishing plant.

Agnew wound up a two-day visit here, eighth stop on his 11-nation tour, by attending a dinner given by Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew after he played nine holes of golf with the prime minister in the afternoon.

In a dinner toast, he said the U.S. "will continue and even expand" maintenance and repair work on its vessels at the Sembawang shipyard, part of the former British naval base here.

AGNEW leaves this morning for the fabled Indonesian isle of Bali, where he will take a two-day breather from his busy schedule of official and ceremonial activities. The only meeting scheduled there is a session with Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik this afternoon.

Agnew's last two stops are Australia and New Zealand.

American sources with the vice presidential party, meanwhile, denied that Agnew's suggestion Friday of the possibility of U.S.

assistance to regional groupings such as the five-power effort in this region constituted any additional U.S. commitment in Asia.

Such assistance, these sources told reporters, is entirely consistent with the Nixon doctrine, adding that just because the U.S. give aid such as supplies does not mean it has a defense commitment.

The hormone, known as TRF (thyroid-stimulating-hormone releasing factor), is only one of an unknown number of hormones secreted by the hypothalamus, a marble-sized part of the brain involved in regulating emotions, blood pressure, appetite, thirst and water and salt metabolism.

TRF STIMULATES the pituitary gland to secrete a hormone that stimulates the thyroid gland to secrete thyroid hormone.

"All of the cells of the body require thyroid hormone with no exception," Guillemin said.

"The structure of the first hypothalamic hormone is already giving us fantastic leads about the possible structure of other hormones — particularly ovulation stimulating hormone."

Indonesia, Next Stop for Agnew

SINGAPORE — Vice President Spiro Agnew said Saturday, Americans "don't understand as well as they might what's actually going on in the Asian countries and what the American presence means."

"I can say that," he told several hundred Americans on the lawn of the U.S. embassy, "because I didn't understand it myself until I made this trip."

His comments came after he visited a bank officer's high-rise apartment and a U.S. firm's publishing plant.

Agnew wound up a two-day visit here, eighth stop on his 11-nation tour, by attending a dinner given by Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew after he played nine holes of golf with the prime minister in the afternoon.

In a dinner toast, he said the U.S. "will continue and even expand" maintenance and repair work on its vessels at the Sembawang shipyard, part of the former British naval base here.

AGNEW leaves this morning for the fabled Indonesian Isle of Bali, where he will take a two-day breather from his busy schedule of official and ceremonial activities.

The only meeting scheduled there is a session with Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik this afternoon.

Agnew's last two stops are Australia and New Zealand.

American sources with the vice presidential party, meanwhile, denied that Agnew's suggestion Friday of the possibility of U.S.

assistance to regional groupings such as the five-power effort in this region constituted any additional U.S. commitment in Asia.

Such assistance, these sources told reporters, is entirely consistent with the Nixon doctrine, adding that just because the U.S. give aid such as supplies does not mean it has a defense commitment.

Per-Pupil Spending Up 13%

WASHINGTON (AP) — A survey of more than 1,000 school districts shows the average school is spending 13 per cent more per pupil this year than last, but that inflation is absorbing much of the increase.

The survey discloses that the average school district this year is spending $582 per elementary pupil and $757 per secondary pupil whereas last year they spent $516 per elementary school pupil and $671 was budgeted for each secondary school pupil.

The current increase over last year is the steepest 12-month rise since 1957 according to the survey in 200 school districts. The new data was gathered by School Management Magazine, a monthly periodical primarily for school administrators, which annually surveys public school spending.

"In sum, the prospect for the current school year is gloomy," the publication reports. "Until inflation cools down, school district that increase spending will, in effect, simply be spinning their wheels."

EARL WILSON'S BROADWAY

Bacall Rehearses First Musical

NEW YORK — "But you're singing before," I said to Lauren Bacall who had come from rehearsing for her first musical, "Applause," and was sitting now at a candlelit table at Tavern on the Green sipping a highball.

"I have like hell!" Miss Bacall said. To interview her is a novelty. She had been chewing gum vigorously. "I chew gum to keep from smoking. Oh, I know it's ugly!" Her voice had a flourish in it.

"Oh, yes, I did sing in 'To Have and Have Not' and in 'The Big Sleep,' but that was all pre-recorded and not like being performed," she said.

"And you have danced before," I was needing her that she had done both before.

"My dear," she glared, "I have never danced professionally in my entire life."

"I studied ballet till I was 16 but physically I wasn't constructed for it. I could never stand on my toes because my second toe is bigger than my first." She laughed hoarsely. "There's a thrilling piece of information. Let's get off that subject."

"And you're going to sing, don't you?"

"MY DEAR, I'm going to sing, God help me. I've always been the most frustrated piano bench-sitter listener who wanted to sing. But I always had to get drunk to do it. But this is not singing in somebody's living room. This is on stage and I love it. I sing about 9 songs."

Her eight rings — four on one finger — "eight rings and only 10 fingers" — sparkled in the candlelight. She was very earnest. "You know, I have to try everything. I'm not a gambler with anything but my life. Taking a chance on your career, that's my idea of a actor gambling. We're put in a slot so early in life, we have to. I've never believed in playing that part of my life safe."

"I'm always nervous the first day, the first week, the first month. By the opening, I'll be a basket case."

"You know" — she was still on the first drink — "we're not having a proper opening night? Why should you work your tail off, then one of the critics has a stomachache? We have such a perfect company. Joe Kipness and Larry Kasha, the coproducer. Not one rat in the group. Usually there's one you're not sure of."

"IT'S A GAMBLE, but it's so much better than being in a movie that's a disaster and you pray 'Oh, God, I hope nobody sees that' and two weeks later it's on TV. How many've I done?" She counted. "Fifteen... I think I left one out somewhere."

"Obviously, you're too busy now to think of getting married again."

She gave me "That was a n't-worth-of-you-old boy" glower.

"There isn't a woman worth 1/2c who doesn't want to have a man. I've been married all my life. But you find me somebody. There just aren't any. I'm not desperate like I was when Bogie died."

Her son Steve Bogart is 20 and married, daughter Leslie is 17, and Sam was 8 last week.

"I have become much more possessive about my private life," she laughed. "I would like to have one. Why shouldn't I have a private drink with somebody? People see you and go 'Ho ho' but so much of it is innocent. I'm a very hokey lady. I'm very square. I'm not a playgirl. I love the Broadway lights that go with work but not the other kind."

WEEKEND WINDUP: Dyan Cannon asked what she'd wear in the film "Doctors' Wives," and the designer laughed, "Same old clothes you wore in the last scene in 'Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice' (in which she was in bed, nude)... Restaurateur Van Rapoport bought a sable coat, to go with his pink coat and broadtail dinner jacket... Brian Hutton, who directed "The Warriors," named his own company Hutton International Productions — so he can call it "the hip company"... Pres. Nixon named Tickeron head of Tom Moore to the American Revolution Bicentennial Committee.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Rodney Dangerfield grumbles that he gets no respect: "I gave an organ grinder a nickel — and his monkey gave it back to me."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: If it weren't for TV commercials, some women would never have time to do any housework.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "If you can give your son only one gift, let it be enthusiasm." — Bruce Barton.

EARL'S PEARLS: The dirt in the subways is at a minimum, thanks to the girls in their masks.

Singer Bobby Vinton insists he didn't mean to insult an annoying ring-sider: "All I did was tell him he could never be a donor in a brain transplant. That's earl, brother."

Film Star's Wife Exiled by Divorce

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Few persons' lives are as dramatically changed by divorce as the wives of motion picture stars.

One day they are beloved as part of the leading man's personal and public image. Where he goes she goes: parties, premieres, locations abroad, testimonial dinners, on television talk shows.

Mrs. Movie Star is a satellite, to be sure, but reckoned in her own right by virtue of her husband's surname.

The bigger the star, the greater the shock wave in divorce.

The blow is lessened if the wife happens to be an actress in her own right.

AND NOT A few Mrs. Movie Stars bury their pride, allowing their husbands to philander rather than face divorce.

But one divorce comes, Mrs. Movie Star dissolves socially. If there is a rich financial settlement she falls prey to young hustlers and remarriage.

"Finding Ernie" is described as a contemporary romantic adventure in which two young lovers are kept whirling in a round of involvements that take them from England to South America to New Guinea. And while Foreman is doing his adaptation of Collier's script, Collier will be doing his own adaptation — turning it into a novel.

BUT BEFORE Finding Ernie, Foreman will find Winnie. He has been scheduled by Columbia Pictures to direct "Young Winston," his screen-play about Winston Churchill.

Foreman to Direct 3 Films

By A. H. WEILER

N.Y. Times Service

Carl Foreman, the writer-producer, is preparing to have another go at directing. Foreman, an expatriate who has been operating out of London for the last few years, announced last week that he plans to produce, direct and adapt "Finding Ernie," an original script by John Collier.

Latest Mrs. Movie Star to find herself facing divorce is Jeanne Martin, the petite and beautiful blonde wife of Dino.

White she may harvest

$5 million or more, it is not quite the same thing as being Mrs. Dean Martin. The same may be said of Nancy Sinatra, who no longer is surrounded by the aura of her ex-husband.

The former Mrs. Burt Lancaster no longer is invited to the same functions that her husband attends.

EARL WILSON'S BROADWAY

Bacall Rehearses First Musical

NEW YORK — "But you've sung before," I said to Lauren Bacall who had come from rehearsing for her first musical, "Applause," and was sitting now at a candlelit table at Tavern on the Green sipping a highball.

"I have like hell!" Miss Bacall said. To interview her is a novel idea. She had been chewing gum vigorously. "I chew gum to keep from smoking. Oh, I know it's ugly!" Her voice had a flourish in it.

"Oh, yes, I did sing in 'To Have and Have Not' and in 'The Big Sleep,' but that was all pre-recorded and not like being performed," she said.

"And you have danced before." I was needing her that she had done both before.

"My dear," she glared, "I have never danced professionally in my entire life."

"I studied ballet till I was 16 but physically I wasn't constructed for it. I could never stand on my toes because my second toe is bigger than my first." She laughed hoarsely. "There's a thrilling piece of information. Let's get off that subject."

"And you're going to sing, not talk?"

"MY DEAR, I'm going to sing, God help me. I've always been the most frustrated piano bench-sitter listener who wanted to sing. But I always had to get drunk to do it. But this is not singing in somebody's living room. This is on stage and I love it. I sing about 9 songs."

Her eight rings — four on one finger — "eight rings and only 10 fingers" — sparkled in the candlelight. She was very earnest. "You know, I have to try everything. I'm not a gambler with anything but my life. Taking a chance on your career, that's my idea of a actor gambling. We're put in a slot so early in life, we have to. I've never believed in playing that part of my life safe."

"I'm always nervous the first day, the first week, the first month. By the opening, I'll be a basket case."

"You know" — she was still on the first drink — "we're not having a proper opening night? Why should you work your tail off, then one of the critics has a stomachache? We have such a perfect company. Joe Kipness and Larry Kasha, the coproducer. Not one rat in the group. Usually there's one you're not sure of."

"IT'S A GAMBLE, but it's so much better than being in a movie that's a disaster and you pray 'Oh, God, I hope nobody sees that' and two weeks later it's on TV. How many've I done?" She counted. "Fifteen. . . I think I left one out somewhere."

"Obviously, you're too busy now to think of getting married again."

She gave me "That was a n't-worthy-of-you-old boy" glower.

"There isn't a woman worth 1½c who doesn't want to have a man. I've been married all my life. But you find me somebody. There just aren't any. I'm not desperate like I was when Bogie died."

Her son Steve Bogart is 20 and married, daughter Leslie is 17, and Sam was 8 last week.

"I have become much more possessive about my private life," she laughed. "I would like to have one. Why shouldn't I have a private drink with somebody? People see you and go 'Ho Ho' but so much of it is innocent. I'm a very hokey lady. I'm very square. I'm not a playgirl. I love the Broadway lights that go with work but not the other kind."

WEEKEND WINDUP: Dyan Cannon asked what she'd wear in the film "Doctors' Wives," and the designer laughed, "Same old clothes you wore in the last scene in 'Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice'" (in which she was in bed, nude) . . . Restaurateur Van Rapoport bought a sable coat, to go with his mink coat and broadtail dinner jacket . . . Brian Hutton, who directed "The Warriors," named his own company Hutton International Productions — so he can call it "the hip company" . . . Pres. Nixon named Tickeron head of Tom Moore to the American Revolution Bicentennial Committee.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Rodney Dangerfield grumbles that he gets no respect: "I gave an organ grinder a nickel — and his monkey gave it back to me."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: If it weren't for TV commercials, some women would never have time to do any housework.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "If you can give your son only one gift, let it be enthusiasm." — Bruce Barton.

EARL'S PEARLS: The dirt in the subway is at a minimum, thanks to the girls in their maxis.

Singer Bobby Vinton insists he didn't mean to insult an amoying ring-sider: "All I did was tell him he could never be a donor in a brain transplant. That's earl, brother."

Film Star's Wife Exiled by Divorce

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Few persons' lives are as dramatically changed by divorce as the wives of motion picture stars. One day they are beloved as part of the leading man's personal and public image. Where he goes she goes: parties, premieres, locations abroad, testimonial dinners, on television talk shows.

Mrs. Movie Star is a satellite, to be sure, but reckoned in her own right by virtue of her husband's surname.

The bigger the star, the greater the shock wave in divorce.

The blow is lessened if the wife happens to be an actress in her own right.

AND NOT A few Mrs. Movie Stars bury their pride, allowing their husbands to philander rather than face divorce.

But one divorcee comes, Mrs. Movie Star dissolves socially. If there is a rich financial settlement she falls prey to young hustlers and remarriage.

"Finding Ernie" is described as a contemporary romantic adventure in which two young lovers are kept whirling in a round of involvements that take them from England to South America to New Guinea. And while Foreman is doing his adaptation of Collier's script, Collier will be doing his own adaptation — turning it into a novel.

BUT BEFORE Finding Ernie, Foreman will find Winnie. He has been scheduled by Columbia Pictures to direct "Young Winston," his screen-play about Winston Churchill.

Some become drunks. Others move to faraway cities or travel in Europe. A few manage to hang on by becoming active in charity work.

Latest Mrs. Movie Star to find herself facing divorce is Jeanne Martin, the petite and beautiful blonde wife of Dino.

While she may harvest

Foreman to Direct 3 Films

By A. H. WEILER
N.Y. Times Service

Carl Foreman, the writer-producer, is preparing to have another go at directing. Foreman, an expatriate who has been operating out of London for the last few years, announced last week that he plans to produce, direct and adapt "Finding Ernie," an original script by John Collier.

"Finding Ernie" is described as a contemporary romantic adventure in which two young lovers are kept whirling in a round of involvements that take them from England to South America to New Guinea. And while Foreman is doing his adaptation of Collier's script, Collier will be doing his own adaptation — turning it into a novel.

BUT BEFORE Finding Ernie, Foreman will find Winnie. He has been scheduled by Columbia Pictures to direct "Young Winston," his screen-play about Winston Churchill.

6 Accused in Slaying Still Berets

2 Who Left After Double Agent Death Saw Careers Hurt

By Jeffery D. Alderman
Four months after the Army dropped charges in the Green Beret case, six of the eight once accused of murdering a Vietnamese double agent are still in the armed forces — five of them in intelligence units.

Two of the eight, Col. Robert F. Rheault and Capt. Robert F. Marasco, have left the service, saying the case ruined their chances for advancement.

The six still in uniform do not grant interviews, most brushing off questions about the case with "no comment."

Rheault and Marasco have talked about the case but have avoided specifics, saying they are innocent and expressing some bitterness over handling of the case.

Charges against the eight were dropped in September and the men were returned to the United States after the Central Intelligence Agency refused to provide witnesses for scheduled October court-martial, making it impossible for the men to be tried fairly. The CIA refusal was made "in the interest of national security."

Marasco says he was disappointed that the charges were dropped because he feels it leaves doubt in people's minds about his innocence. But despite the lack of official exoneration, Marasco says many Americans were in sympathy with the eight Berets when the case was high in the news.

RHEAULT has been living with his wife, Nan, and their three children in an apartment in Brookline, Mass., a suburb of Boston. Attempts to interview him have been unsuccessful.

In an article in Life magazine Nov. 14, Rheault, a West Point graduate, said he left the Army because the case had ruled out any advancement in his military career.

RUNNIES

SEX TABOO

LONDON (UPI) — Chelsea Barracks, an old soldiers home, stopped six pensioners from seeing the film epic called "Sex is a Pleasure" as the guests of theater owners who planned to drive them into London in limousines.

"It's ridiculous to prevent the lads going," said Sgt. Robert Shepherd, 65. "In two world wars they have seen as much sex as anyone in the world."

TOURNIQUET

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (UPI) — V stripper Anita Arnold, "Teeny Weeny" on the runway, collapsed half way through her act. Monday. An ambulance driver said her G-string was too tight.

JOB HAZARD

PORTSMOUTH, England (UPI) — A court Monday banned Albert Smith, 35, from operating an auto for three and a half years after finding him guilty of driving under the influence of alcohol.

Smith admitted drinking 26 pints in one day and to driving while under the influence of drink but told the judge the beer had affected him less than one might think because he had worked for seven years in a brewery.

Smith, who police said had been incapable of blowing up a breathalyzer alcohol test bag, explained that he had been driving erratically because he had a broken toe.

Mrs. Wyatt, who claims 12 years of perfect loaves, has complained to her local gas board that the bread now emerges soggy.

"I've complained to the board time and again, but no one has been able to figure it out," she said.

HOOT, COLD

Bruins (Gasp) Tip OSU, 72-71

By LOEL SCHRAEDER
Staff Writer

The "late show" isn't exclusive property of USC's football team. UCLA's basketball team has a flair for the dramatic, too. With six seconds remaining at Pauley Pavilion Saturday night, reserve forward John Ecker hooked in a three-foot shot to give the Bruins a 72-71 victory over Oregon State. It was the second time in two weeks that UCLA's top-ranked and unbeaten team had squeezed one out. Sidney Wicks' field goal with three seconds left turned back Princeton in the championship game of the Bruin Classic.

Ecker's shot forged an improbable ending to an improbable setting. The Beavers, 3-6, had been expected to sit on the ball and try somehow to luck it out. Instead, they concentrated on shot selection and a defense that would shut off the Bruins' running game.

They were so nearly successful that coach Paul Valenti was in a virtual state of shock afterward. "Tough loss," someone offered.

Banging the locker room door with both hands and burying his head, Valenti shouted an expletive, then turned and said: "Don't quote me."

Bruin coach John Wooden, who has been through his share of nail-biters, appeared shaken.

"I certainly don't have anything startling to say," he muttered. "We were very fortunate to come out of it."

His Bruins had shot poorly and played with little enthusiasm.

They held a 41-37 half-time advantage and were ahead by three, 63-60, with 5:55 to go.

Then the Beavers, led by guard Vince Fritz and center Vic Bartolome came on strongly.

Bartolome hooked in an eight-footer and Fritz hit a free throw to tie the score at 63. Fritz connected on both free throws in a one-and-one situation to move Oregon State in front, 65-63, and Bartolome converted two more free throws with 2:37 left to give the Beavers a 67-63 lead.

When forward Gary Freeman was fouled by Wicks at 2:11, UCLA's chances appeared slim.

But the Oregon State forward missed a vital first shot in a one-and-one, and the Bruins hustled down-court where Henry Bibby swished a 15-footer.

The Beavers turned the ball over when Freeman charged Wicks driving for the basket with 1:41 to go. Twenty-five seconds later, Wicks made a 17-footer while falling away from the basket to knot matters at 67.

While the Bruins and their fans were enjoying this drama, the Beavers came back to take the lead again on Bartolome's

NEW ORLEANS — The tough Minnesota Vikings, who believe "the name of this game is to hit somebody," rule 13-point favorites for today's Super Bowl game against the Kansas City Chiefs, who think they can pull a Joe Namath-type upset.

There is a 50-50 chance, according to the weather bureau, the fourth game between the champions of the National Football League and American Football League will be played in rain. Temperatures are expected to be in the 40s, dropping to the mid 30s.

No matter what the weather, the Vikings remain the choice to win the Super Bowl win, regaining the lead when Broadway Joe Namath led the Jets to a historic upset of the Baltimore Colts.

A capacity crowd of 30,000, occupying $15 seats, will see the game in Tulane Stadium, and perhaps 30 million more will watch on television, which is paying $2.5 million for the rights.

Each of the players on the winning team will receive $15,000, the losers $7,500.

Coach Bud Grant of the Vikings forecasts a "close, fairly low scoring game, because both of these teams have such good defenses."

In the event of rain, Grant thinks "the element of breaks will enter more into the game."

Blank Stram, coaching in his second Super Bowl — he guided the Chiefs to the first ever bowl in 1967 when they were blasted by the Green Bay Packers, 35-10 — refuses to forecast what kind of game it will be.

Basically, the Super Bowl is a clash of two teams who

HALE WHO?

Irwin Leads Casper by Stroke--18 Holes to Go

By DAVE LEWIS
Staff Writer

Since the football season won't officially end until after today's Super Bowl, it was fitting that Hale Irwin, former Big Eight defensive standout from the University of Colorado, assumed the lead Saturday in the 44th Los Angeles Open on a rain-softened Rancho Park golf course.

Irwin has a 54-hole total of 203 and a one-stroke lead over Billy Casper, who carded his third consecutive 68.

Irwin has put together rounds of 70, 66 and 67.

It marks the first time the 24-year-old pro from Boulder, Colo., who won't complete his second season on the tour until May, has enjoyed the lead in a pro tournament.

Closest he's ever come to first place up to now was in the Minnesota Open last July when he was second to the ultimate winner, Frank Beard, by two strokes after two rounds. Irwin ultimately finished 10th, one of his two highest finishes. He also was 10th at Memphis.

Casper led through most of the final 2½ hours of play until he faltered on the next-to-last hole with his lone bogey to pave the way for Irwin, all-Big Eight defensive back in 1965 and '66 for the Buffaloes, to assume first place when he made a spectacular recovery on the 16th hole for a birdie.

Irwin was three under par going into 16 when his drive rolled into a divot hole, but he hit an 8-iron out of the bad lie to within two feet of the cup to register his fourth bird of the day.

"I was surprised as everyone else when I got that close," Irwin said. "I was just hoping to reach the green after finding the ball in that divot hole."

He credits his good start in the L.A. Open "by beginning 1970 in a better frame of mind as well as being much stronger because of a rest over the holidays."

"I'm driving the ball very good in this tournament, a must on this Rancho course because it is playing so long. I believe the rest had a lot to do with driving farther than I did the past fall. I was tired at the end of '69 because I missed only seven tournaments the whole year."

"Then, too," he continued, "my putting has been excellent. In fact, I dropped in a 12-footer and a pair of six-foot putts on the first three holes to save my pars. Making those three tough pars right off the bat helped a lot."

Remarking that the "putter felt good in my hands," Hale went on to sink a 15-foot putt and two 10-footers for birdies on 6, other of his consistent rounds.

He holed out 20-foot birdie putts on 7 and 14, a four-footer on No. 9 and an eight-footer at 15 before his troubles at 17.

Admitting that "golf pressures are much greater on individuals than those in football," Irwin charged into the lead after Casper committed his only slip on the 17th hole. Billy was out in front of the pack at 10-under-par following four birdies on an-

Billy placed his tee shot on the par-three hole on the edge of the green, then misjudged the speed of the putting surface and left his chip five feet short of the hole and missed the putt.

But Casper nevertheless is considered the man to beat as the field concludes play today the 1970 inaugural PGA tournament, if for nothing more than his showing in the L.A. Open the past two years.

He won the 1968 event and last year finished third just one stroke behind Charlie Sifford and Harold Henning, who tied for first. Sifford then won a sudden-death playoff.

Other leading contenders with 18 holes to go include Dave Stockton, third at 205, following a 68 featured by birdie putts of 16, 15 and 12 feet and another 12-footer for a "save," Bobby Lunn at 206, also Jim Wright (71), Larry Mowry (71), Ken Sullivan (71) and Paul Harey, 1964-65 winner of the tournament and the halfway leader this year are in contention.

Harey, the graying 40-year-old club pro who started the day with a one-stroke lead, had a one-over 72, but actually was the leader for awhile Saturday and was sailing along at 9-under-par until he reached No. 11 where disaster struck in the form of a double bogey.

He hooked his drive into a cement water ditch and the ball bounced up against a fence. Paul had to waste a shot barely moving the ball for enough for a full swing, then was short of the green. He finally two-putted after a short pitch.

Harey then took another bogey on the 17th when "We know what kind of a team Long Beach has," J. F. Kennedy College coach George Milby was saying early Saturday night. "But we have to play somebody."

Shunned by college division teams in their home state of Nebraska, the Patriots have been forced to schedule 21 of their 28 games on the road, including a 10-day sojourn through California.

The trip ended suddenly night when Cal State Long Beach delighted 1,783 patriots by whacking the Patriots, 116-65.

Although the Patriots admitted before the game that they were over-matched, they opened the contest trying to win.

Milby had his team open in a delay in an attempt to get the 49ers to extend their conservative one-two-two zone.

The play worked, but not with the results Milby desired.

Cal State coach Jerry Tarkanian sent his troops into a swarming all-court pressure defense four minutes into the opening half. Seven minutes later the 49ers were cruising with a 36-14 lead.

It was a combination of the pressure Cal State defense, which produced 19 J.F.K. turnovers in the first 20 minutes, and the dead-eye shooting of guard Ray Gritton which left the 49ers' 11th victory in 14 games this season only a formality at halftime.

The remarkable Gritton, who scored only two points in Friday's victory over San Diego State, hit 13 of 16 field goal attempts in the first 20 minutes Saturday night for 26 points, one less than the entire Kennedy team.

With their aggressive defense, the 49ers were able to dominate the Patriots in all phases of the game while piling up a 65-27 halftime edge.

The 49ers had 22 more floor shots, 19 more field goals and 15 more rebounds at intermission.

The final 20 minutes was a mass of confusion as both teams traded turnovers in a futile chase to score points.

Tarkanian pulled most of his starters with 16 minutes remaining with the 49ers on top, 79-39.

Despite the confusion of the final 20 minutes, the 49ers had their best shooting night of the season (54 per cent) while connecting on 53 of 99 floor shots.

Tarkanian used all 10 men available and everyone got into the scoring column.

Gritton finished with 26 points after missing three shots in the second half and was followed in double figures by Dwight Taylor (15), Sam Robinson (14), Art Montgomery (14) and Dave McLucas (10).

McLucas collected 16 rebounds and Montgomery 13 as the 49ers dominated that statistic, 68-42.

J.F. Kennedy College, a private school of 800 in Wahoo, Neb., had three athletes with 14 points — Fred Dandridge, Joe Spellman, Jim Miller.

The Patriots, who play their five home games in the gym at Father Flanagan's Boys Town, return home today after 12 consecutive games on the road. They are 5-12 for the year. 3-12 on the road.

Tigers Ink McLain

DETROIT (AP) — The signing of pitching ace Denny McLain, for an estimated $85,000, and 30 other players was announced by the Detroit Tigers Saturday.

MANDO GOES ON TUESDAY

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — World lightweight champion Mando Ramos of Long Beach and Leonardo Aguero of Leon, Mexico, tuned up over the weekend for their 10-round non-title bout Tuesday night.

This will be Ramos' first fight since he successfully defended his crown last October. He again defends his title in March, facing Ismael Laguna.

Kings Post 6-4 Win at Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS (Special) — The Kings struck early, then held off Minnesota for a 6-4 victory in a brawling National Hockey League game Saturday night.

Danny Grant fired the hat trick for Minnesota in a losing game.

It was only the Kings' second win in 18 road games this season — they have two ties — and only their second win at Minnesota in three seasons.

They play at Chicago tonight. The game will be telecast on Channel 5 at 5:30.

Saturday's ragged contest saw 126 minutes in penalties. The defeat extended the North Stars' winless string to 13 games and dropped them to third place in the NHL.

After Grant put Minnesota ahead 1-0 with the Kings two men short early in the first period, the Kings rebounded strongly as Brent Hughes, Jim Peters and Bob Wall fired the puck. They scored on beleaguering Minnesota goalie Fern Rivard to give the Kings a 3-1 lead, out shooting Minnesota 20-7 for the period.

Cesare Maniago replaced Rivard at the start of the second period, but the Kings proceeded to run the margin to 6-1 on goals by Bill Flett, Ross Lonsberry and Butch Goring before Grant tallied his and Minnesota's second goal at 10:59.

The North Stars' Danny Grant narrowed it to 6-3 when he hit at 4:20 of the third period and Grant capped the scoring with his third goal with just over four minutes to go.

Grant became the first North Star to score three hat tricks in an NHL career.

This was the season of strong, durable pro quarterbacks. Roman Gabriel, Joe Kapp and Daryle Lamonia all directed their teams to various titles and much of that success could be attributed to not only their passing but their powerful running, something unheard of in the playing days of Norm Van Brocklin, who thought a quarterback sneak was a thief.

EVEN THOUGH Mando Ramos has signed for a title fight March 3 against Ismael Laguna in the L.A. Sports Arena, he currently has no status and is without a license. The State Athletic Commission suspended the lightweight champ's license because of his two difficulties with the law. The Commission pointed out that even though Mando's license was suspended in 1969, all licenses expire automatically on Dec. 31. As yet, Ramos has not applied for renewal. The Commission will consider Mando's anticipated renewal bid Feb. 6 after his court hearing Feb. 2.

The Sunday sermon: Win Hanssen, manager of Long Beach Arena, isn't too happy with Mr. Jack Kent Cooke of the Inglewood Forum Cookies. Seems that Jack Kent cost Hanssen in the neighborhood of $1,500. Hanssen had booked the Harlem Globetrotters for Friday, Jan. 23, but when Cooke learned of it he went into orbit. He wanted that date or one just around that time. As usual (except when Jack Kent tangled with Hollywood Park), Cooke won out. Thus Hanssen was forced to schedule the Trotters here Wednesday, Jan. 28. Win figured that a Wednesday night date as opposed to a Friday night booking made a difference of $1,500. That Cooke is some cookie.

The rumor persists that Santa Anita has staged its last horse race. It seems to be the considered opinion of those close to the situation that Santa Anita officials want to sell their land (a fabulous price has been offered for it) and run their meeting at Hollywood Park. The rumor makes sense because the cost of operating just one track would be considerably less than operating two.

I like the Minnesota Vikings over the Kansas City Chiefs in today's Super Bowl but not by the quoted 14 points. Joe Kapp and Carl Eller would seem to be too much for the AFL team. Say by about a touchdown.

Incidentally, you read it here some months ago that Kansas City would represent the AFL in the Super classic. You didn't read it here that Minnesota would be the opponent. We figured that honor would fall to either the Rams or Dallas, who had to settle for the Fun Bowl in Miami.

Sadly, though George Allen's Rams have one of pro football's most sparkling records during the past three years they haven't been able to advance beyond the conference title game in post-season competition. Must be frustrating for a coach.

TODAY'S QUESTION: Will Jim Nabors reach Super Bowl status himself by singing the National Anthem? Everybody's on edge about it.

Eddie Meador is upset over another paper's story that he was going to Dallas in a whopping player trade because of his business interests in Texas. Eddie has a few here, too, you know. "How do these stories get started?" boomed the dependable safetyman. "They just upset everybody."

LSU's all-America Pete Maravich didn't show so much when he played against UCLA a short time ago. After viewing him, one can understand why he is the nation's leading scorer. He shoots every time he gets the ball. And in the words of Chris Schenkel's friend, Loel Schrader: "LSU is one of the most undisciplined teams I've ever seen." Maravich makes it that way.

Wonder what USC's Bob Boyd meant when he said: "Maravich is the greatest, purest basketball player we've seen?" What is a PURE basketball player — one who goes to church and doesn't fight with his mother?

Cleveland brown quarterback Bill Nelsen tried a gimmick before the NFL title game last Sunday that didn't pay off. To guarantee protection against Minnesota's rugged defense he treated all of Cleveland's offensive linemen and their wives to a steak dinner. Nelsen picked up the whole tab. As history will record, it was a fruitless gesture.

THE NEWEST football "scandal" as expected has everyone chirping in the offices and on the street corners. It's hard to picture Bill Musson and Lenny Dawson involved. One has to feel particular pangs for Dawson since the "news" broke the week before his biggest game. A quarterback has enough to worry about without additional headaches. On the other hand, Lenny may give that extra little effort today to ambush the Vikings.

Charlton Heston actually played football with the New Orleans Saints when he made his movie of an aging quarterback, "Number One." He says he broke a rib during the filming, but thought he received a kind of tribute in the process. As he was lying motionless on the turf, he heard Saint defensive end Dave Rowe saying softly to him: "Welcome to the NFL." That's a tribute when you just broke a rib?

This was the season of strong, durable pro quarterbacks. Roman Gabriel, Joe Kapp and Daryle Lamonia all directed their teams to various titles and much of that success could be attributed to not only their passing but their powerful running, something unheard of in the playing days of Norm Van Brocklin, who thought a quarterback sneak was a thief.

Lakers Lose in Overtime as Walker Sparks Bulls

CHICAGO (Special) — One second from victory in regulation play, the Lakers lost to Chicago in overtime, 116-112. Saturday night as all-star forward Chet Walker lifted the Bulls to their second win this week over the West Coast team.

The Lakers had the game won when Clem Haskins missed a jumper with four seconds left in Steve Belko was trying to mask his feelings.

The Oregon basketball coach had come into the Southland with a seven-game winning streak and the unusual promise of a Pacific-8 Conference championship.

He was about to depart with two defeats, the last a 77-88 loss to USC before 2,886 fans Saturday at the L.A. Sports Arena.

"Pretty aggressive ball game, wasn't it?" Belko inquired of reporters in the silence of Oregon's dressing quarters. "I don't know what chute they were coming out of."

Belko's talented center, Stan Love, had been held to 14 points, two in the first half, after an 11-point evening at UCLA Friday.

"I don't want to comment on Ron Riley's performance against Love," Belko snorted. "I think Love was pretty much manhandled out there. I don't know if he was in a rodeo or a basketball game."

Over in the other dressing room, Trojan coach Bob Boyd was savoring USC's 2-0 conference record but pondering the fickleness of fans.

Early in the second half, with the Trojans holding a two-point lead, some exuberant USC fans had held aloft a sign which read: "Fire Boyd."

They were chanting for Boyd to send in little-used Leroy Cobb, junior college transfer from Phoenix.

After Boyd inserted Cobb into the lineup with the score tied at 57-57 midway in the second half and the Trojans spurred to a 67-62 lead, the fans tore off the "fire" part of the sign and cheered mightily as they held it up as just plain "Boyd."

"Aw, I didn't really think anything about it," said the USC coach, who is happy to have fans of any kind at Trojan games.

Certainly Cobb wasn't solely responsible for USC's victory, either.

The Trojans won because Riley and George Watson owned the backboards. They scooped in 36 rebounds between them with individual season highs of 20 and 16, respectively. Their combined total was nine more than the Ducks had as a team.

"Riley was good like he hasn't been the last four games," said Boyd. "I told him before the game we needed his best game."

Riley and Watson also contributed 11 points each. Boyd disagreed with Belko's assessment of Riley's work of art against Love.

"He just restricted Love's movement," commented the USC coach. "The game wasn't that physical. Of course, we were looking at the game from two different sides."

Oregon stayed in the game only because 6-5 forward Bill Drowdzak zipped in eight of his first nine shots, most from medium to long range, and Billy Gaskins led a fast break that caught the Trojans short-handed several times.

Probably the key play was Watson's tip-in after Riley had missed a free throw with the Trojans leading, 69-66, with 2:37 remaining.

"It was anybody's ball game until that one," said Belko.

Belko, whose team had been beaten, 75-58, by UCLA, said that "the first five of the two teams don't match up. UCLA's starters are better."

Belko fired a warning shot before departing.

"There's still something up in the Northwest," he said. "This thing (Pacific-8 race) isn't decided yet."

Rams (Yawn) All String With Vikings

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

It comes as no surprise that the Rams see the Minnesota Vikings emerging as Super Bowl champions today. Everyone, that is, but Roman Gabriel.

"I'm not even going to watch it," the NFL's most valuable player said Thursday. "It would just be upsetting. I'm not even going to predict the outcome. I'm taking off for Las Vegas and a short vacation with my wife."

Diron Talbert: "Although we got beat up pretty good by the Chiefs in the pre-season, I still have to go with the Vikings. They have a stronger running game and their defense is remarkable. I couldn't predict a score. If Minnesota wins by one point or four touchdowns it's all the same."

Deacon Jones: "I don't think any team is 13 points better than the other in the Super Bowl. We saw that last year. There's no question the Vikings have a better offense. The defenses are pretty even."

Jack Snow: "It's going to be a good game. I'd like to see Minnesota win it. They've got a powerhouse. But you never know. Kansas City could upset them."

Pat Studstill: "I've got to go with the National League. I think Kansas City has a great club but the Vikings have more balance. I think Joe Kapp is maybe a better quarterback than Len Dawson. I think if Dawson gets hit a few times he'll become gun shy and wind up off-target the rest of the game."

Roger Brown: "Minnesota has the better runners, deep backs and defensive front line."

George Allen: "Since we're not in it, the game doesn't mean much to me. I think Minnesota is the better team. I've been invited to attend, but I'm not interested enough to want to go."

Jack Pardee: "After flying all night from Miami, I slept through the Oakland-Kansas City game Sunday so I don't know that much about the Chiefs. The only time I've seen them since we played them in pre-season was when Dawson was hurt and they didn't have much offense. I know Minnesota has a great team. Don't forget Kapp's toughness makes them that much stronger."

Charlie Cowan: "I have to take Minnesota. After watching the two playoff games last Sunday it gave me all the more reason to pick the Vikes. I don't think K.C. can compare with the Vikes' defense nor can they touch them for basic soundness."

Doug Woodliff: "I'm picking Minnesota. I think the Vikings have a better defense. They may have trouble with some of the formations Kansas City will throw at 'em. The Chiefs are pretty fancy but Minnesota should be able to straighten out everything during halftime. You do a lot of charting during the game and you have ample time at halftime to go over everything."

ROMAN GABRIEL
'Not Even Going to Watch'

Go Vikings. The Rams are in your corner — for once.

Super Bowling Chiefs Second-Place But Not Second-Rate...Right, Buck?

A couple of weeks ago the guys with the green eyeshades who decide who is going to beat whom and by how much determined that whoever won the National Football League title would whip whoever won the American Football League by 7½ points.

When it was learned that the latter was to be the Kansas City Chiefs, the odds jumped to 13.

Now, this is of little concern to the Chiefs or quarterback Len Dawson—especially quarterback Len Dawson—but it is a classic irony that the AFL, once considered to be a second-rate power among the pros, should, as its final act, send a second-place team to the Super Bowl.

"We don't make the rules on how the league is set up. We played a football game and we won. Sure, we feel like champions. We are champions, as far as I'm concerned." — Buck Buchanan.

For the sake of having full playoffs, just like the other league, the AFL allowed its runnerup, Houston and Kansas City, to compete against the division champions, Oakland and New York. Well, to make a long story less embarrassing, Houston rolled over dead for Oakland but the Chiefs turned out the lights from Beaver Falls to Broadway by whipping the Jets... then the Raiders. Whoops—they're in the Super Bowl!

Finally, after flying into New Orleans backwards, the Chiefs failed to offer the least apology for being there. After one look at Buck Buchanan, none was required.

It's not enough that Buchanan, 6-7 and 277, is rated the best defensive tackle in his league. Next season it will be all one league and Buck declares boldly. "I have confidence in my ability that I can play tackle as well as anybody."

WHAT'S MORE, he is so worried about today's game that as recently as three days ago he wasn't sure who his nose-on-opponent would be.

"I think John Velleto... or something like that," Buchanan frowned. "I think that's his name, but I'm not real sure."

Minnesota's offensive left guard opposite Buchanan is not a "John Velleto" but one Jim Vellone, who Buck has seen only in films.

"He seems to be a very fine offensive ballplayer," Buck says magnanimously. "But I have a habit of respecting all my opponents, so I respect him highly."

It's possible that the Vikings may be paying their last respects to Vellone, as well as the AFL, before the day is out. If they think Buchanan is impressive now, they should have seen him when he was big.

"The past off-season I had my tonsils removed and I dropped quite a bit of weight, down to about 274 pounds," Buck reveals. "So I decided I'd try to keep the weight down. It's really been difficult but I've kept it between 280 and 275 all year."

"I like that weight. When I first came in to the pros I weighed 294, and that was just too heavy. I feel a little quicker. I think my endurance is better and all the way around I just feel better as a football player."

BUCHANAN'S WEIGHT problem came from the usual source.

"I just ate whatever I felt like eating," he admits. "If it looked good, I'd eat it, and if there was a load of bread I'd eat that, also."

"But I got to a point where I felt if I kept on eating I'd eat my way out of football. So I curtailed it and got my weight down to 285, then last year I got it down to 274."

Only a fat person can appreciate the will power and suffering involved in the struggle between the ecstasy of eating and the agony of fasting.

"The big thing is will power," Buchanan says. "Right now I'm having a tough time, trying to keep from eating all this food down here. But I have just one helping, then I get up and leave the table. That's the best way."

You won't find much fat on Buchanan today, but he is still an awesome specimen of a man trying to live in a society built for average-size people.

"The biggest problem I have is clothing. I would like to be a much fancier dresser than I am—well, I do think I dress well for a guy my size—but I have a problem finding certain things to wear."

Buchanan, who wears size-52 suits, takes shirts with 18½-collars and needs 14-A shoes, regrets to say that everything really isn't up to date in Kansas City.

"I'm not in the right location, say, to have things made," he says as tactfully as possible, "not the way-out stuff like they have in New York or L. A. There's a few places in town that make conventional clothes. I buy a few of 'em—very few."

BUCHANAN, 29, IS ONE of 70 Grambling alumni who have played pro football. He was one of the Chiefs' two first-round draft choices in 1963 and a member of the last College All-Star squad to beat the professional champion, in that year the Green Bay Packers.

Of more importance, he has played in more Super

Neither Coach Surprised With Senior Bowl Scoring

MOBILE, Ala. — The high scoring offensive battle that marked the Senior Bowl Saturday came as no surprise to either North coach Lou Saban of the Denver Broncos or South coach Don Shula of the Baltimore Colts.

"I figured it would be high scoring with two top quarterbacks like Bradshaw and Shaw," Saban said after the 37-37 game.

With professional football draft picks only a few weeks away, Shula called North quarterback Dennis Shaw of San Diego State and Terry Bradshaw of Louisiana Tech "two of the finest pro prospects around."

Shaw completed 22 of 52 passes for a record 386 yards and three touchdowns with four interceptions and was chosen the North's outstanding back but Bradshaw, who threw

SUPER SHORTS

Scribes Like Vikes

Combined News Services
Newsmen predict in two separate polls that the Minnesota Vikings will defeat the Kansas City Chiefs in the Super Bowl today.

In one poll, Minnesota was given a 30-12 edge at the Press Center's registration desk in the Hotel Roosevelt. Another poll produced a 40-26 edge for the Vikings.

Finks Denies Swap

Jim Finks, general manager of the Minnesota Vikings, Saturday denied a report the Vikings have traded quarterback Gary Cuozzo and running back Clinton Jones to the Pittsburgh Steelers for the Steelers' No. 1 draft choice.

'Go, Super Joe'

"Go, go, Super Joe. You gave British Columbia our first and only Grey Cup. We know you will deliver the Super Bowl to Minnesota today."

So read a telegram sent to New Orleans Saturday and signed by more than 3,000 persons from British Columbia.

Kapp's Number Up?

Minnesota Vikings quarterback Joe Kapp feels he has the right jersey number.

On Jan. 12, 1969 the New York Jets, behind No. 12 Joe Namath, beat the Baltimore Colts in the Super Bowl. The 1970 Super Bowl is Sunday, Jan. 11. Kapp wears No. 11.

VIKINGS...

Chiefs use "maybe 30 or 40" offensive formations in an effort to bewilder the defense and force them into "a moment of indecision."

Typifying the Viking attack is quarterback Joe Kapp, a half-Mexican, ex-California star whom the Vikings plucked from the Canadian Football League—same place they got coach Grant three years ago. "Eskimo Joe" loves to run around people if he can—over them if he has to.

"My job as quarterback is to produce the pass," said Kapp, "and that's primarily what I do. Some folks say my passes wobble: maybe so, but I notice they get there. Yes, I love to run the football. But I called my own number on a running play only about 10 times this season, and most of those were sneaks or time-killers."

Kapp directs a bevy of hard-running backs, including Dave Osborn, Bill Brown and Oscar Reed. His chief pass target is Gene Washington, usually on a "bomb" like the two that broke open the Vikings' game against Cleveland for the NFL championship.

Veteran Len Dawson quarterbacks the Chiefs' variety attack, doing a bit more passing than Kapp, with Otis Taylor his favorite receiver. But much of the spotlight will be on the defense. Up front, the Vikings have four guys known as the "Purple People Eaters" or the "Four Norsemen" — Carl Eller, Jim Marshall, Alan Page and Gary Larson. The Chiefs' front four are a little short on nicknames but that's about all. They include 6-foot-9 Buck Buchanan, Aaron Brown, Curley Culp and Jerry Mays.

COMPUTER CORNER

Line Play to Settle It: Minnesota by 3 Points

By BUD GOODE

Four sand into a finely tuned engine and you grind it to a halt. Aaron Brown, Kansas City's 265-pound defensive end, poured his 6-5 frame into Oakland's offensive machinery last Sunday.

Like a cracked piston, the thumping sound echoing toward the stands when the Raiders were on offense gave evidence that something was amiss. "Clank-clank," went the Oakland attack as Aaron Brown hit Darryl Lamonica and Lamonica hit the ground.

The Super Bowl will be such a battle, matching two of the best defensive and offensive lines in pro football. The Super Bowl will be won or lost on the line.

Here is the Sports Computer's Univac analysis of the strengths and weaknesses of Kansas City and Minnesota.

KANSAS CITY (12-3)	MINNESOTA (14-2)
27 at San Diego 7	23 at New York 24
31 at Boston 6	22 Baltimore 11
19 at Cincinnati 24	19 Green Bay 17
26 at Denver 13	6 at Chicago 6
27 Houston 9	10 at St. Louis 14
17 Miami 10	24 Detroit 10
22 Cincinnati 22	31 Chicago 14
29 at Buffalo 7	31 Cleveland 14
27 San Diego 3	9 at Green Bay 7
34 at New York 14	12 Pittsburgh 14
23 Oakland 17	21 at Detroit 6
24 Denver 17	28 at Los Angeles 13
22 Buffalo 12	10 San Francisco 7
6 at Oakland 10	3 at Atlanta 10
12 at New York 17	19 Western Conference Playoff
17 at Oakland	21 Los Angeles 20
	27 NFL Championship
	27 Cleveland 7

On most of the Sports Computer's list of important winning factors, Kansas City and Minnesota are evenly matched.

But the Vikings allow opponents only one-third (.33) of a point per pass. The Chiefs' defensive secondary gives up .42 points per pass. Using statistics alone, this one difference in ability could give Minnesota a three-point edge.

COLORADO'S ANDERSON Bowl Vet Sparks South's Hula Win

HONOLULU (UPI) — All-America Bob Anderson, playing in his fourth post season game, led the South to a 35-13 victory over the North Saturday in the 24th annual Hula Bowl game.

Anderson, who led Colorado to a Liberty Bowl triumph and also played in the East-West Shrine game and in the All-America game at Tampa, directed the South to a touchdown the first time his team got the ball and it never trailed thereafter.

Anderson went the last 13 yards of the 80-yard drive while playing quarterback instead of his more accustomed running back spot at Colorado.

He was the unanimous choice to receive the trophy as the game's outstanding back.

"He played against us for three years and I knew what he could do," said Oklahoma head coach Chuck Fairbanks, who headed the South coaching staff.

Anderson, congratulated by his teammates as he entered the dressing room after accepting the award, was more modest.

"My passing wasn't that effective," he said, after having completed nine of 16 passes for 134 yards and adding another 57 yards on the ground. "I missed a lot of throws I should have completed."

Anderson and Heisman trophy winner Steve Owens of Oklahoma traded compliments about each other's play.

"Bob Anderson played fantastically," said Owens, after declining to talk in greater detail about individual performances. Owens carried the ball 17 times for 74 yards.

CARDINALS BALK AT REALIGNMENT PLAN

NEW ORLEANS — The 13 teams of professional football's new National Conference, which have been struggling with realignment for eight months, came close to reaching agreement Saturday but one club balked and—in effect—vetoed a plan.

The St. Louis Cardinals, it was learned, was the team which held out. The other 12 teams agreed to dividing the clubs into these divisions.

1—Green Bay, Chicago, Detroit, Minnesota and New Orleans.

2—San Francisco, Los Angeles, Dallas and St. Louis.

3—New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Atlanta.

Pro Bowl Squads to Arrive Monday

Sixty-four NFL stars, headed by coaches Norm Van Brocklin and Tom Fears, will arrive in Los Angeles today to begin preparations for next Sunday's 20th East-West Pro Bowl football game at the Coliseum.

Eight members of the Minnesota Vikings, including quarterback Joe Kapp, will join the West squad Monday following today's Super Bowl venture against Kansas City.

Other Vikings on Van Brocklin's squad are wide receiver Gene Washington, center Mick Tingelhoff, tackle Grady Alderman, defensive ends Jim Marshall and Carl Eller, defensive tackle Allan Page and defensive back Paul Krause.

Gale Sayers makes his Pro Bowl return after missing last year's game with a knee injury. The Chicago Bears' running great was back of the game in 1967 and '68 and made a big comeback this season by gaining 1032 yards to lead the NFL.

The West team, which will headquarter at the Sheraton-West, will practice at UCLA. The East will train at USC and stay at the Ambassador Hotel.

Added to the East team were fullback Walt Garrison of Dallas and linebacker Dave Floyd of Philadelphia. They replace Calvin Hill and Lee Roy Jordan who are out with injuries.

This marks the final Pro Bowl game under the present format. Next year the game will pit the NFL All-Stars against the AFL. No site has been selected

And Then They Said . . .

The quote delivered in 1969 destined to be remembered through the ages is that by astronaut Neil Armstrong when he set foot on the moon: "One small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind!"

There were some classic lines uttered in the world of sports, too. But they will not be long remembered, although they were funnier.

Few people can top the remark by Mrs. Woody Hayes when she commented on the cantankerous personality of her husband, Ohio State's football coach: "Divorce him? No! Murder him, yes!"

That wins No. 1 in another of our annual features, "That's What They Said." Here are some more lines from a productive 1969:

Ram president Dan Reeves on rehiring coach George Allen after firing him: "I'd rather fight than switch."

New York Jet official following Super Bowl victory: "We've insured Joe Namath's knees for $500,000. And that's just for theft."

Chip Kell, Tennessee's all-America guard, when asked how his wife felt about his being named runnerup as the ugliest man on the campus: "She thought I should've won."

Navy coach Rick Forzano, following poor season: "We made two successive first downs against Miami and somebody wanted to stop the game and give us the game ball."

STEVE SPURRIER, FORMER FLORIDA quarterback back now with the 49ers, on Florida sophomore star John Reaves: "It was all right for him to break all my old passing records, but I thought he'd do it gradually — not all in one afternoon."

Puzzled by a signal from Oklahoma State assistant coach holding his nose with thumb and forefinger, defensive captain called time out to find out what it was all about. The explanation: "You stunk up the last play. Now you're on your own."

Madison Square Garden official, in reply to Howard Cosell's question about how many good sportscasters he thought there were: "One less than you think, Howard!"

UCLA coach Tommy Prothro on developing plays and game plans: "If you steal from one team, that's copying. If you steal from several, that's research."

Describing his play on a frustrating round, golfer Chi Chi Rodriguez said, "I am playing like Tarzan, but putting like Cheeta."

Joe Anzivino, promotion director of the Harlem Globetrotters, after seeing LSU's Pete Maravich play: "He's so fantastic, we'd integrate to get him."

Ohio writer: "John McKay of USC has Woody Hayes' number. Only trouble is that the number is Ex-cedrin headache No. 5,349."

PITCHER BOB GIBSON ON SLIDE of the Cardinals: "Some days, we're so bad even I want to go up in the stands and boo us."

Yogi Berra: "If you don't know where's you're going, you're gonna wind up somewhere else."

A friend, commenting on Warrior center Nate Thurmond being starred in a movie, "Troika," as a Black Christ in a loin cloth: "Most imposing for a man lately crucified by Wilt Chamberlain."

Gus Ganakas, new Michigan State basketball coach on his relative anonymity: "I get mail addressed to all kinds of names — Bananas, Caracas . . . you name it. I didn't mind that but one sports writer called and asked me how to spell my first name."

Scotty Bowman, coach of the St. Louis Blues, after being consoling by a Montreal official that he needn't be ashamed of losing four consecutive Stanley Cup games to the Canadiens: "What burned me up was that we hadn't even played the fourth game yet."

Earl Weaver, Baltimore Orioles' manager after Kansas City executed a ninth-inning suicide squeeze bunt: "I yelled from the dugout, 'Watch the squeeze,' and then I watched it."

Texas guard Mike Dean, smallest lineman on the field, was asked what his plans were for coping with Notre Dame's great 270-pound defensive tackle, Mike McCoy, in Cotton Bowl: "Well, the first thing I'm going to do is try to make friends."

DOUG ATKINS, NEW ORLEANS' defensive end, on hearing that reformed teammate Joe Don Looney's dog had made a devastating raid on a hen house: "I might have known. The minute the kid straightens out, the dog goes bad."

John Edwards, Houston catcher, asked where he hurt after homeplate collision with Pittsburgh's 210-pound Carl Taylor: "Everywhere but the roof of my mouth."

After his North Dakota team played a tournament basketball game with fewer than 100 fans in attendance, coach Jim Rodgers declared, "It was so quiet, you could hear the sweat drip."

Asked if boos bothered him, Charger quarterback John Hadl replied: "No, I'm strictly a beer drinker."

George King, Purdue basketball coach, on lecture he gives on his offense and its star, Rick Mount: "I call it my sermon on the Mount."

Asked if the tension of another World Series would bother him, Willie Mays said, "No, I'm all out of tense."

JIM SWEENEY, WASHINGTON STATE football coach on a rival lineman: "He was so mean, he got kicked out of the Marines for unnecessary roughness."

Relief pitcher Dick Radatz, 6-6, 265 pounds, to rival shortstop Freddie Patek, 5-6, 165, during a fight: "I'll take you and a player to be named later."

After Roberto Clemente robbed the Cardinals of victory with a sensational catch, St. Louis manager Red Schoendienst commented, "I'll bet he couldn't make that same play again — not even on instant replay."

After watching his team blanked by Cal Western, La Verne football coach Roland Ortmyer snapped, "I don't think our offense could get a first down against high brass."

And in ringing down the curtain on "That's What They Said" in 1969, we are reminded of the statement by a leading educator: "A four-letter man on campus today may refer to either an athlete or an editor of the school paper!"

Palmer's Partner: 'Greatest Thing for Me'

By DOUG IVES
 Staff Writer

Being paired in a two-some with Arnold Palmer is something most pros would rather avoid. It's nothing personal, but Arnie's Army has a way of causing many younger players to come unglued.

One can only imagine what went through Bill Brask's mind Saturday in the Los Angeles Open as he attempted to match Arnold stroke-for-stroke in the midst of many other distractions.

Brask, you see, is only 23 years old and is competing in his first PGA tournament. He never dreamed he would be Palmer's partner so early in his golf career, and his reaction was interesting.

"When I started I was nervous," said the former Big Ten champion from Minnesota, by way of Clairmont High in San Diego, "but now that it's over, playing with him is the greatest thing that could happen to me."

Brask, who shot 73-67 in the first two rounds, including a record-equaling 30 on the back nine Friday, felt the pressure of playing with Arnie and carded a 3-over 74 Saturday.

But he wouldn't trade his experience for a sub-par round.

"Arnie was very considerate," said Brask, "and when I took my triple-bogey on the sixth hole he reminded me that I was rushing things and should slow down and relax. He'd let me putt out whenever possible so that the crowds wouldn't leave and distract me."

Brask said he was more at ease than he thought he would be, but perhaps it was because he learned he would be Palmer's partner the night before while playing cards with Mike Morley, also a rookie pro, and George Boulton, a two-year PGA regular.

"They kept joking that I would draw Palmer, but when George found out and told me, I wouldn't believe him," said Brask. "I had to call the course to realize they weren't kidding."

Brask said he was pleased to shoot 74 "considering how erratic I was off the tee. It was a wonder I didn't kill somebody. I was under trees or around them all day."

Asked how playing with Palmer affected his score, Brask said, "It worked both ways. Maybe I couldn't concentrate quite as well on my game, but I learned a lot."

Tommy Shaw, an up-and-coming star who won two tournaments in 1969 and pocketed $72,650, came into the press room Saturday seeking an explanation why no newspapers showed him making the cut. By mistake, he was listed at 148 instead of 142. The cutoff was 143.

"I knew something was wrong when I didn't have any usual gallery," laughed Shaw, a precocious 27-year-old who is back in the pack at 212 (72-70-70) going into today's final round.

The action may be on the golf course, but some funny things happen in the press room, too.

Larry Mowry is in a fifth-place tie, but when he came into press headquarters no one knew him. He looked around, eyed the scoreboard and left, apparently embarrassed.

But the Las Vegas 30-year-old didn't leave empty-handed. After a momentary pause in the corridor, he returned, grabbed two beers from a cooler marked for press only and walked out.

On Thursday, after shooting his first 68, Billy Casper was announced to the press corps, but only a few writers left their seats to interview him. It was late in the day and five other players had carded 66s or 67s, so Billy wasn't of much value.

Sensing the snub, Casper said in a loud voice: "Billy Who?" After the laughter died down, an attentive newsmen asked Casper what he shot, to which Billy replied: "An easy 81."

Short Shots:

—Three-day attendance is 23,140, with "about" 8,000 of that figure trailing Palmer most of the way. Chi Chi Rodriguez, Lee Trevino and Ray Floyd were next in the popularity parade.

—Bob Goalby missed the cut Friday, but he didn't care. His wife gave birth to a 9-pound, 11-ounce boy in Bellevue, Ill., and he was happy to get a chance to go home.

LEARNING FROM THE MASTER

Arnold Palmer calmly putts on seventh green while huge "Arnie's Army" watches. Also taking note of Arnie's shot is his playing partner, young Bill Brask Jr. (arrow), who says playing under such pressure was "greatest experience."

LINING UP A PUTT?

No, it's Dave Stockton's way of expressing dejection after narrowly missing putt in L.A. Open golf tournament. Stockton, who fired 68 Saturday, is only two strokes off lead.

10-foot shot from the baseline.

Curtis Rowe made a driving four-footer, was fouled and cashed in the free throw to put UCLA on top, 70-60, with 42 seconds left but reserve Tim Perkins threw in an 18-footer nine seconds later as the lead swung over to Oregon State again.

The Bruins had the ball but a rarely called double foul was whistled against Wicks and Jeff Haller of Oregon State with 16 seconds left.

It was Wicks' fifth foul, forcing him from the game and bringing on Ecker. Wooden said later that Ecker was selected because he was one of the tallest of reserves and a double foul called for a jump ball at midcourt.

Ecker did his job, getting the tip, with the ball going to Steve Patterson.

Ecker wasn't the primary target for a pass, but Patterson spotted him open cutting across in front of the basket and fed him expertly.

Small wonder Valenti was so distraught.

"We didn't sit on the blanket-blank ball like they said we would," he shouted outside the locker room. "We played basketball."

Indeed the Beavers had.

his ball hit a spectator and bounced under a tree.

A double bogey also stopped the strong bid of Ron Cerrudo for a contending position.

Ron was eight under par going into the par-three 17th where he sliced his drive 100 yards to the right of the green, recovered nicely, but then three-putted. Shaken, he also bogied the 18th when he again sliced his drive.

Arnold Palmer, only one stroke behind the leaders after a 67 Thursday, shot well through 12 holes, then hit some "bad shots," he said after a 72. "I couldn't buy a putt. In fact, I'm going out now and try to find a magic putter."

Arnie is now at 211, eight strokes off the pace.

Yogi Berra: "If you don't know where's you're going, you're gonna wind up somewhere else."

A friend, commenting on Warrior center Nate Thurmond being starred in a movie, "Troika," as a Black Christ in a loin cloth: "Most imposing for a man lately crucified by Wilt Chamberlain."

Gus Ganakas, new Michigan State basketball coach on his relative anonymity: "I get mail addressed to all kinds of names — Bananas, Caracas . . . you name it. I didn't mind that but one sports writer called and asked me how to spell my first name."

Scotty Bowman, coach of the St. Louis Blues, after being consoled by a Montreal official that he needn't be ashamed of losing four consecutive Stanley Cup games to the Canadiens: "What burned me up was that we hadn't even played the fourth game yet."

Earl Weaver, Baltimore Orioles' manager after Kansas City executed a ninth-inning suicide squeeze bunt: "I yelled from the dugout, 'Watch the squeeze,' and then I watched it."

Texas guard Mike Dean, smallest lineman on the field, was asked what his plans were for coping with Notre Dame's great 270-pound defensive tackle, Mike McCoy, in Cotton Bowl: "Well, the first thing I'm going to do is try to make friends."

DOUG ATKINS, NEW ORLEANS' defensive end, on hearing that reformed teammate Joe Don Looney's dog had made a devastating raid on a hen house: "I might have known. The minute the kid straightens out, the dog goes bad."

John Edwards, Houston catcher, asked where he hurt after homeplate collision with Pittsburgh's 210-pound Carl Taylor: "Everywhere but the roof of my mouth."

After his North Dakota team played a tournament basketball game with fewer than 100 fans in attendance, coach Jim Rodgers declared, "It was so quiet, you could hear the sweat drip."

Asked if boos bothered him, Charger quarterback John Hadl replied: "No, I'm strictly a beer drinker."

George King, Purdue basketball coach, on lecture he gives on his offense and its star, Rick Mount: "I call it my sermon on the Mount."

Asked if the tension of another World Series would bother him, Willie Mays said, "No, 'I'm all out of tense.'"

JIM SWEENEY, WASHINGTON STATE football coach on a rival lineman: "He was so mean, he got kicked out of the Marines for unnecessary roughness."

Relief pitcher Dick Radatz, 6-6, 265 pounds, to rival shortstop Freddie Patek, 5-6, 165, during a fight: "I'll take you and a player to be named later."

After Roberto Clemente robbed the Cardinals of victory with a sensational catch, St. Louis manager Red Schoendienst commented, "I'll bet he couldn't make that same play again — not even on instant replay."

After watching his team blanked by Cal Western, La Verne football coach Roland Ortmayer snapped, "I don't think our offense could get a first down against high grass."

And in ringing down the curtain on "That's What They Said" in 1969, we are reminded of the statement by a leading educator: "A four-letter man on campus today may refer to either an athlete or an editor of the school paper!"

Palmer's Partner: 'Greatest Thing for Me'

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Being paired in a two-some with Arnold Palmer is something most pros would rather avoid. It's nothing personal, but Arnie's Army has a way of causing many younger players to come unglued.

One can only imagine what went through Bill Brask's mind Saturday in the Los Angeles Open as he attempted to match Arnold stroke-for-stroke in the midst of many other distractions.

Brask, you see, is only 23 years old and is competing in his first PGA tournament. He never dreamed he would be Palmer's partner so early in his golf career, and his reaction was interesting.

"When I started I was nervous," said the former Big Ten champion from Minnesota, by way of Clairemont High in San Diego, "but now that it's over, playing with him is the greatest thing that could happen to me."

Brask, who shot 73-67 in the first two rounds, including a record-equalling 30 on the back nine Friday, felt the pressure of playing with Arnie and carded a 3-over 74 Saturday.

But he wouldn't trade his experience for a sub-par round.

"Arnie was very considerate," said Brask, "and when I took my triple-bogey on the sixth hole he reminded me that I was rushing things and should slow down and relax. He'd let me putt out whenever possible so that the crowds wouldn't leave and distract me."

Brask said he was more at ease than he thought he would be, but perhaps it was because he learned he would be Palmer's partner the night before while playing cards with Mike Morley, also a rookie pro, and George Boutell, a two-year PGA regular.

"They kept joking that I would draw Palmer, but when George found out and told me, I wouldn't believe him," said Brask. "I had to call the course to realize they weren't kidding."

Brask said he was pleased to shoot 74 "considering how erratic I was off the tee. It was a wonder I didn't kill somebody. I was under trees or around them all day."

Asked how playing with Palmer affected his score, Brask said, "It worked both ways. Maybe I couldn't concentrate quite as well on my game, but I learned a lot."

Tommy Shaw, an up-and-coming star who won two tournaments in 1969 and pocketed $72,656, came into the press room Saturday seeking an explanation why no newspapers showed him making the cut. By mistake, he was listed at 148 instead of 142. The cutoff was 143.

"I knew something was wrong when I didn't have my usual gallery," laughed Shaw, a precocious 27-year-old who is back in the pack at 212 (72-70-70) going into today's final round.

The action may be on the golf course, but some funny things happen in the press room, too.

Larry Mowry is in a fifth-place tie, but when he came into press headquarters no one knew him. He looked around, eyed the scoreboard and left, apparently embarrassed.

But the Las Vegas 30-year-old didn't leave empty-handed. After a momentary pause in the corridor, he returned, grabbed two beers from a cooler marked for press only and walked out.

On Thursday, after shooting his first 68, Billy Casper was announced to the press corps, but only a few writers left their seats to interview him. It was late in the day and five other players had carded 66s or 67s, so Billy wasn't of much value.

Sensing the snub, Casper said in a loud voice: "Billy Who?" After the laughter died down, an attentive newsman asked Casper what he shot, to which Billy replied: "An easy 81."

Short Shots:

—Three-day attendance is 29,140, with "about" 8,000 of that figure trailing Palmer most of the way.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, Lee Trevino and Ray Floyd were next in the popularity parade.

—Bob Goalby missed the cut Friday, but he didn't care. His wife gave birth to a 9-pound, 11-ounce boy in Bellevue, Ill., and he was happy to get a chance to go home.

LEARNING FROM THE MASTER

Arnold Palmer calmly putts on seventh green while huge "Arnie's Army" watches. Also taking note of Arnie's shot is his playing partner, young Bill Brask Jr. (arrow), who says playing under such pressure was "greatest experience."

LINING UP A PUTT?

No, it's Dave Stockton's way of expressing dejection after narrowly missing putt in L.A. Open golf tournament. Stockton, who fired 68 Saturday, is only two strokes off lead.

Davenport Ties Own Mark

BOSTON — Gutsy Sam Bair, with a late rush, captured the mile run by a stride while Willie Davenport tied indoor record in the high hurdles for the second consecutive night at the 44th annual Knights of Columbus indoor track and field games.

Bair, the former Kent State runner who now competes for the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach, defended his title with a stirring finish, just overtaking Alan Robinson of Southern Illinois at the tape.

Bair, a slight 125-pounder who at 5-foot-5 gave away six inches to Robinson, was timed in 4:06.2. Bair was running third entering the final lap. He then overtook John Lawson, also of the PCC who finished third, and fought stride for stride with Robinson until the final 10 yards.

Davenport, the Olympic 110-meter champion, raced to the 45-yard high hurdles title — his 18th successive victory indoors — in 5.3 seconds, tying his own world mark and breaking the meet and Boston Garden record, which he also set last year.

Davenport, who also tied the mark Friday night in the Washington CYO games, now has either tied or broken nine hurdles records.

The Baton Rouge, La., speedster nipped Olympic teammate Leon Coleman of the Southern California Striders, who was timed in 5.4.

10-foot shot from the baseline.

Curtis Rowe made a driving four-footer, was fouled and cashed in the free throw to put UCLA on top, 70-69, with 42 seconds left but reserve Tim Perkins threw in an 18-footer nine seconds later as the lead swung over to Oregon State again.

The Bruins had the ball but a rarely called double foul was whistled against Wicks and Jeff Haller of Oregon State with 16 seconds left.

It was Wicks' fifth foul, forcing him from the game and bringing on Ecker. Wooden said later that Ecker was selected because he was one of the tallest of reserves and a double foul called for a jump ball at midcourt.

Ecker did his job, getting the tip, with the ball going to Steve Patterson.

Ecker wasn't the primary target for a pass, but Patterson spotted him open cutting across in front of the basket and fed him expertly.

Small wonder Valenti was so distraught.

"We didn't sit on the blankety-blank ball like they said we would," he shouted outside the locker room. "We played basketball."

Indeed the Beavers had.

his ball hit a spectator and bounced under a tree.

A double bogey also stopped the strong bid of Ron Cerrudo for a contending position.

Ron was eight under par going into the par-three 17th where he sliced his drive 100 yards to the right of the green, recovered nicely, but then three-putted. Shaken, he also bogied the 18th when he again sliced his drive.

Arnold Palmer, only one stroke behind the leaders after a 67 Thursday, shot well through 12 holes, then hit some "bad shots," he said after a 72. "I couldn't buy a putt. In fact, I'm going out now and try to find a magic putter."

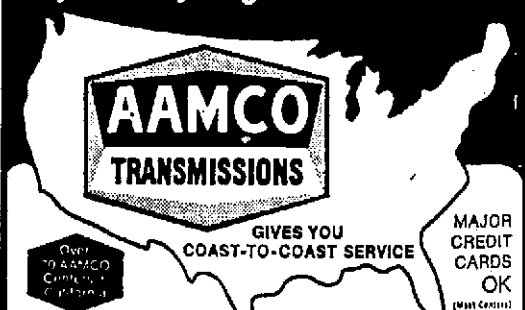

Arnie is now at 211, eight strokes off the pace.

SCOUTING REPORTS

OFFENSE
Quarterbacks
 Len Dawson, Chiefs, No. 14 — A 13-year veteran who is a master of the play-action pass. Dawson's ability to throw long has been questioned. Left knee will have been in early season wear in Chicago.

Joe Kapp, Vikings, No. 11 — Tough, determined leader whose passing ability has been ridiculed but who always seems to manage to hit the big one. Kapp's another dimension to attack by being a capable runner who doesn't run out of bounds.

Running Backs
 Mike Garrett, Chiefs, No. 21 — Flashy, dangerous in the open field. A breakaway threat either as a runner or receiver. Started season slow, finished fast and led in combined rushing — receiving with 1,154 yards.

Dave Osborn, Vikings, No. 41 — Shout and faster than running mate Bill Brown although in same mold. Came back seasonally after missing almost all of 1967 season. No. 10 in NFL with 643 yards for 3.5 average.

John Brown, Chiefs, No. 20 — A workhorse type who has had an ordinary year with 430 yards for a 3.4 average.

Wide Receivers
 Otis Taylor, Chiefs, No. 89 — The Chiefs' game-breaker. A has-didn't have every time the ball is thrown his way.

Gene Washington, Vikings, No. 84 — At 6-foot-3 and with great speed, extremely difficult to cover. A leading catcher in the league.

John Henderson, Vikings, No. 80 — A handsome, downy-faced receiver whose main asset is the fact that most teams have to double on Washington.

Tight Ends
 Fred Arbanas, Chiefs, No. 84 — Blind in one eye, is an exceptional blocker and a dangerous on third-down over-the-middle blocker.

John Beasley, Vikings, No. 87 — Good size at 6-foot-3, 233 pounds. Good blocker.

Tackles
 Jim Tyrer, Chiefs, No. 77 — Tallest offensive lineman in pro football at 6-foot-4. Weighs in at 275 pounds. Strong and fast ability for his size. Outstanding pass blocker.

Dave Hill, Chiefs, No. 73 — Under-rated tackle in the line at 6-foot-5. 260 pounds. Is a good pass blocker and also handles the run well.

Grady Alderman, Vikings, No. 87 — The only original Viking and one of the most reliable tacklers in the line at 6-foot-2, 245. Will veteran whose main reason is fitness.

Ron Yarr, Vikings, No. 73 — Came out of army to boot out Doug Doug and at 6-foot-6, 265, is strong and quick off the line. Has some problems with pass protection.

Guards
 Ed Budde, Chiefs, No. 71 — Aggressive, exceptionally strong and handles all guard assignments well. Pulls, pass blocks and drive blocks with authority. Is 6-foot-5, 250.

Mo Maerzhan, Chiefs, No. 74 — Sophomore who plays like a veteran. Is 6-foot-5, 252, strong and agile.

Jim Vellone, Vikings, No. 43 — Shaped as a free agent, has developed into outstanding young lineman. Solid at pass blocking and very aggressive at 6-foot-3, 235.

Alit Sunde, Vikings, No. 54 — Better than average but not in the super class. Handles assignments well. Has developed pass blocking his forte. Is 6-foot-2, 232.

Centers
 E. J. Holub, Chiefs, No. 55 — Converted linebacker whose range is somewhat limited because of numerous knee injuries. Can be overpowered.

Mick Tinschhoff, Vikings, No. 53 — The leader in talent and technique of the offensive line. The 6-foot-2, 237-pounder is everything you look for in a center, including being combative.

DEFENSE
Ends
 Jerry May, Chiefs, No. 75 — At 6-foot-4, 252, his greatest asset is his ability to close off the run.

Bill Brown, Vikings, No. 87 — Has found himself this season. The 6-foot-5, 250-pounder has become an outstanding pass rusher after two seasons of experimentation at other positions.

Bill Miller, Vikings, No. 81 — Acknowledged leader of the Vikings' vaunted front four. He is who gets the quarterback. Extremely quick with inordinate power at 6-foot-6 and 253 pounds.

Jim Marshall, Vikings, No. 78 — The smallest of the front four at 6-foot-4 and 218, and a veteran who makes few mistakes in reading the offensive play.

Tackles
 Buck Buchanan, Chiefs, No. 86 — The biggest of the big Chiefs' linemen at 6-foot-7, 277, is a threat to the passing game merely because of his reach but also has outstanding talent.

Curly Culp, Chiefs, No. 41 — The next addition to the front four, despite short stature at 6-foot-1 and 265, he is the power to overrun pass protectors.

Alan Page, Vikings, No. 88 — Has the quickness to play end and the strength to play tackle. Which makes him an unusual threat in defensive alignments. Good size at 6-foot-4 and 250.

Jim Marshall, Vikings, No. 78 — The policeman of the front four, whose main job is to react to the run so Eller Marshall can go all out against the pass. Is 6-foot-5, 255.

Middle Linebackers
 Willie Carter, Chiefs, No. 42 — Loves contact, which is his nickname. Has matured in two seasons into a outstanding all-around player. Makes all of Chiefs' defensive calls.

John Elway, Vikings, No. 39 — Originally a free agent since who faded for a season while rough edges were honed. Now a smooth-functioning middle man who is a punishing tackler.

Outside Linebackers
 Bobby Layne, Chiefs, No. 74 — Has incredible ability and that is best reflected in his talent on the field to cover backs on deep pass patterns. Also solid against the run.

Alvin Linder, Chiefs, No. 51 — Like Layne, a young, developing linebacker. A hitter who reads and reacts like one with more experience.

Wally Hilgenberg, Vikings, No. 58 — Shipped from Detroit, has been pleasant surprise this season. Is considered by some as the most vulnerable of Vikings' defenders. Had top game against Cleveland.

Cliff Winston, Vikings, No. 48 — Short at 6-foot-11, makes up for it with quickness and toughness. A durable performer with good leadership qualities.

Safeties
 Willie Mitchell, Chiefs, No. 27 — The likely starter in place of injured Johnny Johnson. The best of the 1967 loss to Green Bay looking for redemption, but will be playing in unfamiliar position.

Jim Kearney, Chiefs, No. 44 — An aggressive player with good speed and ability to go for the ball.

Karl Kossuke, Vikings, No. 29 — Another castoff, recalled from Detroit. A steady performer who seldom makes the costly mistake. A good tackler.

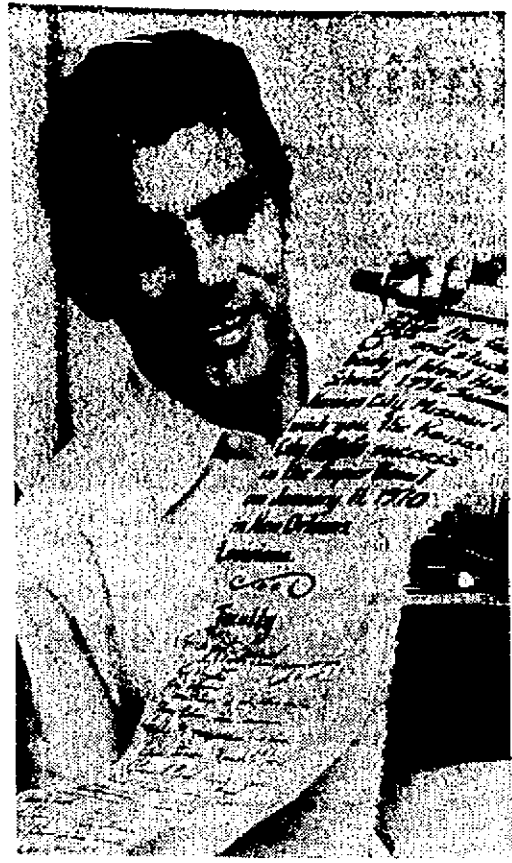

Paul Kravus, Vikings, No. 27 — Is always around the ball. Reads extremely well and has pass receiver's hands, which very often leads to interceptions.

Cornerbacks
 James Marshall, Chiefs, No. 40 — The only tackle in either starting lineup, is a bump-and-run expert who does a receiver a tough physical job.

Emmitt Thomas, Chiefs, No. 18 — Uses his quarterback's training in good use in understanding patterns and anticipating plays. Solid one-on-one coverer.

Ed Sharockman, Vikings, No. 43 — Veteran who has replaced younger Bobby Bryant at key spot in defense. Could be object of early over-the-shoulder.

Garrett Mackbee, Vikings, No. 46 — A gambler who will take a chance on an interception when — sees the front four rush making — adavay. A good tackler.

Showdown: Mods vs. the Straights

NEW ORLEANS — Choose sides.

It's the flashy, hirsute mod squad against the crew-cut straight guys in today's Super Bowl football game, and there's no way to be neutral.

"You gotta have soul,

MARSHALL, MAY Hair-Raiser in Store

man," says Carl Eller, the 6-6, 235-pound terror of Minnesota's front four.

Eller is effecting an Afro-American haircut, a hint of a mustache and a reputation as the fanciest dan in all professional football. Man, you ought to see his green silk underwear.

"Discipline, dedication, duty — they're our three D's," says Hank Stram, the articulate little ring-master of the Kansas City Chiefs.

Look at Jerry Mays, Kansas City's giant defensive end. He is a clean shaven. He has a short, neat haircut. He looks like an overgrown boy scout — that is, until he tears into an enemy's backfield.

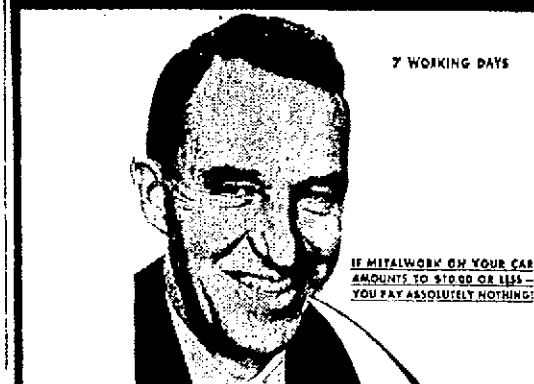

"I use my own sideburns as a gauge," says Stram, whose sideburns grow down only as far as the middle of his ear. "If anybody's hair gets any longer, he's in trouble.

"No mustaches, goatees or long hair. We have a strict $500 fine for violations."

Bud Grant, lean, graying mild-mannered head coach of the Vikings, says: "We demand that our athletes look and deport themselves properly at all times. We have no strict rules on personal freedoms."

Jim Marshall, the 248-pound defensive end from Ohio State, has a mustache and is cultivating a nice growth of mutant chops.

CHIEFS' DAWSON ... FLAWLESS GAME?

'Lenny the Cool' to Face Doubters

New York Times Service

NEW ORLEANS — In today's Super Bowl game, Len Dawson will be playing in the shadow of a doubt.

Inside his red Kansas City Chief's helmet, the 34-year-old quarterback's ice-blue eyes will dominate his boyishly handsome features. His expressionless face will add to the strange stare of those eyes. His teammates have called him "Lenny the Cool" for years, but today the heat will be on his cool as never before.

Dawson has acknowledged a "casual acquaintance" for 10 years with a Michigan restaurateur, Donald Dawson, who was arrested by federal agents a week ago with $450,000 in checks and various gambling records.

The restaurateur, no relation to the quarterback, has been implicated in a nationwide investigation into sports gambling.

Since then, the quarterback has been defended by his friends as a "perfect gentleman" and even as a "puritan," but today before a capacity crowd of 81,000 at the Super Bowl game and a television audience of perhaps 60 million, his integrity will be judged not so much by his reputation as by his performance.

If he is intercepted or fumbles, the suspicions of the cynics will be nourished. Even an incompletion, if the pass-receiver is in the clear, will be viewed with a smirk by some. To avoid criticism, he must produce an almost flawless game.

That is difficult for the best of quarterbacks under the best of circumstances. "But if there's anybody who can handle this situation," Johnny Robinson was saying. "It's Lenny Dawson."

Robinson, an experienced defensive back, was in the room he shares with Dawson at the Fontainebleau Hotel, where the Chiefs have been lodged all week. "He keeps a lot to himself," Robinson continued. "He doesn't have a lot of emotion. He keeps his cool."

Although his passes have guided the Chiefs to three American Football League championships, Dawson's aloof manner has contributed to his relatively insignificant niche among pro football's leading quarterbacks. He doesn't possess the flair of Joe Namath or Joe Kapp, or even the somewhat silent stature of Johnny Unitas or Bart Starr.

But during his eight A.F.L. seasons, Dawson has thrown 182 touchdown passes, the most of any pro quarterback during that span.

Among his teammates, he has developed into a quiet leader of their offensive unit and a loyal friend in time of need.

"I've never heard him raise his voice," said Ed Budde, one of the Chiefs' guards.

Budde recalled the time several years ago when he was hospitalized suddenly.

"Lenny was the first guy to offer to have him and his wife take care of my three children while my wife was at the hospital with me," Budde said.

But the way he is was perhaps described best last September when he defied five orthopedic surgeons who advised knee surgery.

"The sixth one said I didn't need an operation," Len Dawson said at the time.

SCOUTING REPORTS

OFFENSE

Quarterbacks

Len Dawson, Chiefs, No. 14 — A 13-year veteran who is a master of the play-action pass, Dawson's ability to throw long has been questioned. Left knee still raped from early season tear in cartilage.

Joe Kapp, Vikings, No. 11 — Tough, determined leader whose passing ability has been ridiculed but who always seems to manage to hit the big one. Adds another dimension to attack by being capable runner who doesn't run out of bounds.

Running Backs

Mike Garrett, Chiefs, No. 21 — Flashy type, dangerous in open field. A breakaway threat either as a runner or receiver. Started season slow, dilated fast and led A.F.L. in combined rushing — receding with 1,164 yards.

Dave Osborn, Vikings, No. 41 — Stronger and faster than running mate Bill Brown although in same mold. Carries ball skillfully, alters direction almost all of last season. No. 10 rusher in NFL with 443 yards for 3.5 average.

Bill Brown, Vikings, No. 29 — A workhorse type who has had an ordinary year with 426 yards for a 3.4 average.

Wide Receivers

Ollie Taylor, Chiefs, No. 89 — The Chiefs' game-breaker, a long-distance threat every time the ball is thrown his way.

Gene Washington, Vikings, No. 64 — A 6-foot-3, and with great speed, extremely difficult to tackle. A loose-limbed, a la Lance Alworth.

John Henderson, Vikings, No. 89 — A handsome down blocker, Henderson's main asset is the fact that most teams have to double on Washington.

The Ends

Fred Arbanas, Chiefs, No. 64 — Blind in one eye, is an exceptional blocker and still dangerous on the line-down over-the-middle passes.

John Bassler, Vikings, No. 87 — Good size at 6-foot-3, 233 pounds. Good blocker.

Tackles

Jim Tyrer, Chiefs, No. 77 — Tallest offensive lineman in pro football at 6-foot-6. Weighs in at 275 pounds. Strength and great ability for a big man. Outstanding pass blocker.

Dave Mill, Chiefs, No. 73 — Underrated lineman at 6-foot-5, 260 pounds. Was a good pass blocker and also handles the run well.

Grady Alderman, Vikings, No. 37 — The only original Viking and one of the smallest lockers in NFL at 6-foot-2, 235, a veteran whose main weapon is his nose.

Ron Fary, Vikings, No. 73 — Came out of army to boost Ollie Taylor's and at 6-foot-6, 265, is strong and quick off the line. He had some problems with pass protection.

Guards

Ed Budde, Chiefs, No. 71 — Aggressive, exceptionally strong and good all guard assignments well. Pulls, pass blocks and drive blocks with authority. Is 6-foot-5, 260.

Ma Moorman, Chiefs, No. 74 — Sophomore who has Kansas City made in being big at 6-foot-5, 252-strong and reliable.

Jim Vallone, Vikings, No. 42 — Signed as a free agent, has developed into outstanding young lineman. Solid at pass blocking and very aggressive at 6-foot-3, 255.

Mike Lund, Vikings, No. 54 — Better than average but not in the super class. Handles assignments efficiently with pass blocking his forte. Is 6-foot-2, 250.

Centers

E. J. Holub, Vikings, No. 35 — Conventional blocker whose range is somewhat limited because of numerous knee injuries. Can be overpowered.

Mick Tingelhoff, Vikings, No. 53 — The leader in talent and temperament in the offensive line. 6-foot-2, 232-pounder is everything you look for in a center, including being combative.

DEFENSE

Line

Jerry May, Chiefs, No. 75 — At 6-foot-4, 235, his greatest asset is his ability to close off the run.

Aaron Brown, Chiefs, No. 87 — Has long been the Chiefs' defensive anchor. 265-pounder has become an outstanding pass rusher after two seasons of experimentation at left end of the Vikings' vaunted front four — the guy who gets the quarterback. Extremely quick with upratable power at 6-foot-4 and 230 pounds.

Jim Marshall, Vikings, No. 70 — The smallest of the front four at 6-foot-3 1/2 and 230, and a veteran who makes few mistakes in reading the offensive play.

Tackles

Buck Buchanan, Chiefs, No. 86 — The biggest of the big Chiefs' linemen at 6-foot-7, 277, is a threat to the passing game merely because of his height but also has outstanding talent.

Curley Culp, Chiefs, No. 41 — The newest addition to the front four, despite short stature at 6-foot-1 and 255, has the power to even pass protection.

Alan Page, Vikings, No. 85 — Has the quickness to play end and the strength to play tackle. Which makes him an unusual threat in defensive alignment.

Tommy Letner, Vikings, No. 77 — The policeman of the front four, whose main job is to react to the run so Elmer-Larson can go to the line and cut out the pass. Is 6-foot-5, 255.

Middle Linebackers

Willie Mitchell, Chiefs, No. 23 — Lovett contact, which is his nickname. Has matured in two seasons into outstanding all-around player. Makes all of Chiefs' defensive calls.

Archie Manning, Vikings, No. 59 — Originally a free agent since who laxed for a season while rough edges were honed. Now a smooth-functioning middle man who is a punishing tackler.

Outside Linebackers

Bobby Bell, Chiefs, No. 74 — Has innate athletic ability and the best reflected in his talent on the field — to cover backs on deep pass patterns. Also solid against the run.

Jim Lynch, Chiefs, No. 91 — Like a snail, a young, developing linebacker. A hitter who reads and reacts like one with more experience.

Wally Hilgert, Vikings, No. 58 — Acquired from Detroit. "He's been pleasant surprise this season. Is considered by some as the most vulnerable of Vikings' defenders. Had top game against Cleveland.

Ray Winston, Vikings, No. 40 — Short at 5-foot-11, makes up for it with quickness and toughness. A durable performer with good leadership qualities.

Safeties

Willie Mitchell, Chiefs, No. 23 — The likely starter in place of injured Johnny Robinson. The goal of the 1967 loss to Green Bay looking for redemption, but will be playing in unfamiliar position.

Jim Kearney, Chiefs, No. 44 — An aggressive player with good speed and ability to go for the ball.

Karl Kasulke, Vikings, No. 29 — Another castoff, acquired from Detroit. A steady performer who seldom makes the costly mistake. A good tackler.

Paul Krause, Vikings, No. 22 — Is always around the ball. Reads extremely well and has pass receiver's hands, which very often leads to interceptions.

Cornerbacks

James Marshall, Chiefs, No. 40 — The only rookie in either starting lineup, is a bump-and-run exponent who makes a receiver a tough physical battle.

Emmitt Thomas, Chiefs, No. 18 — Uses his quarterback training to good use in understanding patterns and anticipating plays. Solid one-on-one cover.

Ed Sharrockman, Vikings, No. 45 — Veteran who has replaced younger Bobby Bryant at key spot in defense. Could be object of early motion.

Earsell Mackbee, Vikings, No. 46 — A gambler who will take a chance on an interception when he sees the front rush making "away. A good tackler.

Showdown: Mods vs. the Straights

NEW ORLEANS — Choose sides.

It's the flashy, hirsute mod squad against the crew-cut straight guys in today's Super Bowl football game, and there's no way to be neutral.

You gotta have soul,

MARSHALL, MAY Hair-Raiser in Store

man," says Carl Eller, the 6-6, 255-pound terror of Minnesota's front four.

Eller is effecting an Afro-American haircut, a hint of a mustache and a reputation as the fanciest dan in all professional football. Man, you ought to see his green silk underwear.

"Discipline, dedication, duty — they're our three D's," says Hank Stram, the articulate little ring-

master of the Kansas City Chiefs.

Look at Jerry Mays, Kansas City's giant defensive end. He is clean shaven. He has a short, neat haircut. He looks like an overgrown boy scout — that is, until he tears into an enemy's backfield.

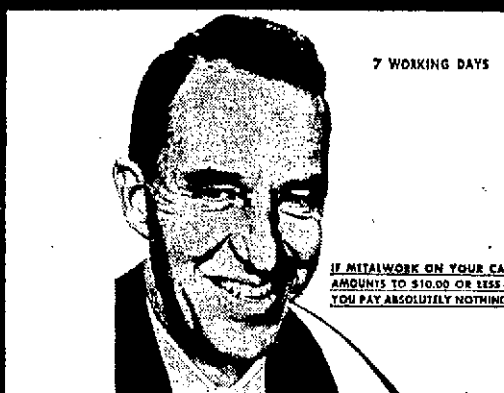

"I use my own sideburns as a gauge," says Stram, whose sideburns grow down only as far as the middle of his ear. "If anybody's hair gets any longer, he's in trouble.

"No mustaches, goatees or long hair. We have a strict $500 fine for violations."

Bud Grant, lean, graying mild-mannered head coach of the Vikings, says: "We demand that our athletes look and deport themselves properly at all times. We have no strict rules on personal freedoms."

Jim Marshall, the 248-pound defensive end from Ohio State, has a mustache and is cultivating a nice growth of mut-ton chops.

CHIEFS' DAWSON . . . FLAWLESS GAME?

'Lenny the Cool' to Face Doubters

New York Times Service

NEW ORLEANS — In today's Super Bowl game, Len Dawson will be playing in the shadow of a doubt.

Inside his red Kansas City Chief's helmet, the 34-year-old quarterback's ice-blue eyes will dominate his boyishly handsome features. His expressionless face will add to the strange stare of those eyes. His teammates have called him "Lenny the Cool" for years, but today the heat will be on his cool as never before.

Dawson has acknowledged a "casual acquaintance" for 10 years with a Michigan restaurateur, Donald Dawson, who was arrested by federal agents a week ago with $450,000 in checks and various gambling records.

The restaurateur, no relation to the quarterback, has been implicated in a nationwide investigation into sports gambling.

Since then, the quarterback has been defended by his friends as a "perfect gentleman" and even as a "puritan," but today before a capacity crowd of 81,000 at the Super Bowl game and a television audience of perhaps 60 million, his integrity will be judged not so much by his reputation as by his performance.

If he is intercepted or fumbles, the suspicions of the cynics will be nourished. Even an incomplete, if the pass-receiver is in the clear, will be viewed with a smirk by some. To avoid criticism, he must produce an almost flawless game.

Rams Score 'Foul' Win

Warren High committed a staggering total of 32 fouls in a futile effort to slow down Millikan High Saturday night before the Rams managed a 83-66 win in Downey.

The Bears played the final 27 seconds with only four players on the court due to the excessive fouling. Millikan, now 14-2 this season, scored 20 points in the fourth quarter on free throws.

Warren got off to a 11-5 lead before Millikan rallied on the combined efforts of Richard Plante, Tony Martineck, Dave Frost and Dan Peters, all of whom wound up in double figures.

Warren (44) defeated Millikan (32) 83-66 Saturday night. Warren's (44) victory was a 11-5 lead before Millikan rallied on the combined efforts of Richard Plante, Tony Martineck, Dave Frost and Dan Peters, all of whom wound up in double figures.

'Swinger' Digs Vike 5's Style

By DAVE DANIEL
Staff Writer

Tom Motley is a swinger, but not in the "classical" sense.

Motley is the 6-3 forward guard for Long Beach City College's 13-2 basketball team. His job requires double duty at two positions and he's known as the "swing man," among other things. "I really like the offense," the former St. Anthony star said. "It fits our style of play because all of our players are quick enough to play it."

Motley is coming off his finest game of the season against Bakersfield Tuesday night when he scored 13 points and was credited with nine assists while playing the best defense on the floor.

But it's been a long time coming this season. Motley, who won Long Beach's prep co-player of the year award with Chuck Terry in 1968, has been battling mononucleosis all season.

As a freshman, he started in 24 of LBCC's 28 games and was one of the steady performers on that 23-5 team. His play has been hampered by his health this season, but he has started every game.

"I'm playing far below par," he admits, "but I'm coming around gradually now. I could play hard for only five or six minutes. It sapped all my strength and I couldn't get my second wind."

His performance Tuesday would indicate he's ready for the Vikings' toughest week of season next week. "It will make or break the season for us," he said.

"If we get through those games, Coach (Lute) Olson said he didn't want to see us for a week and not to touch a basketball during the break."

THE VIKINGS, ranked third in the state, play road games at Pierce (No. 11) Tuesday and Santa Monica (No. 17) Saturday. Friday night LBCC hosts No. 2 Pasadena, the defending state champion. Then no games are slated until Jan. 30.

"Actually, we have the best schedule," Motley said. "We get the tough teams at home in the second round, except for Pasadena, which we get at home the first round — which is the one we have to win."

Called "Hurricane" by his teammates ("because I move down the court with reckless abandon," he says, tongue-in-cheek) Motley describes his "swing" duties:

"It's a tough position — especially on defense. I usually get the best offensive man of the forwards and guards on the other team. One night it will be a forward and next night I'll be out front, trying to stop a drive."

"On a forward, it's position that counts. Out front, it's speed and reflexes. Lately, I've been reaching a lot and have been getting burned so I try to use my feet for position instead."

Tolan, Egan in Medical Benefit Game at Blair

Outfielder Bobby Tolán of the Cincinnati Reds and catcher Tom Egan of the Angels will join the Major League All-Star roster for the Medical Benefit game against the Dodgers at Blair Field Sunday, Feb. 1.

Proceeds go to the medical fund of the Southern California Baseball Assn. to help cover expenses of players injured in the SCBA's semipro and amateur leagues.

George Anderson, Cincinnati's new manager, is expected to pilot the All-Stars while Tom Lasorda, manager of the Dodgers' Spokane farm club, will handle the varsity club.

'Swinger' Digs Vike 5's Style

By DAVE DANIEL
Staff Writer

Tom Motley is a swinger, but not in the "classical" sense.

Motley is the 6-3 forward guard for Long Beach City College's 13-2 basketball team. His job requires double duty at

MOTLEY two positions and he's known as the "swing man," among other things. "I really like the offense," the former St. Anthony star said. "It fits our style of play because all of our players are quick enough to play it."

Motley is coming off his finest game of the season against Bakersfield Tuesday night when he scored 13 points and was credited with nine assists while playing the best defense on the floor.

But it's been a long time coming this season. Motley, who won Long Beach's prep co-player of the year award with Chuck Terry in 1968, has been battling mononucleosis all season.

As a freshman, he started in 24 of LBCC's 28 games and was one of the steady performers on that 23-5 team. His play has been hampered by his health this season, but he has started every game.

"I'm playing far below par," he admits, "but I'm coming around gradually now. I could play hard for only five or six minutes. It sapped all my strength and I couldn't get my second wind."

His performance Tuesday would indicate he's ready for the Vikings' toughest week of season next week. "It will make or break the season for us," he said.

"If we get through those games, coach (Late) Olson said he didn't want to see us for a week and not to touch a basketball during the break."

THE VIKINGS, ranked third in the state, play road games at Pierce (No. 11) Tuesday and Santa Monica (No. 17) Saturday. Friday night LBCC hosts No. 2 Pasadena, the defending state champion. Then no games are slated until Jan. 30.

"Actually, we have the best schedule," Motley said. "We get the tough teams at home in the second round, except for Pasadena, which we get at home the first round — which is the one we have to win."

Called "Hurricane" by his teammates ("because I move down the court with reckless abandon," he says, tongue-in-cheek) Motley describes his "swing" duties:

"It's a tough position — especially on defense. I usually get the best offensive man of the forwards and guards on the other team. One night it will be a forward and next night I'll be out front, trying to stop a drive."

"On a forward, it's position that counts. Out front, it's speed and reflexes. Lately, I've been reaching a lot and have been getting burned so I try to use my feet for position instead."

Tolan, Egan in Medical Benefit Game at Blair

Outfielder Bobby Tolán of the Cincinnati Reds and catcher Tom Egan of the Angels will join the Major League All-Star roster for the Medical Benefit game against the Dodgers at Blair Field Sunday, Feb. 1.

Proceeds go to the medical fund of the Southern California Baseball Assn. to help cover expenses of players injured in the SCBA's semipro and amateur leagues.

George Anderson, Cincinnati's new manager, is expected to pilot the All-Stars while Tom Lasorda, manager of the Dodgers' Spokane farm club, will handle the varsity club.

Winter's Chill Grips 36 States

By DON HASTINGS
Staff Writer

Bitter cold spread misery across much of the nation, caused numerous deaths, hampered travel and taxed power and fuel-transmission systems. The subzero cold dipped deep into the South and record lows in 36 states east of the Rockies periled fruit and vegetable crops.

The Nation

TWENTY-ONE AGED PATIENTS DIED Friday night as fire swept through a Marietta, Ohio, nursing home. Nineteen other patients and two firemen were injured. Zero-degree cold hampered firemen who had to heat frozen hydrants to fight the blaze.

THE BODIES OF MINE UNION leader Joseph A. (Jack) Yablonski, his wife, Margaret, and daughter, Charlotte, were found in their home on the outskirts of Clarksville, Ohio. There was speculation the shooting deaths of the three were linked to a bitter power struggle within the United Mine Workers Union. Yablonski was defeated, 2-1, by incumbent UMW President W. A. (Tony) Boyle in an election in December. He charged irregularities and petitioned the Labor Department to impound the ballots, but his request was denied. After the slayings, Secretary of Labor Charles P. Shultz announced there will be a full investigation of the election.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INTEGRATION was carried out peacefully, but not too effectively in a dozen Mississippi districts. Hundreds of white students remained home the first week of the court-ordered desegregation and in many communities arrangements were being made to open private schools for them. Classes resume in other Mississippi districts during the next two weeks.

AN INQUEST WAS HELD into the death of Washington secretary Mary Jo Kopechne, who drowned when a car in which she was riding and driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., plunged off a bridge and into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island, Mass. Witnesses at the secret hearing in Edgartown, Mass., included Kennedy, other persons at a party attended by the senator and Miss Kopechne before the fatal accident, police officers, county coroner and the diver who recovered the woman's body. Dist. Court Judge James A. Boyle, who conducted the inquest, said he will announce his findings after reviewing the transcript of testimony.

THE FIRST FAMILY ended a brief California vacation Thursday by registering in Santa Ana as Orange County voters. President Nixon, Mrs. Nixon and their daughter, Tricia, changed their voting residence from New York City to the White House West city of San Clemente. The Nixons then flew to Washington. On Friday, the President observed his 57th birthday at a dinner in the apartment of his other daughter, Julie, and her husband, David Eisenhower.

AFTER A WEEK OF MEDICAL tests, Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., announced he is in excellent health, has no recurrence of the cancer removed from his throat three years ago and will conduct a strenuous campaign for re-election. Rep. John V. Tunney, D-River-side, said he will run against Murphy.

CALIFORNIA'S LEGISLATURE convened its 1970 session last week. Senators and assemblymen elected officer, began work on an anticipated 3,000 legislative measures and heard Gov. Ronald Reagan call for an all-out fight against pollution and for more economy in government. In his State of the State message, Reagan stressed the need to protect the environment and said "we should be more concerned with the next generation than the next election."

THREE ASTRONAUTS, including Apollo 12 moon walker Alan Bean, were grounded for one month for flight rules infractions while piloting jet aircraft. The others disciplined were Apollo 7 astronaut Walter Cunningham and scientist-astronaut Joseph Kerwin.

EXTENSION OF THE FOOD STAMP program to New York City and 210 other cities and counties in 30 states was announced by the Department of Agriculture.

TRAFFIC DEATHS OVER THE four-day New Year's holiday were only slightly above the normal toll for a comparable nonholiday period, the National Safety Council reported Monday. The national total was 479.

The World

The worst flu epidemic to hit Britain since 1951 appeared to be getting more severe as the death toll climbed. A total of 4,185 deaths were recorded in six weeks, 2,400 of them in the week ended Jan. 3, the Ministry of Health reported. Undertakers said Friday it would take at least 10 days to handle the backlog of unburied bodies.

FRANCE AGREED TO SELL 50 Mirage warplanes to the revolutionary government in Libya with the first 15 to be delivered in 1971. The contract forbids transfer of the aircraft to other nations, a prospect feared by Israel.

RUSSIA CONTINUED its buildup of naval power in the Mediterranean last week. A helicopter-carrying heavy cruiser and three destroyer escorts traversed the Bosphorus, bringing to 40 the number of vessels in the Soviet Mediterranean fleet, the most assembled since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

AMBASSADORIAL-LEVEL TALKS between the United States and Red China suspended for two years, will resume in Warsaw Jan. 20, the State Department announced last week. Resumption was agreed upon at a meeting between China's charge d'affaires in Warsaw, Lei Yang, and U.S. Ambassador Walter Stoessel. The United States wants to discuss ways of increasing contacts with Communist China through exchanges of scientists, reporters and scholars. China has indicated a desire to discuss "principles of co-existence."

A FRENCH-SPEAKING GUNMAN hijacked a TWA jetliner with 20 persons aboard while on a flight from Paris to Rome Friday. He forced the pilot to fly to Beirut, Lebanon. Lebanese authorities arrested the hijacker as he left the plane. In Spain, a student who tried to hijack an airliner to Albania surrendered to police after they surrounded the plane on the runway at Zaragoza and threatened to kill him. In the U.S., a Delta Air Lines pilot of a jetliner threw a knife-wielding hijacker off balance by making an intentionally rough landing and a passenger pounced on him.

U.S. REPORT DISCOUNTS IMPACT OF STRIKES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new government study of three longshoremen's strikes adds weight to a conclusion that the economic impact of strikes on the nation are usually "seriously exaggerated."

The Labor Department study concluded that the 1962-63, 1965 and 1968-69 East and Gulf Coast maritime strikes appear to "have had minimal national economic impact."

"The strikes had no visible impact on the U.S. economy as a whole—industrial production, retail sales, national income or total employment," the report said.

"In general, U.S. foreign trade patterns during and after these three periods failed to reveal any long-run effects which could be directly attributed to the strikes."

The study's findings were similar to those in a 1961 Labor Department study of collective bargaining in the steel industry. A major conclusion of the 1961 report was that "the economic impact of strikes on the economy are usually seriously exaggerated."

Labor Secretary George P. Shultz briefly mentioned the latest study when he briefed newsmen on his first year in office. The Taft-Hartley law was used in all three cases to get an 80-day cooling-off period.

Schultz does not favor government intervention into labor disputes except as a mediator. The only time the Nixon administration has intervened in a labor dispute so far was when President Nixon, at Shultz' request, used the Railway Labor Act to stall a possible strike by four rail shopcraft unions in October.

The labor secretary's mention of the longshore strike study in advance of its formal release Saturday appeared to be an indication that he will be more reluctant in the future to use the Taft-Hartley law or Railway Labor Act to prevent temporarily a strike, despite arguments a walkout in a major industry would be a national emergency.

The longshore strikes were from Dec. 23, 1942, to Jan. 27, 1953; from Jan. 11 to March 6, 1965; and from Dec. 20, 1968, to various dates between Feb. 15 and April 13, 1969, depending on location.

The report said the strikes did not appear to generate any shortages of materials or components, except for sugar cane and spare parts for foreign automobiles. Many firms stocked up on imported supplies before the strike deadline, especially during the cooling-off period. While the national impart of the strikes were minimal, the report said the walkouts had "severe or even disastrous impacts on some small immediate port neighborhoods and businesses and on many individuals."

"The most visible impact of a longshore strike is on the ocean-going fleet and its workers," it added. The Maritime Administration estimated U.S. merchant seamen lost about $21 million in wages, and that the costs to shipowners was about $1 million a day at the peak of the 1969 strike.

The report said the strikes did not appear to generate any shortages of materials or components, except for sugar cane and spare parts for foreign automobiles. Many firms stocked up on imported supplies before the strike deadline, especially during the cooling-off period.

pect of the strikes were minimal, the report said the walkouts had "severe or even disastrous impacts on some small immediate port neighborhoods and businesses and on many individuals."

CITY WILL HONOR THEM 21 Heroes on Parade

By BILL HOMER
Staff Writer

January 16, 1969, was a nice day in Long Beach. A smattering of clouds dotted an otherwise clear sky, the temperature reached a comfortable, 67-degree winter-time high, and two John Muir Elementary School pupils became heroes.

Anthony Bruce Sellers and Danny O'Neill — school-mates and good friends — were playing in Danny's front yard that Thursday afternoon when they noticed two other youngsters breaking into the home of a neighbor.

The action taken by Bruce, 11, and Danny, 9, was to win them the admiration of their families, the community and the Long Beach Police Department, which will present Certificates of Community Service to the young men and 19 other persons Wednesday.

The presentations will be at an Elks Club luncheon. Danny is the son of Eugene and Vivian O'Neill, of 3248 Fashion Ave. Bruce is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Leonidas Sellers, of 1301 W. 32nd St.

Bruce, whose mother, Valeria, admitted she's proud as punch of her son, met with The Independent, Press-Telegram in the company of his father, a St. Mary's Hospital pathologist, and with Mrs. Sellers, Danny and Mrs. O'Neill to discuss the incident that won him and his sidekick the community service award.

"We saw these two kids ride their bikes over to the house where a friend of ours used to live," said Bruce and Danny, who are the youngest persons in the city's history to win the service certificate.

"But what was strange was that a couple of minutes later we noticed they'd hidden their bikes in some bushes," Bruce continued.

"Then Bruce climbed over the back fence and saw the boys — one a little younger than me and the other a little older than Bruce — had gotten into the house through the back door," Danny continued.

Bruce called for the boys to come out, a chase and brief struggle ensued, and, as the neighbor returned, Danny and Bruce collared the youthful burglars, who were placed under arrest by police.

Investigating officers said it was likely the suspects were responsible for numerous other burglaries in the neighborhood.

"It is gratifying to know that young citizens such as Bruce Sellers and Danny O'Neill have such a strong feeling of civic duty (that they) volunteered their efforts to assist the police," a police department spokesman said.

Danny, a fourth grader, and Bruce, who is in the sixth grade, credit their parents with helping them develop a strong sense of community pride and civic responsibility.

Both youngsters have their eyes set on the future. Danny wants to be a scientist when he gets out of college, and Bruce said he wants to follow in his father's footsteps and become a physician.

"I'm kind of nervous about going to the awards luncheon," Bruce admitted. But Danny, when asked if he had any qualms about getting up in front of all those people to receive his award only admitted "I sure hate to get dressed up."

Other Certificate of Community Service award winners are:

George Ambrow, of 2865 San Francisco Ave., and Jerry D. Mantlo, who, while members of the Polytechnic High School baseball team, apprehended a purse snatcher near Anaheim and Raymond Streets last April 11. Ambrow and Mantlo have since graduated from Poly.

Morris Avzaradel, of 730 Carmel Ave., Seal Beach, and Robin E. Wyant, of 12042 Rendova St., Artesia, who on Jan. 7, 1969, also collared a purse snatcher.

L.B. Neglect Invites Strife, Council Told

By MICHAEL KRUGLAK
Staff Writer

Long Beach has been spared the violence that hit so many other U.S. cities, but the potential for similar trouble is there, a local civil rights leader has warned the city council.

Richard Harris, executive director of the Community Improvement League, said that "too many factors — visible to all who have eyes to see — are present in our midst to allow a complacent attitude about our relative 'calm.'"

Harris addressed the council last week in behalf of the Community Improvement League, the Legal Aid Society and the Long Beach Family Service, pleading for more opportunities for the city's minorities.

HARRIS OUTLINED the "classic symptoms which have preceded civil strife in other cities" that exist in Long Beach:

— Poverty, among the aged as well as in the minority community.

— Rigid segregation in housing. Linking Long Beach with Compton-Wilbrook-Watts in a "vast, separatist 'black belt.'"

Housing problems, he said, include low standards, high rents, a scarcity of new, moderately priced homes, inadequate code enforcement in substandard housing combined with excessive rents, and inadequate rodent and pest control.

— Education — "Enrollment and dropout of pupils as a result of depressed home life and despair of equal employment opportunities."

Other school problems include disaffection of students with educational institutions, which they judge to be mirrors of an oppressive society, he said.

"These schools suppress the cultural heritage of minorities and erect communications barriers between school personnel and members of the minority community, both students and parents, he charged.

— Inadequate recreational opportunities for youth, a shortage of "resources for social fulfillment," including job training opportunities, and an even worse shortage of decent jobs for "hard core" youth.

— Employment. "A lack of coordination between 'hard-core' unemployed and sources of recruitment for jobs from employers, resulting in job vacancies and unemployment at the same time."

Other problems of employment, Harris said, include the need for effective job training, the need to gear for a non-war economy, the threat of automation, and finally, under-employment of competent minority people.

— Legal concerns, including the difficulty of the poor in getting adequate legal counsel, and the prevalence of vice and crime in some minority neighborhoods.

— The scarcity of medical care for the poor "in a

Anaheim Trims Sex Education

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

A drastically-revised sex education program will be offered by the Anaheim Union High School District to only three grades next semester.

The district's board of trustees overhauled the course of instruction and decided to limit it to the seventh, 10th and 12th grades.

They explained why:

Theoretically, the seventh grade is the time boys and girls reach puberty, and begin to be cognizant of their sex; the 10th grade is about when they begin dating; and the 12th grade, or senior year, is when they must chart their futures beyond high school.

THE ANAHEIM system of instruction in sex education and family life is drastically different from the original program started by Anaheim five years ago, and extending into all grades of junior high and the high schools.

So much controversy developed around this program of instruction that the embattled school board found it could do little other than defend itself. So it scrapped the program last September at start of this school year.

Much of the material in the sharply curtailed sex education program is drawn from the original curriculum.

It will be offered as non-mandatory courses in 15 junior high schools and eight senior high schools in the Anaheim system at the spring semester beginning next month.

Trustees clinched the schedule and the curriculum on a 3-to-2 vote ending an after-midnight executive session of the school board Saturday.

CSLB Faculty Votes 5 Students to Academic Unit

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

A long campaign to give students full voting rights on the Academic Senate at California State College at Long Beach will yield results next month when five students take their seats on the faculty legislative body.

The CSLB faculty voted 2-1 to place five voting students on the senate in mail balloting tallied late Friday.

A student election in early February will tab three students to join Associated Students president Ken Miller and vice president Don Alaimo on the senate.

Miller and Alaimo had non-voting senate privileges previously. The Associated Students had already gained voting membership on almost all major faculty committees.

Miller said the election results indicated the faculty is willing "to make the necessary changes which will make CSLB a real community of learning with an interchange of thoughts and ideas between all members of the academic community."

He said the vote showed that change "does not have to be accomplished by demonstrations, demands and disruption," but rather that "rational discussion and co-operation can do more than all the disruption in the world."

But Miller added that students should ask for even more voting representatives in the future. He also said non-tenured, junior faculty should be made eligible for election to the senate.

On Friday, the senate turned back a move to make junior faculty eligible to run for senate seats. Its members defeated a proposal to put that question on another all-faculty ballot.

About 40 per cent of the faculty — those who have not taught at CSLB four years and gained tenure — are presently disenfranchised from the Academic Senate.

PICKETS BOYCOTT LOCAL G.E. GOODS

Four pickets and leafleters brought the 13-union, 2½-month-old strike and boycott against General Electric home to Long Beach Saturday.

They picketed Long Beach Electric Co., 335 Long Beach Blvd., asking customers and passersby not to buy GE and Hot-point products.

The pickets, who identified themselves as members of the Long Beach International Socialists, emphasized they had no grievance against the store itself.

Some senate members had also opposed placing students on the senate on the grounds that it was meant to be a faculty-only governing body.

But Miller noted the senate makes decisions on matters that strongly affect students and the entire college.

He said the drive to gain student membership on the senate began with A. S. president Dennis Murray two years ago. Last year, A. S. president Rex Gay proposed an all-college senate of half-students and half-faculty to govern the campus.

Miller said that students "who have traditionally criticized faculty governance for not making relevant choices about students must now silence their criticism, and realize that faculty governance, at least on our campus, is concerned with cooperating with students" to bring about change.

Free Clinic Gets Lift via Insurance

The Long Beach Free Clinic received a boost Saturday in its drive to recruit volunteer doctors with the procurement of malpractice insurance.

Ron Lofstrom, clinic administrator, explained that recent donations have enabled the clinic to make a $200 down payment on the insurance, which will cost $1,500 a year.

Between 50 and 100 doctors have refused to work at the clinic until it obtained malpractice insurance, Lofstrom said.

"Now that we have the insurance, we hope some of the doctors who were wary will agree to help out. We had 310 patients seeking medical aid during the first week we were open in 1970. Nine doctors helped out that week, but we need about 15 a week to process that many patients," he added.

Lofstrom said the clinic obtained the malpractice insurance at a lower cost than a private physician would have to pay, because of a special arrangement made by Ingham, Coates & Payne Insurance Co. in Pasadena.

"All we hope for now is that we will receive enough contributions from the community to allow us to keep the insurance," Lofstrom said.

Burglars Get Purse

Burglars forced open a kitchen door at the home of Ella Mae Sisemore, of 2823 E. 64th Street, and fled with a purse containing $200 in cash, police reported Saturday.

Schoolmen Struggle to Trim Budget by $4 Million

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

Long Beach's 5,000 teaching and non-instructional employees this week are wrestling with a tough, painful question put to them by top administrators:

How — if ultimately it proves necessary — can $4 million be trimmed from next year's operating budget while inflicting the least possible damage to a respected educational system?

In the past such a question would have been left exclusively to ranking educators and their supervising Board of Education. Now in the wake of an agreement reached Dec. 17 between officialdom and Teachers Association of Long Beach, everyone in the 80-school system is being asked to submit his or her best judgments by Friday.

Not included is City College, where current estimates indicate sufficient funding is available.

This fiscal crisis is no new thing. Last May Supt. W. Odie Wright warned that in the absence of a massive dollar transfusion from Sacramento, educational muscle of necessity would be sliced in 1970-71.

To date that aid has not materialized.

If, officials say, a constitutional amendment requiring the state to pay an average 50 per cent of local school costs gets on a June ballot, and if it then is approved by the electorate, and if the legislature moves quickly to appropriate funds — the day here and in other dollar-pinched districts across the state — will be solved.

If, if, if. . .

The first hurdle may already have been jumped, although firm, accurate tallies of the numbers signing amendment petitions remains unknown for another two weeks. Teacher Association officials here and in Los Angeles cautiously express belief however, that the required 500,000-plus names were properly registered.

Long Beach topped its 15,000 name quota by over 8,000, says TALB's executive director, James H. Moore.

Final statewide totals apparently will not be available before late this month when they are certified correct by the Secretary of State in Sacramento.

With next year's income in murky question today, "sound fiscal management and planning for an orderly school opening in September 1970 prevent further delay" in planning possible cuts, wrote the district's two associate superintendents in a memo distributed last week to all employees.

"We would prefer to 'wait and see' about our income," said Mrs. Vernon A. Hinz and Francis Laufenberg, but:

"Master programs must be formulated for the high schools. Certificated and classified assignments must be adjusted to program decisions. Hiring, purchasing and other business must proceed.

"Many decisions about major budget cuts must be reached by the beginning of the second semester" — now but four weeks in the future — "so that prepara-

CITY WILL HONOR THEM 21 Heroes on Parade

By BILL HOMER Staff Writer

January 16, 1969, was a nice day in Long Beach. A smattering of clouds dotted an otherwise clear sky, the temperature reached a comfortable, 67-degree winter-time high, and two John Muir Elementary School pupils became heroes.

Anthony Bruce Sellers and Danny O'Neill — school-mates and good friends — were playing in Danny's front yard that Thursday afternoon when they noticed two other youngsters breaking into the home of a neighbor.

The action taken by Bruce, 11, and Danny, 9, was to win them the admiration of their families, the community and the Long Beach Police Department, which will present Certificates of Community Service to the young men and 19 other persons Wednesday.

The presentations will be at an Elks Club luncheon. Danny is the son of Eugene and Vivian O'Neill, of 3248 Fashion Ave. Bruce is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Leonidas Sellers, of 1301 W. 32nd St.

Bruce, whose mother, Valeria, admitted she's proud as punch of her son, met with The Independent, Press-Telegram in the company of his father, a St. Mary's Hospital pathologist, and with Mrs. Sellers, Danny and Mrs. O'Neill to discuss the incident that won him and his sidekick the community service award.

"We saw these two kids ride their bikes over to the house where a friend of ours used to live," said Bruce and Danny, who are the youngest persons in the city's history to win the service certificate.

"But what was strange was that a couple of minutes later we noticed they'd hidden their bikes in some bushes," Bruce continued.

"Then Bruce climbed over the back fence and saw the boys — one a little younger than me and the other a little older than Bruce — had gotten into the house through the back door," Danny continued.

Bruce called for the boys to come out, a chase and brief struggle ensued, and, as the neighbor returned, Danny and Bruce collared the youthful burglars, who were placed under arrest by police.

Investigating officers said it was likely the suspects were responsible for numerous other burglaries in the neighborhood.

"It is gratifying to know that young citizens such as Bruce Sellers and Danny O'Neill have such a strong feeling of civic duty (that they) volunteered their efforts to assist the police," a police department spokesman said.

Danny, a fourth grader, and Bruce, who is in the sixth grade, credit their parents with helping them develop a strong sense of community pride and civic responsibility.

Both youngsters have their eyes set on the future. Danny wants to be a scientist when he gets out of college, and Bruce said he wants to follow in his father's footsteps and become a physician.

"I'm kind of nervous about going to the awards luncheon," Bruce admitted. But Danny, when asked if he had any qualms about getting up in front of all those people to receive his award only admitted "I sure hate to get dressed up."

Other Certificate of Community Service award winners are:

George Ambrow, of 2866 San Francisco Ave., and Jerry D. Mantlo, who, while members of the Polytechnic High School baseball team apprehended a purse snatcher near Anaheim and Raymond Streets last April 11. Ambro and Mantlo have since graduated from Poly.

Morris Avzaradel, of 730 Carmel Ave., Seal Beach, and Robin E. Wyant, of 12042 Rendova St., Artesia, who on Jan. 7, 1969, also collared a purse snatcher.

L.B. Neglect Invites Strife, Council Told

By MICHAEL KRUGLAK Staff Writer

Long Beach has been spared the violence that hit so many other U.S. cities, but the potential for similar trouble is there, a local civil rights leader has warned the city council.

Richard Harris, executive director of the Community Improvement League, said that "too many factors — visible to all who have eyes to see — are present in our midst to allow a complacent attitude about our relative 'calm'."

Harris addressed the council last week in behalf of the Community Improvement League, the Legal Aid Society and the Long Beach Family Service, pleading for more opportunities for the city's minorities.

HARRIS OUTLINED the "classic symptoms which have preceded civil strife in other cities" that exist in Long Beach:

— Poverty, among the aged as well as in the minority community.

— Rigid segregation in housing, linking Long Beach with Compton-Wilowbrook-Watts in a "vast, separatist 'black belt.'"

Housing problems, he said, include low standards, high rents, a scarcity of new, moderately priced homes, inadequate code enforcement in sub-standard housing combined with excessive rents, and inadequate rodent and pest control.

— Education — "Futility and dropout of pupils as a result of depressed home

Anaheim Trims Sex Education

By BOB GEIVET Staff Writer

A drastically-revised sex education program will be offered by the Anaheim Union High School District to only three grades next semester.

The district's board of trustees overhauled the course of instruction and decided to limit it to the seventh, 10th and 12th grades.

They explained why: "Theoretically, the seventh grade is the time boys and girls reach puberty, and begin to be cognizant of their sex; the 10th grade is about when they begin dating; and the 12th grade, or senior year, is when they must chart their futures beyond high school."

THE ANAHEIM system of instruction in sex education and family life is drastically different from the original program started by Anaheim five years ago, and extending into all grades of junior high and the high schools.

So much controversy developed around this program of instruction that the embattled school board found it could do little other than defend itself. So it scrapped the program last September at start of this school year.

Much of the material in the sharply curtailed sex education program is drawn from the original curriculum.

It will be offered as non-mandatory courses in 15 junior high schools and eight senior high schools in the Anaheim system at the spring semester beginning next month.

Trustees clinched the schedule and the curriculum on a 3-to-2 vote ending an after-midnight executive session of the school board Saturday.

CSLB Faculty Votes 5 Students to Academic Unit

By WALT MURRAY Staff Writer

A long campaign to give students full voting rights on the Academic Senate at California State College at Long Beach will yield results next month when five students take their seats on the faculty legislative body.

The CSLB faculty voted 2-1 to place five voting students on the senate in mail balloting tallied late Friday.

A student election in early February will tab three students to join Associated Students president Ken Miller and vice president Don Alaimo on the senate.

Miller and Alaimo had non-voting senate privileges previously. The Associated Students had already gained voting membership on almost all major faculty committees.

Miller said the election results indicated the faculty is willing "to make the necessary changes which will make CSLB a real community of learning with an interchange of thoughts and ideas between all members of the academic community."

He said the vote showed that change "does not have to be accomplished by demonstrations, demands and disruption," but rather that "rational discussion and cooperation can do more than all the disruption in the world."

But Miller added that students should ask for even more voting representatives in the future. He also said non-tenured, junior faculty should be made eligible for election to the senate.

On Friday, the senate turned back a move to make junior faculty eligible to run for senate seats. Its members defeated a proposal to put that question on another all-faculty ballot.

About 40 per cent of the faculty — those who have not taught at CSLB four years and gained tenure — are presently disenfranchised from the Academic Senate.

PICKETS BOYCOTT LOCAL G.E. GOODS

Four pickets and leaflet-brought the 13-union, 2½-month-old strike and boycott against General Electric home to Long Beach Saturday.

They picketed Long Beach Electric Co., 335 Long Beach Blvd., asking customers and passersby not to buy GE and Hot-point products.

The pickets, who identified themselves as members of the Long Beach International Socialists, emphasized they had no grievance against the store itself.

Some senate members had also opposed placing students on the senate on the grounds that it was meant to be a faculty-only governing body.

But Miller noted the senate makes decisions on matters that strongly affect students and the entire college.

He said the drive to gain student membership on the senate began with A. S. president Dennis Murray two years ago. Last year, A. S. president Rex Gay proposed an all-college senate of half-students and half-faculty to govern the campus.

Miller said that students "who have traditionally criticized faculty governance for not making relevant choices about students must now silence their criticism and realize that faculty governance, at least on our campus, is concerned with cooperating with students" to bring about change.

Free Clinic Gets Lift via Insurance

The Long Beach Free Clinic received a boost Saturday in its drive to recruit volunteer doctors with the procurement of malpractice insurance.

Ron Lofstrom, clinic administrator, explained that recent donations have enabled the clinic to make a $200 down payment on the insurance, which will cost $1,500 a year.

Between 50 and 100 doctors have refused to work at the clinic until it obtained malpractice insurance, Lofstrom said.

"Now, that we have the insurance, we hope some of the doctors who were wary will agree to help out. We had 310 patients seeking medical aid during the first week we were open in 1970. Nine doctors helped out that week, but we need about 15 a week to process that many patients," he added.

Lofstrom said the clinic obtained the malpractice insurance at a lower cost than a private physician would have to pay, because of a special arrangement made by Ingham, Coates & Payne Insurance Co. in Pasadena.

"All we hope for now is that we will receive enough contributions from the community to allow us to keep the insurance," Lofstrom said.

Schoolmen Struggle to Trim Budget by $4 Million

By RALPH HINMAN JR. Education Editor

VERNON A. HINZ

Long Beach's 5,000 teaching and non instructional employees this week are wrestling with a tough, painful question put to them by top administrators:

How — if ultimately it proves necessary — can $4 million be trimmed from next year's operating budget while inflicting the least possible damage to a respected educational system?

In the past such a question would have been left exclusively to ranking educators and their supervising Board of Education. Now in the wake of an agreement reached Dec. 17 between officialdom and Teachers Association of Long Beach, everyone in the 80-school system is being asked to submit his or her best judgments by Friday.

Not included is City College, where current estimates indicate sufficient funding is available.

This fiscal crisis is no new thing. Last May Supl. W. Odie Wright warned that in the absence of a massive dollar transfusion from Sacramento, educational muscle of necessity would be sliced in 1970-71.

To date that aid has not materialized.

If, officials say, a constitutional amendment requiring the state to pay an average 50 per cent of local school costs gets on a June ballot, and if it then is approved by the electorate, and if the legislature moves quickly to appropriate funds — the day here and in other dollar pinched districts across the state — will be solved.

500,000-plus names were properly registered.

Long Beach topped its 15,000 name quota by over 8,000, says TALB's executive director, James H. Moore.

Final statewide totals apparently will not be available before late this month when they are certified correct by the Secretary of State in Sacramento.

With next year's income in murky question today, "sound fiscal management and planning for an orderly school opening in September 1970 prevent further delay" in planning possible cuts, wrote the district's two associate superintendents in a memo distributed last week to all employees.

"We would prefer to 'wait and see' about our income," said Mrs. Vernon A. Hinz and Francis Laufenberg, but:

"Master programs must be formulated for the high schools. Certificated and classified assignments must be adjusted to program decisions. Hiring, purchasing and other business must proceed.

"Many decisions about major budget cuts must be reached by the beginning of the second semester" — now but four weeks in the future — "so that prepara-

The inquest told us this:

AN INQUEST into the death of a girl named Mary Jo Kopechne ended last week at Edgartown, Mass. The presiding judge said he would weigh the case carefully before writing his report.

Even when the result of the inquest is announced many questions will remain unanswered. This is because the hearing has been conducted in secret under an order from the supreme court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Not only has the transcript of testimony been sealed but the witnesses are under court order not to reveal what they said under oath. What the press has been able to pull through the curtain of secrecy has come to us in general terms. There is no way to judge authenticity of various reports.

Prior to the inquest millions of words were printed and broadcast about the case. A week after the fatal event Sen. Edward M. Kennedy told a national television audience that he and Miss Kopechne attended a party in a cottage on Chappaquiddick Island, which is separated by a channel from Edgartown, a community of 1200 on the island of Martha's Vineyard.

HE SAID THAT as the hour grew late he offered to drive Miss Kopechne to the ferry which transits the channel between Chappaquiddick and Edgartown, that he found himself on an unfamiliar road and his car plunged off the ramp of a bridge on Poucha Pond. Neither he nor two companions who later returned to the scene of the tragedy could, in repeated dives, recover the girl's body from the car. These things the senator said on his telecast.

Of all the words published and broadcast since then not one literal quotation has been spoken under oath. What we have on the record is a wild array of rumor, gossip, conjecture, fiction, indirect quotation and speculation about a tragedy in which one of the two central figures was, and may be again, a prime potential candidate for the White House.

The announced results of a secret inquest can mean little. How can the public be sure justice has been served? Indeed, how can the nagging cloud of suspicion be lifted from the young senator's shoulders so long as we do not actually know what he and the other witnesses said under oath, or how they reacted under questioning. The facts surely could be no more damaging than the rumors.

UNTIL THE commonwealth sees fit to release the transcript of testimony, the American public must be content to know that a tragedy occurred, that an inquest was held, that the results of the inquest may be revealed, but not the events that transpired in the solemn confines of the courtroom.

What is obscenity?

EDITOR:

I am getting more than slightly irritated with the reports in the paper about the Long Beach Police confiscating the film "I Am Curious, Yellow" because it is charged that the film is obscene.

Just what is obscenity? According to Webster's Dictionary, something is obscene if it is foul and disgusting and also that it is "offensive to chastity or to modesty." Since when is the Police Department, the city attorney or anyone else the arbiter for the rest of us as to what is disgusting and offensive to chastity? This particular film is off limits to youngsters, and adults can certainly judge for themselves what they wish to see.

I haven't seen the film and do not intend to because I have read many reviews of it and I think I would find it boring. The reason given by the police for taking possession of the film is that, according to one of the councilmen, the film is "dirty." Just what is it that makes sex relations "dirty"? An explanation of this sort of thinking would be most interesting.

To me the grossest obscenity are films that depict arson, physical torture and murder. I have yet to hear any official outcry against movies of this kind.

As far as "dirty" films are concerned, adults have the right to pay their money and go into a theater to view them if they wish. If viewing this sort of movie will severely damage the morals of the rest of us, then the morals of the police and those who find it necessary to see these pictures before they can allow us to view them must be in a very sorry state indeed — corrupted beyond repair — and in that case, they are indeed the last ones to do our judging for us.

Special council election makes a point

WHAT THE CITY calls "special," the Committee for New Politics would like to make routine in the matter of the Long Beach City Council elections. That is, they want each of the city's nine council districts to be permitted to elect their nine representatives independently.

They view the forthcoming special election in the 6th District, where incumbent Emmet M. Sullivan has resigned, as a timely demonstration of their goal.

Special council elections to fill vacancies created by death, retirement or resignation are district-only elections. Sullivan's seat will be declared vacant at Tuesday's council meeting. The special must be set within 90 days. Voters in the other eight districts will have nothing to say in the choice of Sullivan's successor.

AT REGULAR elections, however, district voters have the privilege only of selecting two finalists for a general runoff election. In that general election, all voters in the city join to name the nine members of the council.

On several occasions the top man in the district primary has been defeated when the vote went citywide. Thus, a district's preference can be overruled by voters outside that district.

The Committee for New Politics has more than 13,000 signatures on petitions calling for placing the district-only election issue on a future city ballot and letting the people decide which council election system should be used. They need some 23,000 signatures to force the issue to the ballot. The City Council, which could put the matter on the ballot without such petitions, has refused to do so.

NOW THE SPECIAL election to name a successor to Sullivan offers a showcase for the committee's point of view. Saul Stolzberg, committee leader, pointed out that former 7th District Councilman Robert Crow was elected in a special election. Bill Grant, successor to the late 3rd District Councilman Lewis Reese, also was elected in a district-only special election.

"If it's all right for a special election, why not all elections?" Stolzberg asks.

The color factor enters the current argument. Negro candidates have tried for the 6th District office in recent years without success.

'In this corner we have...'

FROM OUR STATE BUREAU

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Reagan's call for legislators to put statesmanship above partisanship in this election year is receiving about as much attention as one more sailor would in downtown Long Beach on a Friday night.

Which is not surprising. It is unlikely even the governor really thought Republicans and Democrats would refrain from whomping each other whenever they could.

What is surprising is that there seems to be as much intra-party friction in the Senate and Assembly as inter-party bashing.

Enough Assembly Democrats were unhappy with Jess Unruh's desire to retain his party leadership while at the same time maintaining a heavy gubernatorial campaign schedule that Unruh was forced to promise he'd step down when his pace got too hectic.

Assembly Republicans have always been divided into two groups, one adhering to the governor's conservative line and the other to Speaker Bob Monagan's more moderate views. The two cliques are becoming more polarized, and one source said it wouldn't take much to set off a move to oust Monagan.

THINGS ARE the same in the Senate. Except that in the upper house the split is not so much along party lines as it is along "Old Guard" and "Young Turk" positions.

The Young Turks have clearly won — veteran Democrat Hugh M. Burns of Fresno has not only been ousted as president pro tempore, but he announced last week that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Burns' long-time sidekick, Republican Jack McCarthy of San Rafael, made a similar announcement.

So the Senate will lose Burns and his 34-year seniority and it will lose McCarthy and his 24 years of experience.

Senate President Pro Tem Howard Way, a Republican who profited from the Young Turks' displeasure with Burns by getting elected Democratic and Republican votes to replace him at the upper house helm, by no means runs a harmonious ship.

The Exeter senator reminds people constantly of his purity, so sensitive is he to his predecessor's close ties with lobbyists. That tack and other tactics, such as suggesting that the Senate's popular sergeant-at-arms,

BOB SCHMIDT

Pete Kenealy, not be quite so chummy with the members, have cost him some of the support he had last year.

He was re-elected, but, one senator said, only because none of the several senators who could have had enough votes to displace him wanted the arduous job. A senator said he was shown a list of 23 other senators who would pledge their votes to him if he'd run. He chose not to.

Though the Old Guard-Young Turk differences are most apparent, there has been some intra-party friction as well in the Senate. Way was unhappy that Arcadia's H. L. Richardson tried to unseat a hand-picked Way man, Santa Monica's Robert S. Stevens, from the Rules Committee.

Richardson could not get any support, despite the fact that he was the GOP caucus chairman. The result was that he is now an ex-caucus chairman, replaced by San Jose's Clark Bradley last week.

AMONG THE DEMOCRATS, James Mills of San Diego voluntarily stepped down as caucus chairman, and Mervyn Dymally of Los Angeles was given the job. Dymally and Floor Leader George Moscone of San Francisco tried to get caucus support for six more aides, which would have raised the caucus cost to something like $200,000 for this year when all staff expenses were counted.

The San Francisco Examiner's long-time capitol reporter, Jack Welter, wrote that when Old-Guard Democrats asked what the added staff was for, Moscone replied "to elect Democratic senators."

Another senator then assertedly asked why the sudden concern for Democrats after "you elected a Republican pro tem."

There was shouting and even some lapel-grabbing before the meeting broke up, with no issues resolved.

However, it was an inter-party squabble which received most of the headlines in the legislature's first week of the new session.

The Republicans have 41 members in the Assembly, enough to elect a speaker. But one Republican was absent when the first roll call was taken last week, and no Democrats would give Monagan the courtesy vote he needed to complete the formality.

As a result, everyone sat around for nearly six hours until the tardy Republican showed up to cast his virtually automatic ballot for Monagan.

It would seem the Democrats could have let the Republicans stew in their predicament for awhile, confident that the press would report that the Republicans were unable to assemble a full crew, and then have taken the statesman-like gesture of giving Monagan his vote so the House could get down to business.

But it is an election year, and it looks like nobody is going to give anybody anything. Including, unless the governor's words are heeded, the taxpayers.

AMONG THE MORE exciting news items is the one reporting the wedding of two film stars you never heard of. Almost as fascinating is the next-day denial.

THE UNITED NATIONS is 24 years old, but somehow or other has avoided being drafted for Vietnam.

The late Rev. Frank Washington did not make the primary finals in 1960, running third behind Sullivan and the late Harry Jaffe. Negro Huey Shepard was Sullivan's only challenger in 1963, got 39 per cent of the vote in the primary but lost 2-to-1 in the citywide final.

SEVERAL black candidates are considering making the 6th District race this year, in hopes their chances will be better with no incumbent to buck and without having to face a citywide ballot. Unless the system is changed to district-only elections, however, a winning Negro this year could be ousted when he had to go citywide in 1972 to retain his seat.

But the same citywide put-down happens to whites as well. Vance Hardy was the primary finalist against Sullivan in 1969, trailing Sullivan about 2-to-1. Sullivan's win was even greater in the finals.

Humphrey fears new war risk

THE MOST EXPLOSIVE area of the world is the Middle East. It is here not only where Arab and Israeli forces meet head-on but also where the Soviet Union comes face-to-face with American power in the Mediterranean.

In a change of policy, the Nixon administration is now going in a direction which could trigger a new conflict in this vital area.

Powerful eastern financial interests which fear the loss of the United States oil concessions in the Arab countries have helped move the administration from our previous policy, under which Israel enjoyed a special friendly status, to one which the secretary of state calls "even handed" but which, in reality, is designed to loosen our ties to Israel.

What may appear on the surface to be a peace move could actually result in rising tensions and great risk of conflict.

Israel, the only democracy in the Middle East, has never been accepted as a nation with a right to live by its Arab neighbors. Those with feudal-like regimes fear the example of democracy, and others use religious rivalry to maintain or achieve power.

Arab threats to invade or destroy Israel are constantly broadcast over Radio Cairo and heard in Israeli homes. Most of the people of Israel are either refugees from oppression or relatives of genocide victims, and though some people discount the Arab threats, the Israelis take them very seriously.

THE UNITED STATES has had a special respect and friendship for Israel, ever since President Truman recognized its independence in 1948. Israel has always had confidence in the United States and has felt that its security, and independence would be protected.

Our own leaders were able to persuade the Israeli government to restrain those who urged continued pre-emptive strikes against Egypt, Jordan, and Syria.

In recent months, however, with the U.S. making it clear to the Russians and Arabs that Israel no longer occupies a place of special concern, Israeli leaders are being persuaded that their national self-interest no longer justifies reliance on this country's friendly and strong voice in the halls of diplomacy.

The Israelis are fully aware of the fact that European commercial ambitions and big power rivalries in the Middle East tend to isolate it in favor of the oil-rich Arab countries.

As a result of massive Russian aid, the Arab nations now have a 7-16-1 advantage in supersonic planes. Modern Russian tanks in Egypt are to be supplemented by new French tanks and possibly by British tanks to be supplied to Libya but which will probably end up near the Suez.

The French have refused to deliver Mirage jets which the Israelis bought and paid for, and have not even returned the money. The Germans, who in recent years were the friendliest of the European countries toward Israel, now may be backing away from a credit plan earlier contemplated.

And now the United States is making its own overtures to the Arabs and Soviets. The Israelis feel they are left on their own.

IT SHOULD BE remembered that Israel has never sought American troops, nor does it have a mutual security treaty with the United States. What it has asked for are modern jets and tanks, all to be purchased. But now there is a feeling in Israel that even these requests may be in doubt or delayed.

It may be therefore, that Israel, which is on the way toward manufacturing jet engines and would like to assemble its own planes, will push forward with its atomic energy research and nuclear weapon production. This would trigger a very dangerous reaction.

Those in the Israeli cabinet who urge a military solution to their problem gain power as U.S. influence declines. It is this threat of renewed open war and the diminished influence of the United States to prevent it which is terribly worrisome.

The United States position in the Middle East must be firmly based on the U.N. Security Council resolution of September 1967 which would end the state of belligerency and guarantee the integrity of Israel's borders.

Any equitable American proposal must offer Israel real assurances of security with defensible borders and unrestricted access to international waterways.

We cannot bargain away Israel in an effort to reach agreements with the Arabs or the Soviet Union. Peace in the Middle East will depend upon a negotiated settlement between Israel and her Arab neighbors. It cannot be imposed by the superpowers. It can, however, be encouraged and subsequently underwritten.

Since when is the Police Department, the city attorney or anyone else the arbiter for the rest of us as to what is disgusting and offensive to chastity? This particular film is off limits to youngsters, and adults can certainly judge for themselves what they wish to see.

I haven't seen the film and do not intend to because I have read many reviews of it and I think I would find it boring. The reason given by the police for taking possession of the film is that, according to one of the councilmen, the film is "dirty." Just what is it that makes sex relations "dirty"? An explanation of this sort of thinking would be most interesting.

To me the grossest obscenity are films that depict arson, physical torture and murder. I have yet to hear any official outcry against movies of this kind.

As far as "dirty" films are concerned, adults have the right to pay their money and go into a theater to view them if they wish. If viewing this sort of movie will severely damage the morals of the rest of us, then the morals of the police and those who find it necessary to see these pictures before they can allow us to view them must be in a very sorry state indeed — corrupted beyond repair — and in that case, they are indeed the last ones to do our judging for us.

Special council election makes a point

WHAT THE CITY calls "special," the Committee for New Politics would like to make routine in the matter of the Long Beach City Council elections. That is, they want each of the city's nine council districts to be permitted to elect their nine representatives independently.

They view the forthcoming special election in the 6th District, where incumbent Emmet M. Sullivan has resigned, as a timely demonstration of their goal.

Special council elections to fill vacancies created by death, retirement or resignation are district-only elections. Sullivan's seat will be declared vacant at Tuesday's council meeting. The special must be set within 90 days. Voters in the other eight districts will have nothing to say in the choice of Sullivan's successor.

AT REGULAR elections, however, district voters have the privilege only of selecting two finalists for a general runoff election. In that general election, all voters in the city join to name the nine members of the council.

On several occasions the top man in the district primary has been defeated when the vote went citywide. Thus, a district's preference can be overruled by voters outside that district.

The Committee for New Politics has more than 13,000 signatures on petitions calling for placing the district-only election issue on a future city ballot and letting the people decide which council election system should be used. They need some 23,000 signatures to force the issue to the ballot. The City Council, which could put the matter on the ballot without such petitions, has refused to do so.

NOW THE SPECIAL election to name a successor to Sullivan offers a showcase for the committee's point of view. Saul Stolzberg, committee leader, pointed out that former 7th District Councilman Robert Crow was elected in a special election. Bill Grant, successor to the late 3rd District Councilman Lewis Reese, also was elected in a district-only special election.

"If it's all right for a special election, why not all elections?" Stolzberg asks.

The color factor enters the current argument. Negro candidates have tried for the 6th District office in recent years without success.

The late Rev. Frank Washington did not make the primary finals in 1960, running third behind Sullivan and the late Harry Jaffe. Negro Huey Shepard was Sullivan's only challenger in 1963, got 39 per cent of the vote in the primary but lost 2-to-1 in the citywide final.

SEVERAL black candidates are considering making the 6th District race this year, in hopes their chances will be better with no incumbent to buck and without having to face a citywide ballot. Unless the system is changed to district-only elections, however, a winning Negro this year could be ousted when he had to go citywide in 1972 to retain his seat.

But the same citywide put-down happens to whites as well. Vance Hardy was the primary finalist against Sullivan in 1969, trailing Sullivan about 2-to-1. Sullivan's win was even greater in the finals.

Can you keep a secret?

'In this corner we have...'

FROM OUR STATE BUREAU

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Reagan's call for legislators to put statesmanship above partisanship in this election year is receiving about as much attention as one more sailor would in downtown Long Beach on a Friday night.

Which is not surprising. It is unlikely even the governor really thought Republicans and Democrats would refrain from whomping each other whenever they could.

What is surprising is that there seems to be as much intra-party friction in the Senate and Assembly as inter-party hassling.

Enough Assembly Democrats were unhappy with Jess Unruh's desire to retain his party leadership while at the same time maintaining a heavy gubernatorial campaign schedule that Unruh was forced to promise he'd step down when his pace got too hectic.

Assembly Republicans have always been divided into two groups, one adhering to the governor's conservative line and the other to Speaker Bob Monagan's more moderate views. The two cliques are becoming more polarized, and one source said it wouldn't take much to set off a move to oust Monagan.

THINGS ARE the same in the Senate. Except that in the upper house the split is not so much along party lines as it is along "Old Guard" and "Young Turk" positions.

The Young Turks have clearly won — veteran Democrat Hugh M. Burns of Fresno has not only been ousted as president pro tempore, but he announced last week that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Burns' long-time sidekick, Republican Jack McCarthy of San Rafael, made a similar announcement.

So the Senate will lose Burns and his 34-year seniority and it will lose McCarthy and his 24 years of experience.

Senate President Pro Tem Howard Way, a Republican who profited from the Young Turks' displeasure with Burns by getting enough Democratic and Republican votes to replace him at the upper house helm, by no means runs a harmonious ship. The Exeter senator reminds people constantly of his purity, so sensitive is he to his predecessor's close ties with lobbyists. That tack and other tactics, such as suggesting that the Senate's popular sergeant-at-arms,

BOB SCHMIDT

Pete Kenealy, not be quite so chummy with the members, have cost him some of the support he had last year.

He was re-elected, but, one senator said, only because none of the several senators who could have had enough votes to displace him wanted the arduous job. A senator said he was shown a list of 23 other senators who would pledge their votes to him if he'd run. He chose not to.

Though the Old Guard-Young Turk differences are most apparent, there has been some intra-party friction as well in the Senate. Way was unhappy that Arcadia's H. L. Richardson tried to unseat a hand-picked Way man, Santa Monica's Robert S. Stevens, from the Rules Committee.

Richardson could not get any support, despite the fact that he was the GOP caucus chairman. The result was that he is now an ex-caucus chairman, replaced by San Jose's Clark Bradley last week.

AMONG THE DEMOCRATS, James Mills of San Diego voluntarily stepped down as caucus chairman, and Mervyn Dymally of Los Angeles was given the job. Dymally and Floor Leader George Moscone of San Francisco tried to get caucus support for six more aides, which would have raised the caucus cost to something like $200,000 for this year when all staff expenses were counted.

The San Francisco Examiner's long-time capitol reporter, Jack Welter, wrote that when Old-Guard Democrats asked what the added staff was for, Moscone replied "to elect Democratic senators."

Another senator then assertedly asked why the sudden concern for Democrats after "you elected a Republican pro tem."

There was shouting and even some lapel-grabbing before the meeting broke up, with no issues resolved.

However, it was an inter-party squabble which received most of the headlines in the legislature's first week of the new session.

The Republicans have 41 members in the Assembly, enough to elect a speaker. But one Republican was absent when the first roll call was taken last week, and no Democrats would give Monagan the courtesy vote he needed to complete the formality.

As a result, everyone sat around for nearly six hours until the tardy Republican showed up to cast his virtually automatic ballot for Monagan.

It would seem the Democrats could have let the Republicans stew in their predicament for awhile, confident that the press would report that the Republicans were unable to assemble a full crew, and then have taken the statesman-like gesture of giving Monagan his vote so the House could get down to business.

But it is an election year, and it looks like nobody is going to give anybody anything. Including, unless the governor's words are heeded, the taxpayers.

Humphrey fears new war risk

THE MOST EXPLOSIVE area of the world is the Middle East. It is here not only where Arab and Israeli forces meet head-on but also where the Soviet Union comes face-to-face with American power in the Mediterranean.

In a change of policy, the Nixon administration is now going in a direction which could trigger a new conflict in this vital area.

Powerful eastern financial interests which fear the loss of the United States oil concessions in the Arab countries have helped move the administration from our previous policy, under which Israel enjoyed a special friendly status, to one which the secretary of state calls "even handed" but which, in reality, is designed to loosen our ties to Israel.

What may appear on the surface to be a peace move could actually result in rising tensions and great risk of conflict.

Israel, the only democracy in the Middle East, has never been accepted as a nation with a right to live by its Arab neighbors. Those with feudal-like regimes fear the example of democracy, and others use religious rivalry to maintain or achieve power.

Arab threats to invade or destroy Israel are constantly broadcast over Radio Cairo and heard in Israeli homes. Most of the people of Israel are either refugees from oppression or relatives of genocide victims, and though some people discount the Arab threats, the Israelis take them very seriously.

THE UNITED STATES has had a special respect and friendship for Israel, ever since President Truman recognized its independence in 1948. Israel has always had confidence in the United States and has felt that its security and independence would be protected.

Our own leaders were able to persuade the Israeli government to restrain those who urged continued pre-emptive strikes against Egypt, Jordan, and Syria.

In recent months, however, with the U.S. making it clear to the Russians and Arabs that Israel no longer occupies a place of special concern, Israeli leaders are being persuaded that their national self-interest no longer justifies reliance on this country's friendly and strong voice in the halls of diplomacy.

The Israelis are fully aware of the fact that European commercial ambitions and big power rivalries in the Middle East tend to isolate it in favor of the oil-rich Arab countries.

As a result of massive Russian aid, the Arab nations now have a 7 to 1 advantage in supersonic planes. Modern Russian tanks in Egypt are to be supplemented by new French tanks and possibly by British tanks to be supplied to Libya but which will probably end up near the Suez.

The French have refused to deliver Mirage jets which the Israelis bought and paid for, and have not even returned the money. The Germans, who in recent years were the friendliest of the European countries toward Israel, now may be backing away from a credit plan earlier contemplated.

And now the United States is making its own overtures to the Arabs and Soviets. The Israelis feel they are left on their own.

IT SHOULD BE remembered that Israel has never sought American troops, nor does it have a mutual security treaty with the United States. What it has asked for are modern jets and tanks, all to be purchased. But now there is a feeling in Israel that even these requests may be in doubt or delayed.

It may be therefore, that Israel, which is on the way toward manufacturing jet engines and would like to assemble its own planes, will push forward with its atomic energy research and nuclear weapon production. This would trigger a very dangerous reaction.

Those in the Israeli cabinet who urge a military solution to their problem gain power as U.S. influence declines. It is this threat of renewed open war and the diminished influence of the United States to prevent it which is terribly worrisome.

The United States position in the Middle East must be firmly based on the U.N. Security Council resolution of September 1967 which would end the state of belligerency and guarantee the integrity of Israel's borders.

Any equitable American proposal must offer Israel real assurances of security with defensible borders and unrestricted access to international waterways.

We cannot bargain away Israel in an effort to reach agreements with the Arabs or the Soviet Union. Peace in the Middle East will depend upon a negotiated settlement between Israel and her Arab neighbors. It cannot be imposed by the superpowers. It can, however, be encouraged and subsequently underwritten.

By L. A. COLLINS, Sr.

AFTER ONE of our columns dealing with teen-age dope addicts we have had some interesting conversations and one rather stupid phone call with the usual threats. But the conversation that interested us most was with a young fellow who said the reason other teen-agers would not tell what they know about marijuana peddlers is because they would be called "chicken" by other fellows and some girls. Translated, it seems being "chicken" is considered about the same as a coward.

We startled this young man when we told him we thought it was a real proof of cowardice when any citizen failed to report illegal sale or use of dope. Anyone who is weak enough can belong to a gang and abide by gang rules. Those rules are always designed to protect cowards because men of courage do not have to belong to gangs. It makes little difference whether it be a high school gang or a depraved gang of dope runners in a big city slum. You will find them "brave" when they outnumber their opponents but craven cowards when they have to face danger alone.

THAT IS THE KIND of code some teen-agers are bragging about. They say it would be "chicken" to tell on some others who were peddling dope to other teen-agers. He believes them to be more honorable and intelligent than past generations. This is written with no thought of arguing about their morals. It is about a deadly danger that the FBI, the local police and school authorities seem powerless to control. # ADA pats class of good liberal boys

By LOU CANNON
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Three California congressmen scored 100 per cent records in the annual ratings of the Americans for Democratic Action.

The congressmen who performed perfectly in the eyes of the liberal ADA included Augustus Hawkins and Edward Roybal of Los Angeles.

Both are Democrats. So were the 19 other House members throughout the country who scored 100 per cent on the ADA report card.

Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston scored 72 on the ADA card, ranking behind eight Democratic Congressmen from California. Republican Sen. George Murphy, received a rating of 11.

Murphy was outshone from the conservative point of view by Republican Reps. Glen P. Lipscomb and Barry Goldwater Jr. of Los Angeles, H. Allen Smith of Glendale, Charles Wiggins of El Monte, James Utt of Santa Ana, Charles Teague of Ojai and Bob Wilson of San Diego. All seven GOP congressmen posted zero ratings.

THE HIGHEST-RANKING Republican congressman from California to ADA's way of thinking is Rep. Paul (Pete) McCloskey of Portola Valley, the independent GOP liberal who became a congressman by defeating Shirley Temple Black. McCloskey's ADA score was 67.

Two avowed Democratic candidates for Murphy's Senate seat posted similar records on the ADA scorecard. Rep. George Brown of Monterey Park had an 87 mark and Rep. John V. Tunney of Riverside an 80.

The votes used to determine the ADA's "liberal quotient" involved the nuclear test ban treaty, election by popular vote, restrictions against the filibuster, aid to education, expansion of health activities, bomber fund cuts, free food stamps, the oil and depletion allowance and the Supreme Court nomination of Clement Haynsworth.

HOUSE VOTES were based on the seating of Adam Clayton Powell (favored by the ADA), election by popular vote, aid to education, the income tax surcharge (opposed by ADA), cigarette labeling, water pollution abatement, reduction of defense spending, extension of the Office of Economic Opportunity and extension of the 1965 voting rights act. The ADA also considered as a "plus" vote opposition to the Nixon administration's resolution titled "Toward Peace with Justice in Vietnam."

Release of the scorecard was accompanied by an ADA attack on the Nixon administration, which the organization said "has pursued a political strategy designed to outflank Governor Wallace by appealing to his supporters on racial questions."

The ADA also concluded that the Congress is less conservative than the President on domestic issues for the first time since the Eisenhower administration.

A curious thing happened...

IN THE FILM "I Am Curious (Yellow)" there are a couple of charming hand-made posters outside the heroine's apartment house that offer us more revealing clues to the nature of the much-discussed movie than even its highly publicized and explicit sex scenes.

On one of the posters, the heroine Lena Lyman, which is the actress' real name—has written: "Message to the Colored Peoples of the World, The White Man Is Staggering."

And on the other, in equally bold and insouciant lettering, are the words: "Message to Humanity, Lena Feels Free."

THE TWO SIGNS tell us what the picture is all about, really. Because, for all its puzzling qualities, for all its length and tediousness, "Curious" is essentially a political film; and its sex, in a broad sense, is an extension of its politics.

It is a politics without a party, of course—unless you want to consider the radical youth movement of today a political party. If it were, and if it had a platform, one of its planks would surely call for a break with 2,000 years of traditional sexual morality, whose principal purpose seems to have been to suppress man's instinctual sexuality and make him feel ashamed of it.

In its frank portrayal of sexuality, "Curious" represents a small but important acknowledgment of the reverse trend. It is an affirmation of sexual liberation instead of continued repression and guilt.

I'M NOT SUGGESTING all pornographic material is a liberating influence.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK
By CHARLES SUTTON

On the contrary, much of it, as social thinker Paul Goodman has written, is actually a neurotic response to the very moral pressure we live with. Goodman calls the latter bad or hard-core pornography, and separates it from good pornography because it lacks any real connection with human experience, meaning or drama. A lot of it, he says, combines lust and punishment. Or torture and humiliation. It is essentially unhealthy. And in an artistically free society, it would undoubtedly be put to flight by the good, he says.

"Curious," for want of a better term, might be called a work of good pornography.

THERE'S NO doubting the seriousness of the film. It is the movie's dramatic qualities—its ability to engage the viewer's mind and emotions on a sustained basis—that fail to meet the test of excellence. The best judgment is that "Curious" is a brave but mediocre effort.

It is often difficult to follow. (The film within the film, for example, tends to confuse us.) In some parts, moreover, it is terribly overdrawn and dull—notably in the early scenes, where Lena is shown interviewing Swedes about class distinctions, Franco Spain, military induction, non-violence and assorted other political and social questions.

At one point, Lena becomes intellectually boggled by the morally disquieting proposition, put forward by the Soviet poet, Yevgeny Yevtushenko, that modern political regimes must sometimes abandon the democratic process for the benefit of man.

She experiences no such doubts about sex, though, and so we see her having the copulative time of her life with a handsome salesman who, it turns out, isn't faithful to her. And it's this dishonesty—since he never tells her of the other women—that finally leads Lena to blow up in bitter fury. Nevertheless, despite the pain, there are elements of humor and tenderness and passion in the affair.

And its sex is pure joie de vivre, a delightful affirmation of human freedom, a paean to sensuality. What's more, director Vilgot Sjöman has fun showing it to us.

FOR INSTANCE, he interrupts one frank scene with a solemn announcement, saying the scene has been censored. Another time, in a sly poke at the establishment, he has the two lovers copulating (clothed) outside the Royal Palace at dawn, with an uncomfortable palace guard standing nearby. (The sex scenes are simulated, incidentally). In the end, the laugh is on sexual freedom itself, as he shows the young couple being treated for scabies in a clinic.

Frankly, I found the sex scenes delightfully and artfully entertaining. Unless you're manifestly embarrassed by sex, or harbor a deep-seated guilt about it, you're not likely to be offended by the film. Nor will you leave the theater feeling ashamed for having witnessed the sex act and other forms of erotic play. It simply isn't the kind of movie that makes you feel dirty or cheap. And I don't think the audience at the viewing I attended at the United Artists Theater felt that way, either.

Yet it would be fatuous to recommend "Curious" for everyone—especially for a lot of older people whose attitudes toward sex were shaped in a more stable, Victorian period.

Many younger people—particularly the college generation—will find the film engaging and challenging in many respects, and probably boring in others. As for the sex, a lot of them will wonder what all the shouting is about.

To suppress the film, in my estimation, is to suppress an important slice of life.

A majority of surnames in this country are British in origin, so this enormously fascinating study is highly relevant to Americans. Census clerks, courts, neighbors, business acquaintances often gave people their names.—N.

THE INDIAN HERITAGE OF AMERICA. By Alvin M. Josephy, Jr. Bantam, $1.65 paperback.

Indians, says author Josephy, are far from being physically alike in all aspects. This is a welcome reprint of a comprehensive account of Indian origins, history, culture and diversities.—H.

DR. BOWDLER'S LEGACY. By Noel Perrin. Atheneum, $7.95.

A delightful history of expurgated books. The early Victorian Dr. Thomas Bowdler sought to castrate Shakespeare's works and his name brought forth a new word, to "bowdlerize." ## A curious thing happened...

IN THE FILM "I Am Curious (Yellow)" there are a couple of charming hand-made posters outside the heroine's apartment house that offer us more revealing clues to the nature of the much-discussed movie than even its highly publicized and explicit sex scenes.

On one of the posters, the heroine — Lena Lyman, which is the actress' real name — has written: "Message to the Colored Peoples of the World, The White Man Is Staggering."

And on the other, in equally bold and insouciant lettering, are the words: "Message to Humanity, Lena Feels Free."

THE TWO SIGNS tell us what the picture is all about, really. Because, for all its puzzling qualities, for all its length and tediousness, "Curious" is essentially a political film; and its sex, in a broad sense, is an extension of its politics.

It is a politics without a party, of course — unless you want to consider the radical youth movement of today a political party. If it were, and if it had a platform, one of its planks would surely call for a break with 2,000 years of traditional sexual morality, whose principal purpose seems to have been to suppress man's instinctual sexuality and make him feel ashamed of it.

In its frank portrayal of sexuality, "Curious" represents a small but important acknowledgment of the reverse trend. It is an affirmation of sexual liberation instead of continued repression and guilt.

I'M NOT SUGGESTING all pornographic material is a liberating influence.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK
By CHARLES SUTTON

On the contrary, much of it, as social thinker Paul Goodman has written, is actually a neurotic response to the very moral pressure we live with. Goodman calls the latter bad or hard-core pornography, and separates it from good pornography because it lacks any real connection with human experience, meaning or drama. A lot of it, he says, combines lust and punishment. Or torture and humiliation. It is essentially unhealthy. And in an artistically free society, it would undoubtedly be put to flight by the good, he says.

"Curious," for want of a better term, might be called a work of good pornography.

THERE'S NO doubting the seriousness of the film. It is the movie's dramatic qualities — its ability to engage the viewer's mind and emotions on a sustained basis — that fail to meet the test of excellence. The best judgment is that "Curious" is a brave but mediocre effort.

It is often difficult to follow. (The

ADA pats class of good liberal boys

By LOU CANNON
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Three California congressmen scored 100 per cent records in the annual ratings of the Americans for Democratic Action.

The congressmen who performed perfectly in the eyes of the liberal ADA included Augustus Hawkins and Edward Roybal of Los Angeles.

Both are Democrats. So were the 19 other House members throughout the country who scored 100 per cent on the ADA report card.

Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston scored 72 on the ADA card, ranking behind eight Democratic Congressmen from California. Republican Sen. George Murphy, received a rating of 11.

Murphy was outshone from the conservative point of view by Republican Reps. Glen P. Lipscomb and Barry Goldwater Jr. of Los Angeles, H. Allen Smith of Glendale, Charles Wiggins of El Monte, James Utt of Santa Ana, Charles Teague of Ojai and Bob Wilson of San Diego. All seven GOP congressmen posted zero ratings.

THE HIGHEST-RANKING Republican congressman from California to ADA's way of thinking is Rep. Paul (Pete) McCloskey of Portola Valley, the independent GOP liberal who became a congressman by defeating Shirley Temple Black. McCloskey's ADA score was 67.

Two avowed Democratic candidates for Murphy's Senate seat posted similar records on the ADA scorecard. Rep. George Brown of Monterey Park had an 87 mark and Rep. John V. Tunney of Riverside an 80.

The votes used to determine the ADA's "liberal quotient" involved the nuclear test ban treaty, election by popular vote, restrictions against the filibuster, aid to education, expansion of health activities, bomber fund cuts, free food stamps, the oil and depletion allowance and the Supreme Court nomination of Clement Haynsworth.

HOUSE VOTES were based on the seating of Adam Clayton Powell (favored by the ADA), election by popular vote, aid to education, the income tax surcharge (opposed by ADA), cigarette labeling, water pollution abatement, reduction of defense spending, extension of the Office of Economic Opportunity and extension of the 1965 voting rights act. The ADA also considered as a "plus" vote opposition to the Nixon administration's resolution titled "Toward Peace with Justice in Vietnam."

Release of the scorecard was accompanied by an ADA attack on the Nixon administration, which the organization said "has pursued a political strategy designed to outflank Governor Wallace by appealing to his supporters on racial questions."

The ADA also concluded that the Congress is less conservative than the President on domestic issues for the first time since the Eisenhower administration.

Today's books

A GUIDE TO THE ORIGIN OF BRITISH SURNAMES. By C. L'Estrange Ewen. Gale, $8.

A majority of surnames in this country are British in origin, so this enormously fascinating study is highly relevant to Americans. Among author Ewen's interesting discoveries: In the 13th century people frequently were named after the goods they sold. Roger Freshaddock was an example. Census clerks, courts, neighbors, business acquaintances often gave people their names. — N.

THE INDIAN HERITAGE OF AMERICA. By Alvin M. Josephy, Jr. Bonham, $1.65 paperback.

Indians, says author Josephy, are far from being physically alike in all aspects. "There is not the slightest resemblance between a New York Iroquois and a Brazilian Cayapo, between a Montana Crow and a Mexican Maya." This is a welcome reprint of a comprehensive account of Indian origins, history, culture and diversities. — H.

DR. BOWDLER'S LEGACY. By Noel Perrin. Atheneum, $7.95.

A delightful history of expurgated books. The early Victorian Dr. Thomas Bowdler sought to castrate Shakespeare's works and his name brought forth a new word, to "bowdlerize." This book is about the doctor and the bowdlerizers who preceded and followed him — like the anonymous author of the 1780 book "The Delicate Jester; or, Wit and Humour Divested of Ribaldry," and those who assaulted the Bible itself. — N.

OMAI: First Polynesian Ambassador to England. By Thomas Blake Clark. University of Hawaii Press, $5.75.

How Omai was taken to England by Capt. Cook from the tiny island of Huahine in the South Pacific, in 1774; how he displayed a great flair for the social graces, was praised by Samuel Johnson and entertained by Johnson's intimate friend Mrs. Thrale, and painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds. — H.

film within the film, for example, tends to confuse us.) In some parts, moreover, it is terribly overdrawn and dull—notably in the early scenes, where Lena is shown interviewing Swedes about class distinctions, Franco Spain, military induction, non-violence and assorted other political and social questions.

At one point, Lena becomes intellectually boggled by the morally disquieting proposition, put forward by the Soviet poet, Yevgeny Yevtushenko, that modern political regimes must sometimes abandon the democratic process for the benefit of man.

She experiences no such doubts about sex, though, and so we see her having the copulative time of her life with a handsome salesman who, it turns out, isn't faithful to her. And it's this dishonesty—since he never tells her of the other women—that finally leads Lena to blow up in bitter fury. Nevertheless, despite the pain, there are elements of humor and tenderness and passion in the affair.

And its sex is pure jole de vivre, a delightful affirmation of human freedom, a paean to sensuality. What's more, director Vilgot Sjoman has fun showing it to us.

FOR INSTANCE, he interrupts one frank scene with a solemn announcement, saying the scene has been censored. Another time, in a sly poke at the establishment, he has the two lovers copulating (clothed) outside the Royal Palace at dawn, with an uncomfortable palace guard standing nearby. (The sex scenes are simulated, incidentally). In the end, the laugh is on sexual freedom itself, as he shows the young couple being treated for scabies in a clinic.

Frankly, I found the sex scenes delightfully and artfully entertaining. Unless you're manifestly embarrassed by sex, or harbor a deep-seated guilt about it, you're not likely to be offended by the film. Nor will you leave the theater feeling ashamed for having witnessed the sex act and other forms of erotic play. It simply isn't the kind of movie that makes you feel dirty or cheap. And I don't think the audience at the viewing I attended at the United Artists Theater felt that way, either.

Yet it would be fatuous to recommend "Curious" for everyone—especially for a lot of older people whose attitudes toward sex were shaped in a more stable, Victorian period.

Many younger people—particularly the college generation—will find the film engaging and challenging in many respects, and probably boring in others. As for the sex, a lot of them will wonder what all the shouting is about.

To suppress the film, in my estimation, is to suppress an important slice of life.

Concluded Harris: "I call upon all people of good will who share our vision of a just, humane society to join with us in the 1970s in this effort to define what that means in theory and to bring it to actual fulfillment in this city as our example to all men everywhere of the new possibilities for humanity in the 1970s."

PAMELA AND SPECIAL PAL "BANANA"

Pamela, 5, Bears All Her Troubles With Bravery

By CHARLES HINCH
Staff Writer

People will be seeing much of Pamela Benavides, poster girl for the Long Beach-Lakewood chapter of the March of Dimes, the rest of this month. They will be looking on a child who has borne — with grace — more troubles in her five years than most of us see in a lifetime.

Pamela suffers from spinal bifida, a birth defect. This is a failure of the spine to close. The spinal cord and nerves protrude and the legs, the bladder and the rectum fail to function properly.

She has undergone surgery four times and spent months in the hospital. She makes her way about with leg braces and when she laughs or cries she has to hurry to the bathroom — and she never quite makes it in time.

THE PATIENCE, however, with which she's borne all this has been an inspiration to her mother, Mrs. Margaret Benavides, 26. It has, in fact, enabled her to go on.

"When she was born, I kept thinking of her future," Mrs. Benavides said. "Changing her diapers all the time — it was hard."

As the years passed, however, and Pamela grew, Mrs. Benavides discovered the child possessed a remarkable understanding.

"Pamela was patient," Mrs. Benavides said. "She was tolerant. She was helping me."

Today, Mrs. Benavides doesn't worry about the future.

"She's Pamela. That's her and that's the way it is."

"When she was born, they told me she would never walk, but she is walking. She's even riding her tricycle. She's outside playing right now."

SOMETIMES, said Mrs. Benavides, the neighbor children will hit Pamela, knock her down or tease her, and her normal 3-year-old sister, Leslie, will go flying to her defense. But in the house, it's another story. "They argue all the time."

"The doctor told us," said Mrs. Benavides, "don't give in to her. Never spoil her. We see her fall; if she doesn't really hurt herself, we don't help her. She's independent. She doesn't want anyone helping her except sometimes — when she gets on a lazy streak."

Pamela's designation as a poster girl is something of a misnomer. There will be no posters of her circulated. She will, instead, make a number of personal appearances and serve as a representative of the children here who are helped by the March of Dimes.

"WE COULDN'T have made it without the March of Dimes and that's all there is to it," said Mrs. Benavides, whose husband, Anthony, is a clerk at the Pacific Maritime Association. They live at 261 Home St.

The Dimes drive — which will go on through January — isn't what it used to be, Mrs. Virginia Bohan, executive director of the chapter, admitted recently.

With polio as its focus, the organization could raise $80 million a year. Without it collections have fallen to a fourth of that, despite the importance of the organization's work.

Long Beach, said Mrs. Bohan, is one of the communities which receives much more from the national level than it raises.

Customarily, the community contributes about $41,000. This year the goal is $55,000 — an almost impossible sum, but there are those who are hoping that Pamela's quiet presence in the campaign — as it did on her mother — will have an almost magical effect.

L.B. SCHOOLS EYE BUDGET

tions for the 1970-71 school year may begin.

"Of course," they pointed out, "planned reductions and cuts could be restored — if required financial support becomes available."

A final, "ultimate decision to reduce or curtail the budget will be made," Hinz and Laufenberg pointed out, "by the Board of Education in the light of the total budget picture."

To "bring everyone in the act," as it were, schoolmen compiled a list of areas in which substantial savings could be effected if need be.

This is not a tally of cuts that actually will be made, Hinz and Laufenberg emphasized, but rather they are possible sources of budget savings.

Teachers Association of Long Beach and California School Employees Association officials were consulted in its preparation.

Each employee, further was requested in a memo sent Friday via interschool mail, to comment on possibilities. Space was provided for inclusion of other alternate choices.

Responses were sought.

by Thursday and these will be tabulated in the district's research office.

The list "totals more than $6 million in programs and services to boys and girls from which $4 million" — the target figure — "could be earmarked for reductions," the memo stated.

A partial listing includes, in no priority order:

— Reduction of junior and senior high school standard six-period days to five-period days. Six classes would be permitted through flexible scheduling. Teaching staff would be reduced by 130 positions, with a saving of $1,300,000.

— Increase class-size averages to 28 in primary grades and 34 for intermediate levels. Reduce elementary teaching staff by 45, save $460,000.

— Cut high school athletic programs, save $100,000. — Raise class size in grades 1-12, reducing staff requirements accordingly. One pupil per class saves $867,000; two pupils added, $1,578,000.

This is not a tally of cuts that actually will be made, Hinz and Laufenberg emphasized, but rather they are possible sources of budget savings.

Teachers Association of Long Beach and California School Employees Association officials were consulted in its preparation.

Each employee, further was requested in a memo sent Friday via interschool mail, to comment on possibilities. Space was provided for inclusion of other alternate choices.

Responses were sought

by Thursday and these will be tabulated in the district's research office.

The list "totals more than $6 million in programs and services to boys and girls from which $4 million" — the target figure — "could be earmarked for reductions," the memo stated.

A partial listing includes, in no priority order:

— Reduction of junior and senior high school standard six-period days to five-period days. Six classes would be permitted through flexible scheduling. Teaching staff would be reduced by 130 positions, with a saving, of $1,390,000.

— Increase class-size averages to 28 in primary grades and 34 for intermediate levels. reduce elementary teaching staff by 45, save $460,000.

— Cut high school athletic programs, save $100,000.

— Raise class size in grades 1-12, reducing staff requirements accordingly. One pupil per class saves $867,000; two pupils added, $1,578,000.

ON A CLEAR DAY

"You Can See Forever," says Carolyn Thompson, who along with Norman Russell is starring in the Long Beach Civic Light Opera production which opened Friday night in Jordan High auditorium. "Clear Day" closes with a matinee on Jan. 18. It's worth seeing, says Independent, Press-Telegram Music Critic Daniel Cariaga. --Staff Photo by TOM SHAW

City Confederation Urged

A confederation of local governments was proposed by UCI-Project 21 as a way to coordinate planning and other operations of Orange County's cities.

"The confederation might be called the 'council of governments,' and would be charged with 'bringing together the technical resources of all communities of the county to work on problems that involve overlapping municipal, school district and special district boundaries.'"

Dean Shull, a La Habra city councilman and former president of the Orange-County League of Cities, recommended it to the municipalities. It now will go under extensive study.

A major purpose of the council would be to act as a forum for discussion of county-wide problems, and offer policies and alternatives which might solve mutual problems. Often, Shull said, planning problems in one city involve other cities, or various school districts.

'Gold Boy' Dinner Scheduled

The dinner is being sponsored by the Boys Clubs of Long Beach and Norb Zink is serving as chairman. Lou Berberet and Wilbur Ingram are arrangement chairmen, Maurice A. Bugbee, program chairman, and Don Phillips, ticket sales chairman.

C. Robert Langstiel is president of the club.

Gen. Edmundson to Take New Post

By EV HOSKING
Sunday Editor

A former Santa Monica Junior College football star and one-time Long Beach resident Friday was named deputy commander in chief of the U.S. Strike Command at McDill Air Force Base, Fla.

Lt. Gen. James V. Edmundson is currently the second highest ranking Air Force officer in the Pacific as deputy commander in chief of the Pacific Air Forces at Hickam Air Force Base in Honolulu.

GEN. EDMUNDSON will assume his new position in February. At that time he will also become deputy U.S. commander in chief, Middle East, Africa south of the Sahara and South Asia (MEAFSA).

The general has served as PACAF's vice commander in chief since August, 1967. His military career has included assignments with the Strategic Air Command, Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense and U.S. Air Forces in Europe. He saw extensive combat during World War II.

Gen. Edmundson, who is married to the former Maudie Lee Turner of Long Beach and who himself lived here for a while on his return from Korea in the 1950s, first achieved fame when he was credited with sinking one of the first Japanese submarines during World War II.

Gen. Edmundson sank the submarine in the early stages of the war while flying a B-17 flying Fortress on patrol off Hawaii after the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

During World War II and Korea, he amassed 1,607 combat flying hours and 139 combat missions. He was one of the first in pilots to fly the B-29 Superfortress. Today his total flying time exceeds 10,000 hours.

GEN. EDMUNDSON holds the Air Force ratings of command pilot, parachutist and missile officer.

The general commanded the 22nd Bomb Wing of the Strategic Air Command (SAC) based at March Air Force Base near Riverside and was ordered to Korea during that conflict. On his current assignment he has been commended for contributing significantly to the military capability in the Republic of South Vietnam.

The general and his wife have two children, Edwin J. and Celia L.

Cerritos' Building Tops All

From Our L.A. Bureau

Probably nobody will be surprised that little Cerritos led all county serviced communities in projected new construction during 1969.

The building permits its developers obtained from the county Engineering Department added up to $15,653,484 in estimated real estate improvements. Newhall, which ranked second, registered $36,593,110.

CERRITOS topped all communities in 10 of the year's 12 months.

In December the estimates on its building permits came to a total of $5.1 million. Its nearest rival — Palmdale — showed $2.7 million.

The total for all 31 cities served by the county under a contract arrangement was $13.3 million, which means Cerritos accounted for 38 per cent.

Among communities near Long Beach, Carson was second in Cerritos. Carson registered a total of $29,555,400, which was split almost evenly between the unincorporated area and the incorporated.

ROBERT W. MALONEY WINS DSC FOR HEROISM
Award Presented by Maj. Gen. Louis Kaufman

DAD WAS HERO TOO GI Decorated at VA Hospital

By BILL GAGNON
Staff Writer

The old adage, "Like father; like son," fits the Robert F. Maloney family of Choteau, Montana, to a "T."

Maloney, while serving as an Army Air Corps fighter pilot in World War II, was cited for bravery and awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his actions against the enemy.

Saturday, at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Long Beach, Maloney's 23-year-old son, Robert W., received the nation's second highest award — the Distinguished Service Cross.

Young Maloney, hospitalized with spinal injuries suffered when he was struck by Viet Cong hand grenade fragments, was presented the medal by Maj. Gen. Louis Kaufman, commanding general of the 63rd U.S. Army Reserve Command.

Maloney is a former member of Company A, 2nd Battalion, 3rd Infantry, 199th Infantry Brigade.

HE WAS AWARDED THE COVETED DSC for extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations involving conflict with an armed hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam.

The citation reads: "... Sp 4 Maloney distinguished himself by exceptionally valorous actions on 16 May 1968 as a 30 millimeter recoilless rifle gunner during an operation southwest of Saigon.

"As his platoon moved to the aid of a company which was heavily engaged with a large enemy force, it was hit on three sides by intense hostile fire coming from well fortified enemy positions in tree lines.

"Advancing with his unit through knee-deep mud to within 50 meters of the attackers' emplacements, Specialist Maloney saw two comrades who had been overcome with heat exhaustion.

"He unhesitatingly crossed open marsh to rescue the two men and carried them one at a time 250 meters through hostile fire to safety.

"Returning to his weapon, he continued to engage the enemy and destroyed a key bunker. One squad of his platoon then came under a barrage of enemy mortars and automatic weapons fire from three separate positions.

"Moving forward 75 meters, Specialist Maloney took the emplacements under fire and destroyed all three with devastating accuracy.

"He next went to aid a squad member who lay injured within 25 meters of the enemy fortifications. While bringing this man back to friendly lines he was seriously injured by an exploding hostile grenade ..."

MALONEY'S BRIEF ARMY service was over a span of only 18 months. He entered the Army on June 7, 1967, and was discharged on Pearl Harbor Day, Dec. 7, 1968.

The young hero has been hospitalized all but six months since being wounded. He was reunited with his three sisters and younger brother for a brief time, but recurring injuries forced his return to the VA hospital in November, 1968, where he has been bed-ridden since that time.

Floating Mobile Home Great for Island Living

By JACK BALDWIN
Marine Editor

A floating, take-it-with-you three-bedroom, two-bath apartment that can cruise among the Hawaiian Islands at 20 knots has promise of being "just the thing" for someone looking for a home that is a little different.

Perched on its twin hulls on a flatcar in the Port of Long Beach awaiting shipment to Honolulu is just such an apartment. The floating mobile home was designed by a Long Beach architect, J. Richard Shelley, head of an architectural firm at 4311 E. Seventh St.

Inside the 57-foot-by-12-foot catamaran hull is a master bedroom large enough to accommodate a king-size bed. The master bath has a marble lavatory and a full-size tub.

There is a shower in the second bath.

A BUILT-IN wet bar is located adjacent to the main salon.

The craft carries a 220-gallon water supply. "Enough to make lots of ice cubes," claims the designer.

To make cruising among the islands of the Hawaiian group more pleasant Shelley has equipped the craft with a generator powerful enough to operate a washer, dryer, ice maker, range, shaver, transmitter, and a battery of lights.

"I designed the boat to live aboard while supervising construction of several hotels being built in the Hawaiian Islands. After seeing it finished I realized it was as big and as well appointed as many of the condominium apartments in Hawaii," the designer said.

HE PLANS to build four exclusive condominium marinas at various locations in the islands. Each would have a capacity of 40 to 60 Shelley-craft.

The boats would be hooked up to shoreside facilities, including sewage.

"We would provide the maintenance, including firing up the engines periodically while the owners were away," Shelley said.

"The craft is designed to enable owners to spend many days cruising among the primitive and beautiful off-beat areas of the islands," the designer said.

Cost of the floating condominiums will be between $77,000 and $80,000, Shelley estimates.

Ambulance Charge Increase Urged

A $5 increase in the charge for an ambulance call for the three firms operating in the City of Long Beach will be recommended Monday to the Bureau of Franchises.

The bureau will meet at 8:30 a.m. in the council chambers at City Hall.

LOUIS POSSNER, chief engineer of the bureau, will recommend that Bowlers, Dilday and Mottell's ambulance companies be permitted to charge $30, instead of the present $25, for a response to a call.

All other rates would remain the same, under Possner's recommendation.

Previously, the bureau staff also had recommended an increase in the waiting time rate from $12 to $18, and an increase from $10 to $12.50 for mortuary calls.

THE HEARING had been continued until this month to permit the bureau staff, working with ambulance company offi-

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (UPI) — Williams College, an all-male stronghold since its founding in 1793, has admitted five women as degree candidates and plans to admit 40 more women next fall.

A spokesman said the five, all to be seniors when they enter for the 1970-71 term, will be transfer students from women's colleges.

Also scheduled for bureau consideration Monday will be the Queen Mary Aerial Tram, Inc., request for a franchise, for which the bureau is to work out a recommended schedule of completion and controls over construction.

KIDS DAY — Friday was a big day for tots of the Hawaiian Gardens area when national, county and city officials dedicated two new classroom buildings in the city's Lee Ware Park for the Headstart Program. Ron MacDiarmid of Long Beach, known throughout the Southland as "Jingles" the clown, is shown passing out balloons to preschool children attending the dedication.

HAWAIIAN GARDENS STRUCTURES

New Headstart Quarters Dedicated

"The quality of the education given our youngsters is in our hands", Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Montebello, said as he dedicated two classroom buildings for the Headstart Program sponsored by the Economic Youth Opportunities Agency of the Greater Los Angeles - Long Beach Improvement League.

The facilities were dedicated Friday. Provided through the cooperation of the EYOA, Los Angeles Flood Control District and the City of Hawaiian Gardens, they are located in the city's Lee Ware Park at 22310 Wardham Ave. The city is buying the excess Flood Control District property for a city park.

Ted Bartlett, EYOA representative, said the Headstart program is designed to create and shape the attitudes of pre-school children in situations where the family cannot utilize private nursery facilities.

The program seeks to provide classroom experience, familiarize the tots with group learning and provide social experience, health instruction, and nutrition.

Ulysses S. Griggs, Jr.,

business services chief for the agency who directed construction of the facilities, noted that there are 7,035 youngsters in the program in Los Angeles County. They are supervised by approximately 700 employees, he said.

Master of ceremonies at the dedication was Hawaiian Gardens Councilman W. Carl Rodgers.

'Catch Me' an Engrossing Whodunit

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Drama Critic

By next weekend director Bert Tanswell promises to have posted in Community Playhouse's lobby a skull-and-crossbones sign promising instant death — or worse — to anyone revealing the snap ending of his new show, "Catch Me If You Can."

Such a threat is fitting and proper — and it puts me on my mettle here since almost anything I might write about the comedy whodunit's storyline could be construed either as false, misleading, or revealing.

Let me candidly admit that I completely missed the mark in solving the mystery. My lame excuse for a startlingly wrong deduction is that I was put off by one of the oldest literary gimmicks going, the false "plant" which diverts attention from real clues.

Tanswell's cast is clearly very superior, as is his fast-moving, always upbeat directing. The action click-clicks along at an ever-accelerating pace.

There are fascinating character sketches in a play set high in the "borscht belt" Catskill Mountains: the young Detroit adman whose wife disappears on their honeymoon; a wisecracking, overworked, shrewd "country cop," Inspector Levine; a bumptious, prima-donnaish delicatessen proprietor. Give an extra clap to Jerry Herbener, Bernard Simon and Howard Solomon in these roles.

This hovers within millimeters of the maximum four stars rating. General audience.

MAURANGER, Norway (UPI) — A blizzard Saturday halted the search for six construction workers missing and feared dead after an avalanche buried their barracks in mountains about 50 miles southeast of Bergen.

ISRAEL'S PREMIER...
In March, Golda Meir became the fourth premier of her embattled Middle East country.

bow to woman power

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
Associated Press Writer

In the world of women, 1969 can be described as the "year of the fall" — the fall of several previously male-only bastions and the fall of coat lengths.

The ankle-length maxicoats didn't slow women's strides as they marched en masse for moratoriums and against marriage bureaus. Garbed in pantsuits, which gained acceptance in a limited sense even in the business world, and decorated with chain belts, vests, and breastplates, women invaded such male sanctuaries as Yale and Princeton. The FBI's Ten Most Wanted list, and the continent of Antarctica.

The turf of the racetrack fell, as did the presidency of the National Council of Churches. Women in government received more than cursory recognition, both abroad and at home.

Women's liberation movements grew in numbers and in militancy. Housewives, professionals, students, the single, married and divorced joined forces to end discrimination in hiring, promotion and salaries, repeal the abortion laws, establish more child-care centers and place women in policy-making positions.

Groups on both coasts banded together to sponsor "Ban the Bra" days, while their sisters attempted to gain entrance to male-only saloons.

Here are the specifics:

Religion

Mrs. Theodore O. Wedel of Alexandria, Va., an Episcopalian, was the first woman ever elected president of the National Council of Churches. A long-time ecumenical leader, Mrs. Wedel will head the Council, which includes 33 Protestant and Orthodox denominations with 42 million members.

First family

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon settled down in her new role as First Lady. She accompanied her husband on his world tour, made a tour of the president's pet projects on her own and entertained at assorted teas and receptions. Daughters Julie, now Mrs. David Eisenhower, and Patricia (Tricia) also made their share of good will appearances, the most noteworthy being Tricia's attendance at the investiture of Prince Charles in Wales.

Racing

On Feb. 7 at Hialeah Diane Crump became the first woman to race at any recognized track in the country.

Art buffs, returning warriors send '70s off on soaring start

By PAT McDONNELL

ARTY WAY to shed one's inhibitions is to try one's hand at impressionistic painting decided Betty Kirkpatrick when she devised her own unique ice-breaker for buffet dinner party entertaining board members of Long Beach Art Association.

As the 30-plus guests arrived at Betty's and husband Eugene's Bryant Drive home, each was handed a paint brush and urged to create his own design in fluorescent acrylic on a large white canvas.

Dabbling away at surrealistic eyes, hearts, peace symbols and abstract bison were Dorothy and Franz Buerger, Walt McNulty, Donna Collins, Jeanne and Sey Leoman and Fred Koenig. Only board members missing were Antoine and Lois Venn on San Francisco jaunt and Bill and Shirley Nankee off on ski trip. Assisting hostess were Anita and Kurt Wolff and her daughter Sharon.

WHILE OTHERS were recovering from round of holiday festivities, Mary Nell Brown mustered energy to give an Epiphany party on the Twelfth Night of Christmas.

In keeping with medieval customs, clever hostess placed felt initials of the Three Magi on door of her Armando Drive home to ward off evil spirits. Bowls of fruit, pitchers of wine and a wheel of cheese helped to lift party moods of Rev. Sam and Kitty Hall, Jack and Lee Stanley, Barbara Crocker, John and Ruthie Pearce, Rev. LeRoy and Janice Young and Anne Graves.

FIRST NIGHTERS to Community Playhouse's season-opener, "Catch Me If You Can," formed several pre-theater supper parties including sit-down dinner at Eva and Dr. Mark Miners'. Black and gold brocade gown enhanced vivacious hostess' brunette beauty as she chatted with Alma and Dr. Dick Bobb and Long Beach's Zsa Zsa, Margit Cupper.

Others gathered 'round Betty Metsinger — named most outstanding actress for playhouse's July production of "George Washington Slept Here," — were Joe and Gilberta Causey, Tom and Marge Fagan, Patty Curtis and Tom and Jewell Marchese.

GOOD FORTUNE just naturally comes to people . . . at least so it seems to be for the Rev. and Mrs. Frank Fortune who returned today to their Lakewood home

... copter pilot gets TLC at farewell fete

MIXED EMOTIONS prevailed at Saturday whee in home of Ron Johnson and Mike Lloyd where the mood was light, but 30-plus guests were sad to bid farewells to guest of honor, Capt. Ron Cameron, who leaves today for duty as an Army helicopter pilot in Vietnam.

Hosts are longtime friends of Capt. Ron, who was born in Renfrew, Scotland, and graduated from Poly ('61) and CSLB ('68). Assisting gourmet chef Ron Johnson at buffet table were Pat Trout, Gail Meyers and Susan Batty. Others seen on dance floor were Dan Miller, Kay Wick, Sue and Brent Montgomery, Dave and Peggy Knight, Dan Johnson and Charlene Mason, Pat Cole and Bill Bruning and Mary Kardes.

from a holiday Caribbean cruise aboard the Oriana. Luckiest part of vacation was fact that Frank was invited to serve as ship's chaplain for three-week sojourn . . . which he did after taking leave of duties as rector of St. Theodore of Canterbury Episcopal Church at Leisure World.

IT'S ALWAYS FUN to travel east, but Lakewooders, Hedy and John Murphy, had special reason for trip to Alexandria, Va., where they attended wedding of their daughter, Betty Lee, and Philip Delongchamp. Newlyweds both hold positions with U.S. Department of Interior and will reside in Alexandria.

Romance bloomed on campus of University of Nevada from which Betty and Phil received their bachelor's degrees. Bridegroom is doing post-graduate work at American University in Washington, D.C. His parents are the senior De Longchamps of Yearlington, Nev. Also on hand for wedding was bride's brother, Kenneth. Betty is a '63 alumna of Lakewood High School and attended Long Beach State.

THE HOLIDAYS came a little late for several area families who are welcoming home their most happy fellas from overseas duty.

Friday was a Red Letter Day for Mac and "G" McCleary when son Steve returned from one-year duty tour in Vietnam. A 20-foot banner inscribed "Welcome Home Steve," was stretched across porch of their 5148 Obispo Ave. home and friends, neighbors and school chums gave a rousing cheer for the returning soldier. On hand were Rev. Edward Kiefer, Gu and Lil Horne, Jerry Wood and David Tedman.

The Christmas tree remained standing in John and Norma Currie's Roswell Avenue home longer than usual so son, John, could see it on his return from two years in Korea. Celebration marking his arrival was attended by Jerry McKnight, Patricia Hoback, Carol and Dennis Dutro and brother, Bill, to name a few.

Happiness to Phyllis McGowan is return of husband David from Qui Nhon, Vietnam. Couple had been married only two months when David was assigned overseas and Phyllis continued her studies at CSLB. More than 50 friends and relatives gathered to welcome David in Canehill Avenue home of Olli and Dangel Oliveira. Greeters included Bob and Druce Hershner, Jean and Mary Nailor and Jack and Paula Herold.

ENTERTAINING COMES as naturally to some people as girl-watching does to a 16-year old boy on a spring morn. At least so it seems in the case of David and Phyllis Caldwell who've had two sit-down dinner parties and an open house in one week . . . and are capping activities by hosting a house guest from Florida.

Exchanging bon mots at initial dinner fete were Donald and Shirley Coscarelli, Jan and Dr. Ralph Simonian, Tom and Novali Gabbert, Bruce and Charlotte Mitchell, Betty and Dr. Bob Frankenfeld, Jim and Peg Hedrick and Lane and Dr. Bob Kienhofer.

Lights were ablaze at the Caddwells' Hillside Drive home a few nights later when Hal and Lila Bayer, Bob and Barbara Perry and the Ed Hearn arrived for gourmet feast. Others on hand were Bill and Lois Maschal, Stan and Dorinda Hubbard, the Bud Rinellas and Bill and Florence Luce.

The tree came down and adieu were bid the holiday season on following evening when some three score friends dropped by for eggnog. Now Dave and Skeeter are contemplating a breather at Borrego Springs.

NOW THAT THEY'RE back in Long Beach after four years in Salt Lake City, Jane and Arnold Dunyon decided to get together with old friends at a buffet dinner party in Mission Viejo home of Joyce and Audie Ashcraft. Adding to good fun and lively recollections at reunion were Dr. Ray and Bev Henderson, Liz and Harry Minor and Carolyn and Larry McDowell. Others harking back to Poly and Wilson days were Joyce and Sharon Carlhart, Jody and Dick Warner, Joan and Mal Lucas and the Jack Teales.

MOST WOMEN prefer to keep their age a secret — but not Tillie Kingsley since she hit the 90-year mark Thursday. Nieces, nephews and friends gathered at Golden Years Rest Home to honor Tillie and hear her recollections of serving as a nurse in Army hospitals during World War I. Tillie was born in Fort Dodge, Iowa, and received her nurses' training at Samaritan Hospital in Sioux City, Iowa. She has lived in Long Beach since 1946. Among those marking her milestone were Vesta Carton, Marie, John and Alan Armour and the Elmer Winners.

If television were real life, Eddie's father (on ABC's "The Courtship of Eddie's Father") would be the luckiest man alive.

Nice job, wonderful son and a housekeeper who's out of this world.

Especially the housekeeper.

Mrs. Livingston comes to work promptly and regularly, fixes breakfast lunch and dinner (seven days a week, it seems) keeps the apartment spotless and watches out for little Eddie. And besides all this, she's intelligent and attractive. Eddie's father couldn't ask for more.

But as one homemaker put it, "I could ask for a lot less and still not get it."

Rivaling sex and "As the World Turns" as THE topic of beauty salon conversations is the problem of finding reliable and competent domestic help.

Everyone wants a maid but nobody wants to be one.

"And I don't know why it should be this way," a spokesman for the Department of Human Resources Development stated. "It's an employee-controlled market."

"Domestics, or day workers as they prefer to be called, can set their own hours, conditions, who they will and won't work for and, in this area, have established their own minimum wage ($1.75 an hour plus transportation in the central areas and $2 plus transportation in outlying areas).

"But still the number of domestics available declines steadily while the number of applicants goes up and up," she said.

At the Department of Human Resources there are usually between 25 and 30 women "on call." But they're never the same women. "If she's good, she won't be with us any longer than it takes her to fill up 40 hours a week," the spokesman said.

The demand for live-ins is especially great. More divorces (and consequently more motherless or fatherless homes), the ever-increasing number of working women and greater affluence all contribute to the demand. And yet, few domestics are interested in live-in situations, either.

"There seems to be some kind of stigma attached to domestic work," she said. "Women would rather stand on their feet for eight hours a day at $1.65 an hour at a department store — and pay for their transportation, parking, lunches and wardrobe — or go on relief — than turn to day work."

"It's ridiculous. Domestic work should be considered a respectable and profitable occupation." But it's not.

CAROLINE BIRD, in her book "Born Female" pointed out that often the born cooks, cleaners and children's nurses who enjoy household arts hesitate to practice them professionally because they don't want to be treated as "servants."

The result: there are women who would like to work but can't because there is no one to take care of their homes and families; there are elderly and sick people who need someone to care for them but can't find anyone; there are women who would prefer homemaking tasks to other work (or no work at all) but shy away from it because of low pay and even lower status; and finally there is an inexcusable waste of talent.

In dealing with this problem, the American Home Economics Association in Washington, D.C., has set up a program to enhance the working status of those who provide services to homemakers. In pilot projects across the country, problems of recruiting, training, counseling and placing household workers are being explored.

Locally, Homemakers Inc., a subsidiary of the Upjohn Co., is attempting to upgrade the domestic field.

Robert Sobel, manager of Homemakers' Long Beach branch explained that the service works along the same lines as Kelly Girl or Manpower. Homemakers pays their employees' wages, insures and bonds them, handles social security and is exploring a group insurance plan.

"It's more professional this way," Sobel said. "The women feel like they're working in an office rather than being 'maids.' And our employees are loyal to the company and look out for its interest — not to mention they're getting better pay."

According to Sobel, "Our customers are willing to pay a little more for the extras we offer them. They know it's just not worth it to come home and find their house no cleaner than it was when they left and their liquor watered down."

Sobel, too, admits that demand greatly exceeds the supply. "We're constantly conducting recruiting campaigns, but after you've located all the professional domestics (those who have been doing it for years) and the nurses and nurses aides who are tired of hospitals, you have no where else to go."

But there is one other source: immigrants.

Sobel, however, doesn't handle foreign domestics "because of the language problem."

AND THE LABOR DEPARTMENT, since 1965, has limited foreign entry into the U.S. on the grounds that Americans are available when paid reasonable wages and that aliens brought into the country usually leave their employer in less than a year and find different work, thus competing with American workers.

Labor officials add, however, that despite their recent decision to ease restrictions on the entry of foreign labor, they do not have the solution to complaints from women about the rapidly dwindling supply of domestic help.

The problem is one of attitudes.

The next time you're wishfully looking for a Mrs. Livingston or your new day worker is three hours late, ask yourself these questions:

Did you hustle her through the back door and hang her coat in the broom closet?

Did you call her by her first name instead of giving her the respect you would give any other woman you'd meet socially or professionally?

Did you expect her to do more than you could do in a given amount of time or something you couldn't do?

Did you hover over her, critical of everything she did?

Were your children and pets in her way all day? (Implied that her job was so unimportant that she could do it amidst any amount of confusion.)

Did you pay her as little as you could possibly get away with?

Did you treat her as if she weren't a human being?

If you did these things (any one of them) then you know why you can't ask for a Mrs. Livingston — or anything less.

'Weigh-in' at Y for fun, fitness

Are those 10 extra post-holiday pounds beginning to get you down?

Would you like to learn how to play bridge or keep your car running or dabble in oils?

Has your company special stroganoff become as old and unexciting as grandma's bustle?

Are any of these your problems? Then the YWCA has the solution for you.

Among the Y's winter offering of classes are the "Y's Weigh-in Club" and "Fitness Club," bridge lessons (for beginning, intermediate and advanced players) and "Gourmet Cooking," taught by Edgewater Hyatt House chef Daniel O'Connell.

Registration for all Y classes will open Monday. A "Winter Sampler" on Thursday will give interested individuals an opportunity to attend several classes before enrolling. Classes will begin the week of Jan. 19.

NEW THIS WINTER is "Speech and You" to be taught by Evelyn Quick Biddle on Wednesday evenings, 7 to 9. A former music instructor, Mrs. Biddle received her Ph.D. in communication and drama in 1966 from USC.

She has taught speech classes both at Harbor College and at Loretta Young Way Modeling Schools. Mrs. Biddle decided to teach the Y class, "because I believe that the ability to communicate is one of the most important things about an individual."

She continued, "Especially in our 'TV era' it has become harder and harder for an individual to be reacted to. The viewer reacts to the TV personality, but the personality doesn't react to the viewer. Through my class I hope to give students a chance to talk and be reacted to."

Although Mrs. Biddle's real interest is oral interpretation, she points out that she plans to structure the class around what the students are interested in.

Besides teaching the Wednesday evening class, Mrs. Biddle is a member of the YWCA board of directors and is chairman of the Adult Education Committee.

AMONG OTHER classes to be offered are "Hawaiian Dance," "Business Girls Exercise Club," "Childbirth Education," "Investments for Women," "Car Tune-up" and "Oil Painting, Sketching and Drawing."

A new offering for the younger generation this winter is the "Junior Pin Fan Club." In this class, youngsters, 8 to 14 years old, will be instructed in basic scuba diving technique.

Other Saturday classes offered to young people include everything from ballet and baton twirling to sketching and swimming.

Additional information about these or other classes may be obtained by contacting the YWCA, 550 Pacific Ave.

Karpin on bridge

by Fred L. Karpin

Frank Crowninshield, editor of Vanity Fair from 1914-1935, was one of the nation's leading bridge personalities during the 1930s and '40s. He wrote "The Bridge Fiend" and other bridge works under the name of Arthur Loring Bruce.

An example of Crowninshield's ability can be observed in today's deal. He was sitting South. The deal arose in a rubber-bridge game in New York City's Cavendish Club, of which Crowninshield was president from 1935 until his death in 1947.

North-South vulnerable. North deals.

East put up the king of diamonds on the opening lead, and Crowninshield captured the trick with his ace. A heart was then led to dummy's king, after which the three of clubs was played. When East followed suit with the deuce, South inserted his eight-spot. As is apparent, the eight-spot won the trick.

From here in, Crowninshield had nothing to do except to cash his 10 tricks: six clubs, one diamond, two hearts, and one spade.

I have the feeling that a good many players, had they been sitting in Crowninshield's seat, would have gone down. At trick two, they would have laid down the king of clubs, and followed up by leading another club.

WITH THE "BAD" 4-1 club break being revealed, East could not be prevented from obtaining the lead with the jack of clubs (or the king of spades). And once East obtained the lead, a diamond return by him would enable West to cash four diamond tricks.

But Crowninshield realized immediately that if East ever got the lead, South's remaining J-2 of diamonds would be ambushed. To make sure that East would not obtain the lead, South got to dummy and finessed his eight of clubs. Even if the finesse had lost to West's (hypothetical) jack, South's remaining J-2 of diamonds would prevent West from cashing more than one diamond trick.

DELIGHTFUL DELICACIES

Chefs tempt tasters in Gourmet Series

They come from everywhere — from the Island of Crete, from Italy, from Switzerland, from Japan and from north of the border (barely).

They come with their specialties — Scallopini Pizzaiola Salto in Bocca and figures carved from vegetables, to name two.

And, during the third annual Gourmet Series sponsored by the Assistance League of Long Beach, they come to present their culinary techniques to interested persons in the Southland.

On five Mondays in February and March, veteran chefs and managers from five restaurants — the Velvet Turtle, Yamato's, El Adobe, Francois' Manhattan and the Villa Nova — will be present at the League Clubhouse, 394 Roswell Ave., to demonstrate, step by step, their favorite recipes. At the end of each session, gourmets will have an opportunity to sample the delicacies. The two-hour demonstrations will begin at 9:40 a.m.

The Gourmet Series is open to the public but space is limited and reservations should be made early. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Norman Jacque, 3930 California Ave. Donations are $20 for the series, or, if space permits, $5 per session. Proceeds will go toward League philanthropic projects.

At the first session Feb. 2, Walter Jetzer, chef at the Velvet Turtle in Long Beach, will demonstrate his gastronomic delights. Born in Switzerland, he has served with leading hotels in Basel and Stockholm as well as with the Holland-American Line and the Canadian Pacific Travel System. Before joining the Velvet Turtle staff he was executive chef for United Airlines.

BUBBLE BUBBLE, TOIL AND TROUBLE—Walter Jetzer, chef at the Velvet Turtle, shows Mrs. Leslie Nason and Mrs. Raymond Kelso Jr. what goes into his gourmet's delight.

Joining him will be Jack O. Whiting, vice president and general manager of Botello Enterprises.

Guest chef at the Feb. 9 meeting will be Kenichi Noda from Yamato's at Century Plaza. Noda began his career in 1950 as a cook's apprentice in Japan and since then has worked in restaurants in Japan, Australia and the United States.

Noda is particularly noted for his ability to carve vegetables into interesting and decorative items.

Ken Ishizaki is owner-manager of Yamato's. A veteran of the restaurant business for more than 20 years, Ishizaki supervises the cooking and occasionally prepares his own specialties for parties.

Early California and Spanish cuisine will be demonstrated on Feb. 16 by James Estes from El Adobe de Capistrano in San Juan Capistrano. He was born in Courtland, Ariz., and prior to coming to El Adobe he managed his own restaurant, Chef Estes Spanish Restaurant in Redondo Beach.

El Adobe's manager, Edwin Stuart Cornwell, grew up in his father's restaurants in Santa Monica and Long Beach (Restaurant Alfred). Last year, Cornwell was made a member of the Confrerie des Chevaliers Tastevin at the Clos de Bougeot, Beaune, France.

Representing Francois' Manhattan on March 2 will be chef Ulysses K. Yanis (who prefers to be called Yanis). A native of Crete, he has been involved in the culinary arts since the age of 13.

In addition to his 13 years with Francois' Manhattan, he has served as a cook with numerous restaurants in Athens, the Dutch Embassy, the Athen's Restaurant in Washington, D.C., and was chosen to design the "Seven Chefs Gourmet Kitchen" for the Orange County Home and Decorator's Show.

Accompanying Yanis will be restaurant manager George Shumard. Shumard began his career in food management prior to World War II and came to the Manhattan after two years as chef-manager of a club and lodge in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Slated for March 9 is Wally Gentile, executive chef at the Villa Nova in Newport Beach. Gentile received his training in his native Italy and has been with the Villa Nova for 32 years.

Maitre d' hotel at the Villa Nova Restaurant is Kelly Rosati. Rosati was with Karams Restaurant for five years before joining the Villa Nova staff in 1967.

TEST JAPAN FIRST—That's what Ken Ishizaki, owner-manager of Yamato's at Century Plaza, is saying to guests, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Langslet, as he presents them with the specialty of the house.

A LOVELIER YOU

Guard against dry skin

By MARY SUE MILLER

Three factors combine to dry and line your skin. Each passing birthday contributes to withering dryness. The process usually begins in the 30's, owing to slackening supplies of moisture, oil and hormones in the body. But younger women are known to detect signs of trouble.

Whatever your age, your skin can come to look like old parchment if you constantly expose it, unprotected, to such extremes of weather as torrid sun, dry furnace heat and icy wind.

Neglect also looms as a serious goad to dry skin. But improper care can be equally harmful. Maybe more so, as when a woman applies a night cream with downward strokes.

The symptoms of dryness vary. You may suffer all or only one. Your skin may feel tight and drawn, or it may look flaccid. Little lines may ring the eyes and lips. Flake and irritations are probabilities. Diminishing color and glow are almost a certainty.

Improvement involves proper cleanliness, correction and protection Methods. Cleanliness means a makeup remover and sudsings. Correction brings night-care products, masks and circulation stimulants into play. Powder base, moisturizer and sun screen are the basics of protection.

NEW BEAUTY FOR DRY SKIN

For ways to keep past-30 skin smooth and dewy, order my leaflet, New Beauty for Dry Skin. It tells in personalized steps how to cleanse, correct, protect and make up for dryness. To obtain your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller in care of the Independent, Press-Telegram, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin.

Harmonica concert slated for Monday

Following the stage show the Tyo Orchestra will play for old-time dancing with Joe Marshall as caller.

1969: Year of the 'fall'

Since then more than a score of women have donned the racing silks.

Government and politics Foreign

In the political arena, especially in foreign governments, women made their presence known.

Pledging to carry on the programs of the late Levi Eshkol, 71-year-old Mrs. Golda Meir was sworn in as Israel's fourth premier in March. In the face of continued Arab-Israeli conflict, the task of the one-time Milwaukee school teacher was anything but enviable, but she and her ruling labor party were returned to power in the October general elections.

Indira Gandhi continued to try to solve her country's many problems, at the same time battling efforts to oust her from power. At year's end, although she had lost her absolute majority in Parliament, there appeared no doubt that she would remain in control.

In Northern Ireland, Bernadette Devlin, a miniskirted girl who has to stand on tiptoe to reach 5 feet, achieved a reputation as a modern-day Joan of Arc.

The youngest woman ever to sit in Britain's House of Commons — she was elected independent United MP for Mid-Ulster a few days before her 22nd birthday — Miss Devlin wasted no time in reaffirming her position as leader of Northern Ireland's turbulent Civil Rights movement.

Angie Brooks, outspoken, 41-year-old Asst. Secretary of State of Liberia, was elected president of the United Nations General Assembly. Miss Brooks, who has been a U.N. delegate since she was 26, is the second woman to hold that position.

At home

On the domestic front, Shirley Chisholm, 45, took her seat when the January Congress convened. Mrs. Chisholm, a 99-pound Democrat from Brooklyn, N.Y., is the first Negro woman ever to be elected to Congress.

Shirley Temple Black, 41-year-old socialite wife of a California industrialist, was appointed by President Nixon a member of the U.S. delegation to the U.N. General Assembly.

Other presidential appointments on the distaff side included: Virginia Knauer, special consultant on consumer affairs; Nancy Hanks, 41, new chairman of the National Council on the Arts; Mrs. Helen Bentley, chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission; Constance Cornett Stuart, 31, director of Mrs. Nixon's staff, who will double as boss of the social secretary and successor to Mrs. Nixon's former press secretary.

In New York, Bess Myerson took a $25,000 a year job as City Commissioner of Consumer Affairs.

Crime

The first woman to break a previously male-only stronghold didn't even wait until the new year to achieve her mark. The last week of December, 1968, the FBI placed Ruth Eisemann-Schier on their list of Ten Most Wanted, for her role in the kidnapping of Miami heiress Barbara Jane Mackle. Arrested several months later in Norman, Okla., Miss Eisemann-Schier ultimately pleaded guilty and was sentenced to seven years in prison.

Books, arts, theater, music

In the world of books, arts and the theater, last year's women newsmakers made it even bigger.

Jacqueline Susann, 42, of "Valley of the Dolls" fame, sold her new best-seller, "The Love Machine," to Hollywood for $1.5 million, said to be the highest price ever paid for movie rights to a book.

A new addition to the growing list of "I worked with President Kennedy" authors was Mary Borelli Gallagher, Mrs. Gallagher, created quite a stir by disclosing Jackie's budget problems in "My Life with Jacqueline Kennedy."

Oscars for best actress were shared by Katharine Hepburn, 59, for "The Lion in Winter" and Barbra Streisand, 26, for "Funny Girl."

Beverly Sills, who little more than two years ago was unknown outside the New York City Opera Company, made her debut at Milan's La Scala, the acme of the opera world.

Financial

Another daring activist, this time in the financial field was blonde Muriel Siebert, only woman on the New York Stock Exchange. In the face of a nervous stock market, she bucked the trend and incorporated her business, opening a big new office on Park Avenue.

Final Curtain

Death catapulted other women into the news. Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower bore up bravely at the funeral ceremonies for her late husband, Gen. Dwight David Eisenhower, 34th President of the United States.

And death claimed Judy Garland at the age of 47. The former Hollywood child star, who became an instant legend when she sang "Over the Rainbow" in "The Wizard of Oz" in 1939, had led a tragic adult life

RELIGIOUS FIRST...

Mrs. Theodore Wedel of Alexandria, Va., an Episcopalian, became first woman elected to head 42 million-member National Council of Churches.

MODERN JOAN OF ARC

... That's how Bernadette Devlin was described by supporters in Ireland, where she became youngest woman ever to sit in British House of Commons.

1969: Year of the 'fall'

Since then more than a score of women have donned the racing silks.

Government and politics Foreign

In the political arena, especially in foreign governments, women made their presence known.

Pledging to carry on the programs of the late Levi Eshkol, 71-year-old Mrs. Golda Meir was sworn in as Israel's fourth premier in March. In the face of continued Arab-Israeli conflict, the task of the one-time Milwaukee school teacher was anything but enviable, but she and her ruling labor party were returned to power in the October general elections.

Indira Gandhi continued to try to solve her country's many problems, at the same time battling efforts to oust her from power. At year's end, although she had lost her absolute majority in Parliament, there appeared no doubt that she would remain in control.

In Northern Ireland, Bernadette Devlin, a miniskirted girl who has to stand on tiptoe to reach 5 feet, achieved a reputation as a modern-day Joan of Arc.

The youngest woman ever to sit in Britain's House of Commons — she was elected independent United MP for Mid-Ulster a few days before her 22nd birthday — Miss Devlin wasted no time in reaffirming her position as leader of Northern Ireland's turbulent Civil Rights movement.

Angie Brooks, outspoken, 41-year-old Asst. Secretary of State of Liberia, was elected president of the United Nations General Assembly. Miss Brooks, who has been a U.N. delegate since she was 26, is the second woman to hold that position.

At home

On the domestic front, Shirley Chisholm, 45, took her seat when the January Congress convened. Mrs. Chisholm, a 99-pound Democrat from Brooklyn, N.Y., is the first Negro woman ever to be elected to Congress.

Shirley Temple Black, 41-year-old socialite wife of a California industrialist, was appointed by President Nixon as a member of the U.S. delegation to the U.N. General Assembly.

Other presidential appointments on the distaff side included: Virginia Knauer, special consultant on consumer affairs; Nancy Hanks, 41, new chairman of the National Council on the Arts; Mrs. Helen Bentley, chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission; Constance Cornell Stuart, 31, director of Mrs. Nixon's staff, who will double as boss of the social secretary and successor to Mrs. Nixon's former press secretary.

In New York, Bess Myerson took a $25,000 a year job as City Commissioner of Consumer Affairs.

Crime

The first woman to break a previously male-only stronghold didn't even wait until the new year to achieve her mark. The last week of December, 1968, the FBI placed Ruth Eisemann-Schier on their list of Ten Most Wanted, for her role in the kidnapping of Miami heiress Barbara Jane Mackle. Arrested several months later in Norman, Okla., Miss Eisemann-Schier ultimately pleaded guilty and was sentenced to seven years in prison.

Books, arts, theater, music

In the world of books, arts and the theater, last year's women newsmakers made it even bigger.

Jacqueline Susann, 42, of "Valley of the Dolls" fame, sold her new best-seller, "The Love Machine," to Hollywood for $1.5 million, said to be the highest price ever paid for movie rights to a book.

A new addition to the growing list of "I worked with President Kennedy" authors was Mary Borell Gallagher, Mrs. Gallagher, created quite a stir by disclosing Jackie's budget problems in "My Life with Jacqueline Kennedy."

Oscars for best actress were shared by Katharine Hepburn, 59, for "The Lion in Winter" and Barbra Streisand, 26, for "Funny Girl."

Beverly Sills, who little more than two years ago was unknown outside the New York City Opera Company, made her debut at Milan's La Scala, the acme of the opera world.

Financial

Another daring activist, this time in the financial field was blonde Muriel Siebert, only woman on the New York Stock Exchange. In the face of a nervous stock market, she bucked the trend and incorporated her business, opening a big new office on Park Avenue.

Final Curtain

Death catapulted other women into the news. Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower bore up bravely at the funeral ceremonies for her late husband, Gen. Dwight David Eisenhower, 34th President of the United States.

And death claimed Judy Garland at the age of 47. The former Hollywood child star, who became an instant legend when she sang "Over the Rainbow" in "The Wizard of Oz" in 1939, had led a tragic adult life

RELIGIOUS FIRST...

Mrs. Theodore Wedel of Alexandria, Va., an Episcopalian, became first woman elected to head 42 million-member National Council of Churches.

MODERN JOAN OF ARC

... That's how Bernadette Devlin was described by supporters in Ireland, where she became youngest woman ever to sit in British House of Commons.

IN HAPPIER DAYS... The late Judy Garland is shown with her fifth husband, Mickey Deans, whom she married just six months before her death.

AT WIT'S END

Rights of housewife — humorists are defended

By ERMA BOMBECK

James Thurber has always been my favorite Ohio humorist. (He won hands down over Warren G. Harding and the Wright Brothers). This is quite an admission in view of the fact he has written some rather harsh words concerning housewife-humorists.

He once wrote that American housewives, as the result of the "Bland Influence" seem to believe that amusement is inherent in everything that goes wrong around the house. Thus, she will arise at some ungodly hour of the night, peck away 8,500 words and send it out to a publisher, complete with snapshots of her husband, baby and beach cottage.

Her lead sentence will usually be pretty cute like, "Mrs. Ponsonby had never put a dog in the oven before." I don't see why women don't become bacteriologists or Red Cross nurses like the other girls, he wrote.

Really, Mr. Thurber, I suppose some women had mothers who were convulsed by Will Rogers when they were carrying them, or dedicated women who feel compelled to share with the world their stories of how they mistook an aerosol can of deodorant for hair spray and their hair didn't sweat for 15 hours, but for me.

To tell you the truth, I began writing humor because I had to have some excuse for dragging around the house in a chenille bathrobe all day long. Things came to a head one afternoon in 1964, when the doorbell rang and I was confronted with a storm door salesman. He looked at me in my greasy wrapper with absolute disdain and shock.

"It's my line of work," I blurted re-tying my sash. As he grabbed his samples and bolted toward the car I shouted, "You don't understand. I am a writer."

This seemed to fascinate him. "What do you write?"

"Would you believe me if I told you I was Nancy Dickerson?"

"No."

would. Actually, I write about humorous things that happen around the house.

"Like what?" "Like having a basketball in the bathroom, three kids who threaten to do me out of my Social Security pension and a husband who carries a Donald Duck thermos to the office."

"I've got to go," he said, "I'm having my gall bladder out this afternoon and I don't want to be late."

Confront her, for her own sake

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband's teen-age sister, of whom I am very fond, took my engagement ring while she was staying at our home, for the weekend.

I have been waiting now for quite some time, hoping a guilty conscience would compel her to return it. So far, it hasn't.

Abby, this girl has had a very rough life and has been kicked around a lot and I hate to stir up even more trouble for her by telling her that I know she has my ring. (I am certain she has it. I am not just guessing.)

My husband says I should forget it—that he will buy me a new one, but I don't want a new one. The old one was not very expensive, but it meant a lot to me.

It hurts me to think that this girl would steal from me. I placed a lot of trust in her. Can you help me?

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS IN CONN.

DEAR SLEEPLESS: You MUST confront her, more for HER sake than for the return of the ring. If you let it go, she is sure to steal other things. Tell her in a friendly, loving way that you know she took your ring, and ask her to return it. The girl obviously needs love and understanding. Not more punishment.

DEAR ABBY: We have five children. The boys I never worried about, but I always watched the girls carefully. When the older one was 15, I looked in her diary once to find out what kind of girl she was turning out to be, and was happy to learn that I had nothing to worry about. Well, it's seven years later and she is happily married now, but her younger sister has me worried.

She is 17, a good student, and very pretty. She has many girl friends, but very few dates. She seems so discouraged. I keep telling her it's only a stage she's going thru and she will soon meet someone, and she should stay "good" for him, but she tells me that she knows she will never meet anyone.

Well, yesterday I looked in her diary and saw that she was a good girl, but she's so unhappy. She writes that life isn't worth living, and she hopes she doesn't wake up tomorrow morning. Every page is the same. She hates to be alive.

I felt so bad. I told my husband, and he was very angry with me and said I was looking for trouble. I really don't think I did anything so terribly wrong. Abby, is there something else I should do? — HER MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Yes. Stay out of her diary. And don't "believe" everything you saw there. Most girls that age are inclined to

Training for teacher's aides set

A 15-session training course for teacher's aides will begin Monday at the downtown campus of Mt. St. Mary's College, Chester Pl. and 23rd Street, Los Angeles.

The course is sponsored by the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women and will cover such areas as "The Philosophy of Teaching," "Reading and Phonics," "Handwriting," "Basic Concepts of Modern Math," "Discipline," "Audio-Visual," and "Office Training." Sister Mary Patrick from St. Mary Magdalene School, Camarillo, will be the instructor.

The cost per school is $20 and each school is encouraged to send as many women as possible.

dramatize their "feelings" in their diaries. If she functions well at school and has girl friends, don't worry about her. (Lots of girls don't have "dates.") Let her know that her family loves her, and don't ever violate her privacy again. Girls have left home for less.

DEAR ABBY: Please clear something up for me. When a person goes to a bridal shower and wins a prize, is she supposed to give the prize to the bride?

This happened to me the other day, and when I was told by another guest that I should give the prize to the bride, I said I had never heard of such a silly thing and I wasn't going to do it. And I didn't. Have YOU ever heard of it? — PUZZLED IN WEST VIRGINIA

DEAR PUZZLED: Yes, I have heard that this is the "custom" in some communities. But I must agree with you. It seems senseless to "win" a prize and give it to the bride—who has already received a gift from each guest.

CONFIDENTIAL. TO "TICKED OFF IN TAMPA": It is sometimes better to ignore an enemy.

There are other ways (more graphic, but less delicate) of saying it, but I like the way Cyrus Ching put it: "I learned long ago pig. You get dirty, and he never to wrestle with a slides the pig likes it."

Museum shares medieval treasures

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

As part of the celebration of its Centennial, the Metropolitan Museum of Art assembled a remarkable collection of medieval art and has sent it for exhibit at Los Angeles Museum of Art from Jan. 18 through March 8.

"The Middle Ages: Treasures From The Cloisters and the Metropolitan Museum of Art" includes masterworks from the early Christian era to the 16th century. For the first time such priceless objects as the Antioch Chalice, the polychrome statue of the Virgin from Strasbourg, the Tapestry of the Courtiers With Roses, and silver dishes from the Cyprus Treasure depicting the life of David, may be seen outside New York.

Much of history and the life of the people is revealed by the medieval artists through sculpture, manuscript illumination, enamels, ivories, bronze, silver, gold and tapestries. In workshops in Christian Egypt and Syria, in the great Byzantine Empire, in Italy, Spain, France, Germany and The Netherlands, the precious objects took form.

Of particular interest is the monumental brass eagle lectern from Louvain acquired by The Cloisters last year.

THE FAMOUS SILVER Antioch Chalice, acknowledged by experts as the most magnificent early Christian chalice or Eucharist cup known, was discovered in 1910 in Syria in the region of Antioch. Before its acquisition for The Cloisters (the Metropolitan's medieval branch in Fort Tryon Park) in 1950, it was owned by Fahim Kouchakji, a Syrian scholar.

Said Sidney F. Brody, president of Los Angeles County Museum of Art, "We are deeply grateful to the trustees and staff of the Metropolitan Museum for their generosity in making these superb treasures available to the people of the West. The Antioch Chalice alone is worth a pilgrimage to Los Angeles. We are confident that an exhibition of this scope and grandeur will bring visitors not only from all of California but from all of the West."

Added Kenneth Donahue, director of the museum, "Thanks to the Metropolitan's willingness to share its treasures, art history students in the West will have their first opportunity to study masterworks of the middle ages in the original. At the same time, it will give tens of thousands of museum visitors the opportunity to participate in a unique way in the Metropolitan's Centennial celebration."

IN NEW YORK, Metropolitan president Arthur A. Houghton Jr. explained, "In sharing its masterpieces from every civilization with viewers across the country, the Metropolitan Museum, to a greater extent than ever before, is entering its second century as a truly national resource."

Following its Los Angeles showing, the exhibition will go to the Art Institute of Chicago in the spring.

Catalogue for the show, described as the most comprehensive one on medieval art ever produced in this country, documents each object in the exhibition with 125 black and white illustrations and 16 color plates. It was written by Vera K. Osloia, a member of the Metropolitan's medieval department for 27 years. It will be for sale at the Metropolitan as well as in Los Angeles and Chicago.

Hours at the Los Angeles museum, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Thursdays; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Fridays; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays; noon to 6 p.m. Sundays, closed Mondays.

FAMOUS SILVER Antioch Chalice is reputed to be the Holy Grail. Although it may have belonged to a 4th century basilica (silver vessels were used chiefly in the church), there is no proof that it goes back to the time of Christ. It is covered with decorative reliefs. A closely spaced grapevine encloses 12 seated figures and Christ who is giving the law to the Apostles.

VIRGIN OF THE ANNUNCIATION was carved from stone by an unknown French artist in the 14th century. It is in the collection from the Metropolitan which will be exhibited in Los Angeles. Metropolitan director Thomas P. F. Hoving stated: "In the field of medieval art, the extent of the loan to Los Angeles remains unparalleled."

Three Marguerites star in production of 'Faust'

Three young Southland sopranos will alternate in the role of Marguerite for Pacific Opera Theater's production of Gounod's "Faust" Jan. 15 through 31 at Community Playhouse Studio Theater.

They are Kathleen Martin and Nadine Camden Kirkpatrick of Long Beach and Kay Francis of Manhattan Beach.

Miss Martin sang the role of Violetta in "La Traviata," the opera workshop's first production in 1967, and sang Rosalinda in "Die Fledermaus" in the summer of 1969. She also has appeared with the USC Opera Workshop. Currently, she is working for her master's degree in music at California State College, Long Beach.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, wife of attorney Robert R. Kirkpatrick of Long Beach, has sung with the Roger Wagner Chorale, the Laguna Opera, Euterpe Opera, and has been featured in productions of the USC Opera Department and Los Angeles Conservatory of Music.

MISS FRANCIS has performed leading roles at the Ethel Theater in Los Angeles in "The Merry Widow," "My Fair Lady," and "The King and I," and appears regularly with the Santa Monica Opera. She also is soloist with the Granados Chamber Septette.

Music director of Pacific Opera Theater is Edward Schick.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students. They may be reserved by calling Pacific Opera Theater.

'Tremendous wallop' in Calder's gouaches

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Gouaches" by Alexander Calder, opening today with a public reception from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., pack a tremendous wallop.

Seemingly simple and playful, done in black, white and primary colors, the works captivate and charm. While Calder, now 72, has been able to maintain a loving, childlike joy in people, life and nature, his are also an exquisitely-tuned mind and eye.

For example, in the two versions, "Black Saucer, 1968" and "Saucers in the Night, 1968," the disks, seeming to be disposed at random, are really held in place by invisible forces, known to Calder and conveyed to the viewer. The former, simply black on white, is the more elegant of the two.

Calder seems captivated by what makes nature work, illustrated in several versions of "Vortex," a whirl of concentric line which circles and creates a vacuum. Dancing spiral lines in "Loop and Over-loop" suspend disks through space.

THE GOUACHE medium is an interesting one. The pigment is ground in water and mixed with gum. Calder wets his paper before applying color with a loaded brush. So,

Mehta to direct in L.B.

Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Concert Hall, Zubin Mehta will conduct Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in its fourth Long Beach concert of the current season and the first of this new year. Soloist will be violinist Pinchas Zukerman.

During 1968, Mehta was on sabbatical leave from Los Angeles, but filled numerous conducting engagements with orchestras and operas on both sides of the Atlantic.

Zukerman, 21, studied at Juilliard School of Music and won the Leventritt Award in 1967. He has appeared with leading orchestras and in recital throughout Europe and the Americas.

SAID ISAAC STERN, "In 20 years of listening to young violinists, I have rarely heard as richly promising a talent as Zukerman. He has an extraordinary power of communication and I fully expect him to take his rightful place among the great artists of our time."

The Saturday program will open with Beethoven's "Overture to Egmont." This will be followed by Haydn's "Symphony No. 96" and "Symphonic Scene" by Isang Yun. Zukerman will perform Tchaikovsky's "Concerto in D Major" after intermission.

In its current concert, the orchestra is giving the first United States performances of "Symphonic Scene," which was composed in 1960. Yun, in a cause celebre, was kidnapped and imprisoned on a spy charge in Korea in 1967. Later, he was released after petitions from virtually every living world composer.

A limited number of seats will be available at the box office Saturday night.

PORTRAIT SHOWS PEDRO RAMIREZ VAZQUEZ IN VARIOUS MOODS

L.B. artist paints portrait for exhibition in Mexico

Long Beach artist Joan Valerie in February will go to Mexico City to present one of her paintings to Pedro Ramirez Vazquez, famous Mexican architect. Vazquez himself is subject of the large oil on canvas "portrait montage" and Miss Valerie will personally deliver her painting on behalf of Gov. Ronald Reagan, under whose auspices the work was undertaken. Several months ago, the artist completed a similar portrait of the governor.

Vazquez, coordinator of activities for the 1968 Olympics in Mexico, and Miss Valerie met during the Olympics when she presented to him a rare, autographed biography of the late, great athlete, Babe Didrikson Zaharias. Vazquez has designed some of Mexico's finest buildings, among them the Museum of Anthropology.

UNTIL JAN. 25, the portrait may be seen by the public at Pacific Coast Club, 850 E. Ocean Blvd. Then Miss Valerie will take it to Mexico City where it will be featured at an exhibition of her work in the American Club.

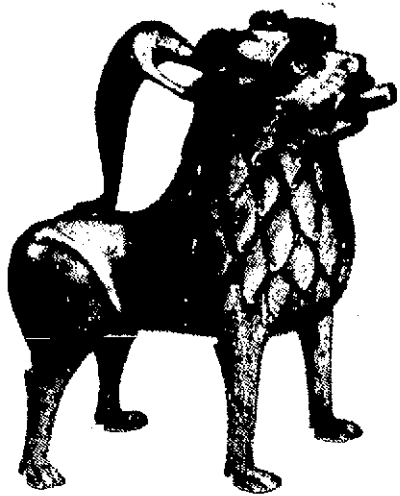

Before she turned her attention to art, Miss Valerie had a career as an actress, appearing in more than 40 motion pictures from 1938 to 1945 for Warner Brothers and 20th Century Fox. She played in scenes opposite the late John Barrymore in his final film, "The Great Profile."

A native of Chicago, the artist now divides her time between Long Beach and Twentynine Palms.

A RECEPTION at Pacific Coast Club today from 2 to 5 p.m. will honor two artists who are exhibiting in the Pacific Coast Club Galleria through January. The public is invited.

LOOK WHAT'S HAPPENING IN KINGDOM OF TONGA

Nuku'alofa remains off the beaten path of Pacific travelers

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

NUKU'ALOAFA, Tonga — Less than a month before I set foot on this enchanting Graustark-like kingdom of 160 islands and islets deep in the Pacific, 300 warriors carried out a plot hatched by their Polynesian forefathers to kill the white "god" who named their country "The Friendly Islands."

That man, of course, was Captain James Cook. However, as you guessed, it was only an act since Captain Cook was slain in Hawaii in 1779 — two years after the death plot was conceived on this heavenly, flower-scented island of Tongatapu. The make-believe deed was carried out in front of Australian television cameras re-enacting the Hawaiian death scene.

It appears to be more than legend, though, that the Tongans actually did plot to take the lives — without malice — of the epic voyageur and his crew. The prize would have been the ships and the treasures they contained, including arms, but Cook sailed away before the scheme could be carried out.

TONGATAPU, the main island, appeared through the mists of early morning. At first sight it looked like any one of thousands of other islands tucked away in this vast ocean — a splotch of deep green on a field of blue. Soon the giant palms became distinguishable, rising in stately unison, their fronds swaying to the gentle music of the trade winds.

The island appeared to be floating closer and closer to my seaborne country club, the MV Princess Italia standing still. Passengers like myself crowded the decks, cameras and binoculars ready. The almost-new wharf was moving out to meet us and, as the proud liner glided noiselessly to anchor, early-rising Tongans clad in their traditional wrap-around valas greeted us with friendly waves and laughing smiles. A native band exploded into a rousing welcome.

I and the other arrivals were the palangi, or white visitors, and we were being accorded the traditional hospitality commanded by the king for all white arrivals.

QUEEN SALOTE wharf at Nuku'alofa (pronounced "NOO-ko-a-LO-fa"), amply as it is, was crowded with tour buses, taxis and gaily decorated motorized vee-tolus, a cross between the three-wheeled rickshas of the Orient and Manila's flamboyant jeepneys. Their proud drivers stood ready and eager to show off their island. The vee tolus will take you anywhere in town for not more than a half-dollar and, like with taxis, their drivers invariably will ask their passengers to set the fare.

Nuku'alofa — which claims about 13,000 of Tonga's population that has suddenly burgeoned to nearly 75,000 and continues to increase rapidly — is a tourist's dream. This, to a great degree, is because Tonga remains off the beaten path of tourism in the Pacific. Visitors that numbered less than 2,500 in 1968, and not many more last year, were delighted that the Tongans are indeed themselves, living out their lives as their ancestors did, unspoiled by attention from outsiders. After 70 years of living under a British protectorate, most speak understandable to excellent English. I know of no other people who surpass them in friendly attentiveness.

NUKU'ALOAFA extends a couple of miles along the waterfront. One of the first things you see from your tour bus as it leaves the wharf is the island's only first class hotel, the 50-room International Dateline, so named because the island lies almost astride the international dateline. Another popular hostelry is the 10-room Beach Hotel which faces the sea from the main street.

In the center of town, next to the village green, is the Royal Palace, a ro-coco, Victorian white wooden mansion built in 1865. Since the death of Her late Majesty Queen Salote Tupou in 1965, the palace has been occupied by an elder son, His Highness King Taufa'ahau Tupou IV, indeed a regal and beloved figure who stands six feet two and weighs more than 300 pounds. His coronation took place in the ornate Royal Chapel erected in the early 1880s adjacent to the palace.

Next to Nuku'alofa's Village Green stands the Royal Palace of Tonga, a Victorian-style white wooden mansion built more than 100 years ago.

The day the Italia docked the village green was transformed into a vast open-air market where the Tongans, more skillful than most with their hands, offered a wide assortment of unexcelled handicrafts. These included tapa cloth and mats pounded with mallets from the inner bark of the mulberry, and an almost endless selection of baskets, purses, shoes and hats woven from the bleached pandanus. Many were decorated in the best of taste with shells and hand-made flowers. Other stands held a wide array of beautifully carved objects, shell beads, and gorgeous shells picked up along the nearby beaches. Prices were ridiculously low.

Nuku'alofa remains off the beaten path of Pacific travelers

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

NUKU'ALOAFA. Tonga — Less than a month before I set foot on this enchanting Graustark-like kingdom of 180 islands and islets deep in the Pacific, 300 warriors carried out a plot hatched by their Polynesian forefathers to kill the while "god" who named their country "The Friendly Islands."

That man, of course, was Captain James Cook. However, as you guessed, it was only an act since Captain Cook was slain in Hawaii in 1779 — two years after the death plot was conceived on this heavenly, flower-scented island of Tongatapu. The make-believe deed was carried out in front of Australian television cameras re-enacting the Hawaiian death scene.

It appears to be more than legend, though, that the Tongans actually did plot to take the lives — without malice — of the epic voyager and his crew. The prize would have been the ships and the treasures they contained, including arms, but Cook sailed away before the scheme could be carried out.

TONGATAPU, the main island, appeared through the mists of early morning. At first sight it looked like any one of thousands of other islands tucked away in this vast ocean — a splash of deep green on a field of blue. Soon the giant palms became distinguishable, rising in stately unison, their fronds swaying to the gentle music of the trade winds.

The island appeared to be floating closer and closer to my seaborne country club, the MV Princess Italia standing still. Passengers like myself crowded the decks, cameras and binoculars ready. The almost-new wharf was moving out to meet us and, as the proud liner glided noiselessly to anchor, early-rising Tongans clad in their traditional wrap-around valas greeted us with friendly waves and laughing smiles. A native band exploded into a rousing welcome.

I and the other arrivals were the palalangi, or white visitors, and we were being accorded the traditional hospitality commanded by the king for all white arrivals.

QUEEN SALOTE wharf at Nuku'alofa (pronounced "NOO-ko-a-LO-fa"), ample as it is, was crowded with tour buses, taxis and gaily decorated motorized vee-tolus, a cross between the three-wheeled rickshas of the Orient and Manila's flamboyant jeepneys. Their proud drivers stood ready and eager to show off their island. The vee tolus will take you anywhere in town for not more than a half-dollar and, like with taxis, their drivers invariably will ask their passengers to set the fare.

Nuku'alofa — which claims about 13,000 of Tonga's population that has suddenly burgeoned to nearly 75,000 and continues to increase rapidly — is a tourist's dream. This, to a great degree, is because Tonga remains off the beaten path of tourism in the Pacific. Visitors that numbered less than 2,500 in 1960, and not many more last year, were delighted that the Tongans are indeed themselves, living out their lives as their ancestors did, unspoiled by attention from outsiders. After 70 years of living under a British protectorate, most speak understandable to excellent English. I know of no other people who surpass them in friendly attentiveness.

NUKU'ALOAFA extends a couple of miles along the waterfront. One of the first things you see from your tour bus as it leaves the wharf is the island's only first class hotel, the 50-room International Dalhousie, so named because the island lies almost astride the international dateline. Another popular hostelry is the 10-room Beach Hotel which faces the sea from the main street.

In the center of town, next to the village green, is the Royal Palace, a ro-coco, Victorian white wooden mansion built in 1865. Since the death of Her late Majesty Queen Salote Tupou in 1965, the palace has been occupied by an elder son, His Highness King Taufa'ahau Tupou IV, indeed a regal and beloved figure who stands six feet two and weighs more than 300 pounds. His coronation took place in the ornate Royal Chapel erected in the early 1880s adjacent to the palace.

The day the Italia docked the village green was transformed into a vast open-air market where the Tongans, more skillful than most with their hands, offered a wide assortment of unexcelled handicrafts. These included tapa cloth and mats pounded with mallets from the inner bark of the mulberry, and an almost endless selection of baskets, purses, shoes and hats woven from the bleached pandanus. Many were decorated in the best of taste with shells and hand-made flowers. Other stands held a wide array of beautifully carved objects, shell beads, and gorgeous shells picked up along the nearby beaches. Prices were ridiculously low.

Next to Nuku'alofa's Village Green stands the Royal Palace of Tonga, a Victorian-style white wooden mansion built more than 100 years ago.

THE BEST OF EVERYTHING ...

Emotions explode when a cruise ship goes to sea

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

"Mind Your Head," the warning said.

The words, stenciled just above the ship's threshold, gave me a pleasant turn. They reminded me, moreover, that I was boarding a British passenger liner that day.

"Mind your head" is one of those quaint British expressions that have always made me feel a certain fondness for the English.

"Cigarette Ends" is another. I found it stenciled on a number of receptacles throughout the ship. It's so much more gracious, I feel, than "Cigarette Butts."

In fact, I can think of no better way to describe the SS Iberia than to say that it's a gracious ship.

Its owners, the P&O people, had flown a group of us up to Vancouver to board the great white steamship for the Vancouver-to-San Francisco leg of one of the ship's world cruises.

Troy Garrison, public relations director for P&O and an old acquaintance, had invited the 12 of us to attend a sea-going news conference for a briefing on the company's projected Alaska tours, which will start in May. And we had all jumped at the opportunity.

VANCOUVER LAY in the grip of a mild cold snap, and the Iberia, a gleaming jewel, gave the city's otherwise dour appearance a touch of cheerful elegance.

Several hours later, I was standing on one of her decks, surrounded by an excited throng of passengers and caught up in the frenzy of a ship departure.

What is it about bon voyages that makes them at once sad and happy, nostalgic and hopeful?

Leaving the land and going off to sea — even for a short time — is more than a going-away, I suspect. It's a symbolic break with a whole way of life, a severing of a lifeline, really.

FOR ME, at least, it was an explosion of emotions — a carnival of gaiety and sadness.

There was laughing and shouting and crying, and kisses thrown and farewells waved. And colored streamers hurled from ship to shore, forming hundreds of "shimmering strands of serpentine" — each one a delicate umbilical cord linking us to the land we were soon to leave behind.

NEVER MIND that I had seen it a dozen times before on film. This time it was real, and it made all the difference in the world.

At the far end of the pier, a band serenaded us with tune after tune, and gave the pandemonium that reigned a rhythm it otherwise lacked.

Nearby, a little girl with Alice-in-Wonderland hair sat on her father's shoulders and wept pitifully while waving farewell to some people on shore.

She was five or six years old, but she looked so much wiser and older as she heaved great, tearful sighs between fragile shouts of "goodbye Uncle John, goodbye Aunt Mary."

A precious world was dissolving, and in a moment of unaccustomed empathy, I found myself crying silently with her. Goodbye, Uncle John, goodbye Aunt M. Will we ever see you again?

I wanted to take the little girl in my arms and smother her with fatherly love and sympathy. Instead, I stood dumbly by, rendered impotent by the distance between us and the privacy of her grief.

BEFORE LONG, the excitement had nudged me back to reality, and I heard the music blaring again, and the shouts rising. The colored streamers were aflutter with renewed excitement. Suddenly, the band broke out with Waltzing Matilda. Then a second time. The crowd caught the mood, and a chorus of voices rose in lusty accompaniment.

Finally, a long blast from the ship's whistle. And another. And still another. The pandemonium was cresting, and we were moving — leaving all those wonderful people behind. The band, meanwhile, was playing Auld Lang Syne, while a few of us were weeping sad, sentimental tears.

Presently, the crowd began to thin out on deck, and I joined two young ladies at the rail for a lingering look at the shoreline. The girls were leaving Canada for their native Australia, and the three of us stood there for what seemed like a long time — silent, absorbed in our private thoughts. We didn't meet for the rest of the trip, but I bumped into them two days later in downtown San Francisco, and we greeted each other like old acquaintances. Then we parted forever.

I had never learned their names. Nor they mine.

THE OCEAN, I discovered, can have a strange and arresting effect on those who are fresh from the land. In its overpowering presence, a person finds himself reviewing his life from a pinnacle in time, or stripping away layers of civilization and culture to confront his most primitive fears and yearnings.

As I strolled the deck later that day, alone, the wind lashing at my face and the ocean spreading its eternal mystery before me, I thought of man's primeval beginnings — and I wondered whether his journey to the present had been for good or ill.

But the ocean is an elixir, too. And working its soothing balm into my tired spirit, it left me refreshed and renewed by the time we arrived in San Francisco.

It was cold and windy most of the voyage, and sometimes even foggy. For the most part, our party stayed inside, basking in the ship's good fellowship and enjoying a languorous if alcoholic time in the lounges.

Ever so often, a hardy soul like Adele Ross of the San Mateo Times would venture out on deck and be rewarded with great lungfuls of fresh sea air and an indescribably beautiful view of the ocean.

AT MEALTIMES, a pink-cheeked lad in white starched vest would summon us to the dining room by walking down the ship's passageways playing a small set of chimes. It's a delightful ritual, and its sound is so much more pleasing to the ear than the harsh cacophony of the city.

The food was invariably excellent. And I found myself perfectly suited to the ship's continental style of dining, which calls for a series of modest courses instead of one large one and several smaller ones.

WHALING ERA CREATED L.A. waterfront is area showplace

Since 1962, the unique Ports o' Call Village, a replica of an early California seaport with its winding, shaded lanes and pastel-hued shops located along the main channel of Los Angeles Harbor at San Pedro, has been a major attraction for not only visiting tourists but Southern California residents.

And when, in 1967, an adjoining Whaler's Wharf, recreating the mid-19th century New Bedford whaling era, was created, Los Angeles' "waterfront" became one of the Pacific Coast's most colorful and exciting showplaces.

The Whaler's Wharf, featuring architecture of historic New England, can be likened to a step across time's threshold into the living past. Shops and eating places faithfully reproduce the elm tree-shaded, brick-paved walks of the New England villages from which, during the 1840s and 1850s, "men of iron" sailed mighty ships of oak throughout the seven seas in search of sperm whales.

THE IDEA of conjuring the past into the present germinated in the imagination of David C. Tallichet, Jr., youthful president of Specialty Restaurants Corporation, a nation-wide organization. Although an avid airman (he owns and flies his own aircraft), Tallichet had always been fascinated by the sea and the constant pageant of shipping along the harbor's main channel. Noting that the parade of vessels, large and small, drew sightseers like a magnet despite the lack of adequate facilities for parking, eating and strolling, Tallichet embarked upon a gamble to create a waterfront recreational area that would "put San Francisco's waterfront to shame."

Using a then-new restaurant, the Ports o' Call, as an "anchor," Tallichet created the village of shops, boutiques and snack bars that recreated the busy California seaport of the 19th century when pioneering giants, such as Phineas Banning, helped bring international shipping and railroads to San Pedro, thereby ushering Southern California of the 1850s into the international community of world trade. When completed, the Ports o' Call Village was an instant success. It immediately transformed San Pedro's waterfront from a grimy expanse of wharfage to a showplace.

IN 1967, Tallichet went a step farther by creating the new Whaler's Wharf village on a 62,000-square foot area between the Ports o' Call Village and then-new restaurant, the Yankee Whaler Inn, an authentic replica of a dining-place such as Captain Ahab of Moby Dick legend would have frequented. Since 1962, more than nine million people have visited both villages and have browsed amongst the more than 80 shops.

Kingdom of Tonga undergoing changes

Cook made his epic landing. A marker records the date — June 22, 1777. To get there, the bus jogged along a well-kept hard-surfaced road through villages of woven-wall-and-thatched-roof cottages, and coconut and banana plantations. Hibiscus of every hue and other tropical flowers transformed the landscape into lavish color.

Cocoanuts and bananas are the principal crops but there is also an abundance of pineapples, breadfruit, taro and other fruits, including papaya. And, at the time of my visit, watermelons were "in season," reminding me of moonlit evenings of my youth when in company with other boys I made uninvited calls to melon patches in Kansas.

An allotment of land is made to every adult Tongan, upon which he grows his family's needs in fibres, fruit and root crops, and such cash crops as bananas and copra. Pigs roam the unfenced yard around his simple home. Luckier Tongans have cows to solve their milk problem. Fish, of course, are plentiful.

Other points of interest are the Royal Tombs where Tongan kings and queens have been entombed for almost 100 years; a trillion of massive stones forming an archway which may have been used hundreds of years ago as a gateway to a royal compound. Geyser-like spray from blowholes lure visitors to Tongatapu's west coast.

RELIGION, which has deep significance, is evidenced in the kingdom's flag which is a cross on a field of red representing the blood shed by Christ. Strict observance of the Sabbath is provided by the constitution.

Festival tours to feature S.F. Chinese New Year

SAN FRANCISCO — Festival tours of Chinatown have become one of San Francisco's most popular Chinese New Year festivities.

This winter, for the ninth successive year, guides will take sightseers behind the scenes of the West's most exotic city-within-a-city at the height of the Chinese holiday season, the San Francisco Convention & Visitors Bureau reports.

The Chinatown Y.W.C.A. at 965 Clay St. will conduct tours immediately prior to and during the city's Feb. 7-15 Chinese New Year celebration, details of which will be announced.

In addition, a variety of Chinatown outings, including luncheon and dinner tours, have been scheduled by J & J Walking Tours.

POINTS of interest on the one-and-one-half hour J & J excursions include Cameron House, which figured in the rescue of some 2,000 Chinese slave girls around the turn-of-the-century; the Jen Sen Buddhist and Taoism Temple; The Young China, a newspaper founded in 1910 by Sun Yat-sen, father of the Chinese Republic; a Chinese art studio; fortune cookie factory; herb and pawn shops, and such picturesque byways as Waverly Place, "the street of painted balconies."

There will be special festival exhibits and demonstrations, including Chinese cooking, brush painting, calligraphy and shadow-boxing at many of the locations visited.

Regular tours (adults $2.25, children $1) will depart from Cameron House at 920 Sacramento St. every 15 minutes from 2 until 4 p.m. Feb. 14 and from 6 until 7:15 p.m. Feb. 11-13.

FESTIVAL tours featuring luncheon in a Chinatown restaurant are being offered during the same period for $4.75 for adults, $2.75 for children under 14 years. Dinner excursions will be arranged for a minimum of 10 persons.

WHALING ERA CREATED L.A. waterfront is area showplace

Since 1962, the unique Ports o' Call Village, a replica of an early California seaport with its winding, shaded lanes and pastel-hued shops located along the main channel of Los Angeles Harbor at San Pedro, has been a major attraction for not only visiting tourists but Southern California residents.

And when, in 1967, an adjoining Whaler's Wharf, recreating the mid-19th century New Bedford whaling era, was created, Los Angeles' "waterfront" became one of the Pacific Coast's colorful and exciting showplaces.

The Whaler's Wharf, featuring architecture of historic New England, can be likened to a step across time's threshold into the living past. Shops and eating places faithfully reproduce the elm tree-shaded, brick-paved walks of the New England villages from which, during the 1840s and 1850s, "men of iron" sailed mighty ships of oak throughout the seven seas in search of sperm whales.

THE IDEA of conjuring the past into the present germinated in the imagination of David C. Tallichet, Jr., youthful president of Specialty Restaurants Corporation, a nation-wide organization. Although an avid airman (he owns and flies his own aircraft), Tallichet had always been fascinated by the sea and the constant pageant of shipping along the harbor's main channel. Noting that the parade of vessels, large and small, drew sightseers like a magnet despite the lack of adequate facilities for parking, eating and strolling, Tallichet embarked upon a gamble to create a waterfront recreational area that would "put San Francisco's waterfront to shame."

Using a then-new restaurant, the Ports o' Call, as an "anchor," Tallichet created the village of shops, boutiques and snack bars that recreated the busy California seaport of the 19th century when pioneering giants, such as Phineas Banning, helped bring international shipping and railroads to San Pedro, thereby ushering Southern California of the 1850s into the international community of world trade. When completed, the Ports o' Call Village was an instant success. It immediately transformed San Pedro's waterfront from a grimy expanse of wharfage to a showplace.

IN 1967, Tallichet went a step farther by creating the new Whaler's Wharf village on a 62,000-square foot area between the Ports o' Call Village and then-new restaurant, the Yankee Whaler Inn, an authentic replica of a dining-place such as Captain Ahab of Moby Dick legend would have frequented. Since 1962, more than nine million people have visited both villages and have browsed amongst the more than 80 shops,

Kingdom of Tonga undergoing changes

Cook made his epic landing. A marker records the date — June 22, 1777. To get there, the bus joggled along a well-kept hard-surfaced road through villages of woven-wall-and-thatched-roof cottages, and coconut and banana plantations. Hibiscus of every hue and other tropical flowers transformed the landscape into lavish color.

Coconuts and bananas are the principal crops but there is also an abundance of pineapples, breadfruit, taro and other fruits, including papaya. And, at the time of my visit, watermelons were "in season," reminding me of moonlit evenings of my youth when in company with other boys I made uninvited calls to melon patches in Kansas.

An allotment of land is made to every adult Tongan, upon which he grows his family's needs in fibres, fruit and root crops, and such cash crops as bananas and copra. Pigs roam the unfenced yard around his simple home. Luckier Tongans have cows to solve their milk problem. Fish, of course, are plentiful.

Other points of interest are the Royal Tombs where Tongan kings and queens have been entombed for almost 100 years; a trillion of massive stones forming an archway which may have been used hundreds of years ago as a gateway to a royal compound. Geyser-like spray from blowholes lure visitors to Tongatapu's west coast.

RELIGION, which has deep significance, is evidenced in the kingdom's flag which is a cross on a field of red representing the blood shed by Christ. Strict observance of the Sabbath is provided by the constitution.

Cruise ships such as the Princess Italia bring visitors to Tonga for stays of a day or two but those who expect to remain longer arrive at Fuaofu Airport, 13 miles from Nukualofa via Fiji Airlines from Nadi, Fiji, or by Polynesian Airlines of Western Samoa.

The He and She of 'His, Her of It'

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

Man and wife talk shows, to the sorrow of absolutely no one, went out of style with togetherness, which has been replaced by unisex, which — if anything — is worse.

To prove there is a difference in the appearance, attitudes, opinions and folly of the sexes, a handsome young couple is chattering away together for ABC's owned and operated television stations and will soon go into syndication.

Those who tread where Tex and Jinx, Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows, and Peter Lynd Hayes and Mary Healy once held sway are Geoff and Suzanne Edwards.

THE DIFFERENCE between the Edwardses and the others is they don't come on like a pair of love birds over morning coffee.

"We have five guests on our 90-minute show," Geoff said, "So we don't bog down with just the give and take of marriage."

"He's the boss," Suzanne said. She sounded as if she meant it.

The show, titled "The His and Her of It," is an easy coverage of the day's events, humor and controversy — the latter with such guests as Ralph Nader.

BOTH SUZANNE and Geoff are veterans at the microphone. Geoff is a Los Angeles disc jockey and Suzanne had her own television show in Palm Beach, Fla., when they first met.

"We have a couple of four or five minute spots where we just chat," Geoff said.

"We ad lib about things like bumper stickers or moon shots," Suzanne added. "But we can't be too topical because in a syndicated show you can never be sure how long the delay between taping and air date will be."

"And we aren't trying to give the impression about what a loving and devoted couple we are," Geoff said. "What we're doing is talking to one another. And if Suzanne doesn't have anything to say, then she has nothing to do but listen to me. I'll just keep right on talking."

"A MAN should be the dominant figure on or off the air anyhow," Suzanne said, maybe just a trifle too demurely. At least Geoff's laugh sounded a bit uneasy.

"When we did the pilot for the show, and after it was sold, we talked to one another constantly about the possibilities and what we thought we'd do," Geoff said.

"But since we began the show things have changed. Now we hardly talk to one another at all except when we're on the air."

"It used to be that when Geoff got home we'd tell one another about the kind of day we'd had and what we'd been doing," Suzanne said. "Now we know. And I listen to his disc jockey show, so there's not much to say to one another."

Both Geoff and Suzanne were jolted when their show was first aired. They sat down with their children at home to watch the results.

"After 15 minutes the kids drifted away," Geoff said.

television Emmys were made of solid gold, Rod Serling would certainly be a threat to Fort Knox.

One of the most creative and prolific of television's playwrights, Serling in a few brief years has been singled out for six of the highly coveted statuettes.

Serling is synonymous with quality network television. And, in something of a switch, he'll be making his local television debut in the new KNXT broadcast series "Rod Serling's Wonderful World Of..." premiering at 6:30 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 2.

In the initial broadcast, Serling will reveal how today's long hair movement among the young has been responsible for rekindling a list of prejudices dating back to biblical times, in addition to sparking a few new hates as well.

THE NEW series is an extension of Serling's own views. Each week he'll zero in on a subject generally considered to be a public irritant, a "social blight," a problem underscored and highlighted by the absurdities and trivia which abound in our daily lives.

"Rod Serling's Wonderful World Of..." will create a perspective on such maladies as crime, gluttony, incompetence, propaganda, waste and snobbery.

All of which would seem to be a natural turn of events for a playwright who lashed out at corporate skulduggery in "Patterns" and the seamy side of the prize ring in "Requiem for a Heavyweight," two Emmy winning plays which became motion pictures.

SERLING, a compact, darkly suntanned and intense young man, is as articulate in the vernacular of the workaday world as he is in literary language, all of which is a reflection of his varied background.

He was born on Christmas Day in Syracuse New York. His early schooling was at Binghamton, N.Y. He was graduated from high school and enlisted in the Army paratroopers the same day, in December, 1942. He served with the 511th Paratrooper Infantry Regiment in the Pacific theater of operations for three years with a demotion platoon.

A former Golden Gloves fighter, he was runner-up for one featherweight Divisional Championship, and he recalls that he was the only fighter "to be carried in and out of the ring."

SERLING returned from the war to attend and graduate under the GI bill from tiny Antioch College in Ohio, choosing it as the kind of academic environment in which his literary ambitions could grow.

Under a work-study plan at Antioch, Serling went to New York City in 1948 as a fledgling radio writer. One of his earliest successes was the winning of the $500 second prize in the

I WATCHED "David Frost Presents..." I expected to see something funny. But if that's England's funniest comedian, I'd like to see their most serious actor. That English humor is really corny. The program was utterly boring.

David Frost had better stick to being a conversationalist which he's good at — instead of presenting such flops. I changed channel after 15 minutes, but I don't think it was any better the last 45 minutes — or did I miss something?

BOB WALSH hosts "The Show," new weekly series designed for America's teenagers, premiering at 6 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 28.

I have a sentimental feeling for CBS radio and TV in Los Angeles. Much of my education in Los Angeles social dynamics comes from their splendid investigative reporting and public service programming.

In my field of rapid transit, both stations have done unique series of editorials, creatively searching into every alternative to our present transit and rail rapid transit. And we've enjoyed some sentimental pieces on the Red Cars.

What I have to say about their rapid transit programming would perhaps in all fairness apply to the media generally. To put it in the positive, a recent Ch. 28 program gave us our first in-depth look at serious low-cost rail rapid transit. There, Dr. Hibbs discussed the 120-mph New York-Washington "Metroliners," which are immensely popular and successful modern Red Cars...

One of the most creative and prolific of television's playwrights, Serling in a few brief years has been singled out for six of the highly coveted statuettes.

Serling is synonymous with quality network television. And, in something of a switch, he'll be making his local television debut in the new KNXT broadcast series "Rod Serling's Wonderful World Of..." premiering at 6:30 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 2.

In the initial broadcast, Serling will reveal how today's long hair movement among the young has been responsible for rekindling a list of prejudices dating back to biblical times, in addition to sparking a few new hates as well.

THE NEW series is an extension of Serling's own views. Each week he'll zero in on a subject generally considered to be a public irritant, a "social blight," a problem underscored and highlighted by the absurdities and trivia which abound in our daily lives.

"Rod Serling's Wonderful World Of..." will create a perspective on such maladies as crime, gluttony, incompetence, propaganda, waste and snobbery.

All of which would seem to be a natural turn of events for a playwright who lashed out at corporate skulduggery in "Patterns" and the seamy side of the prize ring in "Requiem for a Heavyweight," two Emmy winning plays which became motion pictures.

SERLING, a compact, darkly suntanned and intense young man, is as articulate in the vernacular of the workaday world as he is in literary language, all of which is a reflection of his varied background.

He was born on Christmas Day in Syracuse New York. His early schooling was at Binghamton, N.Y. He was graduated from high school and enlisted in the Army paratroopers the same day, in December, 1942. He served with the 511th Paratrooper Infantry Regiment in the Pacific theater of operations for three years with a demolition platoon.

A former Golden Gloves fighter, he was runner-up for one featherweight Divisional Championship, and he recalls that he was the only fighter "to be carried in and out of the ring."

SERLING returned from the war to attend and graduate under the GI bill from tiny Antioch College in Ohio, choosing it as the kind of academic environment in which his literary ambitions could grow.

Under a work-study plan at Antioch, Serling went to New York City in 1948 as a fledgling radio writer. One of his earliest successes was the winning of the $500 second prize in the

I WATCHED "David Frost Presents..." I expected to see something funny. But if that's England's funniest comedian, I'd like to see their most serious actor. That English humor is really corny. The program was utterly boring.

David Frost had better stick to being a conversationalist which he's good at — instead of presenting such flops. I changed channel after 15 minutes, but I don't think it was any better the last 45 minutes — or did I miss something?

... I WANT to thank CBS for their Christmas present: pianist Gilels and symphony orchestra...

BOB WALSH hosts "The Show," new weekly series designed for America's teenagers, premiering at 6 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 28.

I have a sentimental feeling for CBS radio and TV in Los Angeles. Much of my education in Los Angeles social dynamics comes from their splendid investigative reporting and public service programming.

In my field of rapid transit, both stations have done unique series of editorials, creatively searching into every alternative to our present transit and rail rapid transit. And we've enjoyed some sentimental pieces on the Red Cars.

What I have to say about their rapid transit programming would perhaps in all fairness apply to the media generally. To put it in the positive, a recent Ch. 28 program gave us our first in-depth look at serious low-cost rail rapid transit. There, Dr. Hibbs discussed the 120-mph New York-Washington "Metroliners," which are immensely popular and successful modern Red Cars...

Not the Time, it's the Number

By JACK GOULD
New York Times Service

An incisive analysis of modern television, one which finally reassures a viewer that something strange has been happening to the home screen in recent years, has come from an unexpected source: a leading man in advertising. He's as upset about the number of commercials as the rest of us, except he knows why and how to explain it.

The critic within the trade is Herbert Maneloveg, vice president and a member of the board of directors of Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, one of the most highly regarded agencies in the advertising field. Maneloveg spoke up last month at a meeting of the National Association of Advertisers in Scottsdale, Ariz.

From the standpoint of the average set owner — and for that matter, the code of the National Association of Broadcasters and some elements of the Federal Communications Commission — commercialism on this air is usually expressed in terms of so many minutes within an hour or half-hour. Maneloveg makes a vital distinction: Forget about the factor of time, he says, and just think about the number of commercials being squeezed into the allotted periods.

READY: ACCORDING to Maneloveg, the number of network commercials during an average month has increased by 50 per cent since 1964. The total number of different commercials in 1964 was 1,990. In 1968, there were 3,022. In 1964, 62 per cent of commercials ran longer than 30 seconds. In 1968, only 20 per cent ran longer than 30 seconds.

To put it another way, 80 per cent of the commercials in 1968 ran 30 seconds or less, so that in a two-minute period, say, the viewer was hit by four items of advertising — almost exactly twice the number that came his way in 1964. "In effect," Maneloveg observed, "all commercials, local and network, aired in prime time on an average evening have increased 41 per cent in just four years." The increase in commercials, Maneloveg noted, is partly due to the proliferation of products on the market. For example, there were seven brands of soft drinks advertised on network TV in 1964. In 1968, there were 22.

ACCORDING to the B.B.D. & O. chart for corporate budgets and brands, a major cigarette company that spent $44 million promoting 11 brands in 1964 spent $56 million on 43 brands in 1968. For a major food company, the figures are 24 million on 25 brands in 1964 and $23 million on 40 brands in 1968.

What these assorted figures indicate is economic pressure to rely on 30-second and commercials to cover more products, and there are some who believe the next step is a profusion of 15-second commercials. Thus there would be eight commercial messages where once there might have been only two one-minute spots.

How the trend is moving — and sending viewers up the wall — is shown in two specific examples cited by Maneloveg. The number of commercials on a typical sports show (the National Football League game on CBS on Sept. 21, 1969) was 34. For a typical movie (the Thursday Night Movie on CBS on Sept. 18, 1969), the number of spots was 32.

FRAGMENTATION of the available audience for additional commercials is likely to grow greater. The number of ultra-high-frequency stations jumped from 83 to 154 in five years, and no one can foretell the ultimate effects of Cable TV originating its own programs.

Maneloveg said of the audience reaction: "There are almost no true hits this year. There are even fewer misses. Just a great big in-between. Take the Nielsen Rating Book out Dec. 1. Do you know how many shows have over a 20 rating with women between the age of 18 and 49? If men are your target, do you know how many shows reach 20 per cent of those in the key age group of 18 to 49? None."

He concluded that viewers simply watch with half-hearted interest and frequently change channels.

MANELOVEG had this to say about a possible solution: "First, I believe it's time that more advertisers and more agency people moved back into the television program business. Shouldn't we work toward a restructuring of the format of programming, going back to commercial exclusivity rather than reside in a back-to-back jungle of conflicting and confusing claims? Might it not be sounder to talk to fewer people in a more responsible editorial environment and a cleaner commercial format, even if it costs more?"

Maneloveg is probably ahead of his time. With rising costs — and the possibility of 15-second spots not too far away — it takes courage and foresight to recognize that appealing to a specific audience may have an advantage over trying to be economically efficient before the entire world. The better agencies are concerned with one thing — their own show — whereas the networks seem to think a one-point edge over a rival chain has some overwhelming significance. Fresh thinking is overdue.

EARLY DAY AUTOMOBILES had an appeal for the shapely miss who is attempting to hitch a ride from the young fellow traveling in his top-down 1907 Stevens Duryea.

The Golden Age of The Auto

THIS 1903 FRANKLIN is one of a number of vintage automobiles put through their paces on "The Golden Age of the Automobile."

That colorful and adventurous chapter in man's love affair with machines — the era of the earliest, most primitive horseless carriages — unfolds on "The Golden Age of the Automobile," at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 7.

During the leisurely latter part of the 19th century a new device became reality almost simultaneously in far-removed corners of Europe and America — one which would change not only the lifestyles of hundreds of millions of people, but would also result in a dramatic alteration of the landscape itself.

From its tentative beginnings in the workshop of German Karl Benz, the then-called "velocipede" grew in power, size and importance, but remained a toy of the rich until Henry Ford's mass-production techniques made it an integral part of the American society. Today, the automotive industry which grew out of those early days is responsible for an estimated 100 million vehicles traveling 4 million miles of paved roads.

INCLUDED in the documentary is film footage of many of the classic cars which have live on in legend and "period" re-creations capturing the flavor of their eras. Among those automobiles featured are the Packard, the Stanley Steamer, the Mercer, the early Cadillacs, Oldsmobiles, Chevrolets and, of course the ubiquitous Ford Model T.

The program takes the viewer on an automotive adventure highlighted by the historic 1909 overland race from New York City to Paris. That historic contest, pitting six racers from Germany, France, Italy and the U.S., was won by an American Thomas Flyer, which covered 13,341 miles in 89 driving days.

SPECIAL

THE SURVIVORS (7), 9 p.m. — With 2½ hours of ABC's Monday schedule wiped out after tonight's airings, only this super-expensive, star-studded TV novel by Harold Robbins manages to tie together some loose ends. In its 15th, and concluding, chapter, Duncan is hospitalized after an auto accident that was no accident, and in flashback recalls another time when Philip tried to have him killed. So Philip is arrested for the attempt on Duncan's life — and also on charges of being responsible for Baylor's death. There's one "Survivors" survivor — George Hamilton becomes the first actor to get two new series in one season by starring as a State Department trouble shooter in next week's new "Paris 7000" Thursday night series.

ALL MY CHILDREN,

premiered Jan. 5, Ch. 7.

There are some very experienced hands at work on ABC's new soap opera, "All My Children." The early afternoon serial is in its premiere week and expertise was very evident in the first couple of episodes.

These first programs are the hardest because the characters must be introduced and the seeds of story lines planted. This series, even in infancy, is endowed with all the elements beloved by soap fans plus some new-fangled switches designed to make it contemporary and attractive to the young and house-bound.

We have Amy, happily married to rich, social Lincoln Tyler in spite of their childlessness. Amy — and here's a kicker — is a rabid "social activist" — an ABC phrase working with a women's peace group and embarrassing her conservative in-laws by joining a protest demonstration and getting her picture in the paper.

This all seems tied up in Amy's intense feeling for her young nephew, Phil, a high school senior who expects to be called into military service. She is given to mooning over his picture — enough to hint to the veteran soap-watcher that there is something mysterious there. Phil's family consists of his mother, a nurse, and his crippled father. At least he thinks they are his parents. Phil's girl, Kathy, has a widowed father who is a doctor and an uncle who is missing in Vietnam action.

All the basic materials are there: the mandatory nurse and doctor for future illnesses — Amy has already fainted — and plenty of people in assorted age groups for romance, tragedy, life and death.

There may be a little preliminary confusion about Amy's identity. She is played by Rosemary Prinz, who for years played Penny Fuller, leading character in CBS's "As the World Turns."

Miss Prinz is an excellent actress who can toss those halting bits of dialogue around with the facility of Joe Namath handling a football. Mary Fickett, another soap veteran who is also a redoubtable Broadway performer plays her sister, the nurse.

THE GOVERNOR AND J.J.,

aired Jan. 6, Ch. 2.

... I have developed a genuine liking for CBS-TV's "The Governor and J.J.," the best new series the network has put on this season.

The half-hour series is, simply, about the governor of a state — a widower — and his grown young daughter who lives with him in the Gubernatorial Mansion.

In the end, though, it is up to the performers. And here is where "The Governor and J.J." shines most visibly — with a comedy cast that may well be the best and most attractive, from top to bottom, on television.

Dan Dailey plays the governor — and his old ability to give charm and likeability to even the most banal project is on display, again. The man is just delightful — and what a pity we don't get to see him dance or hear him sing once more.

Julie Sommars plays his daughter — and she is wholesome, talented, humorous, bright and quietly sensual.

The timing and teamwork of the cast as a whole give the final polish.

James Callahan, as the governor's press aide, and Neva Patterson, as a secretary, are the two other principal regulars. And they are expert and a pleasure to watch. Callahan, for instance, showed his ability to sock over lines in the episode, lu

SPECIAL

GOLDEN AGE of the Automobile (7), 7:30 p.m.

John Secundari tells it like it was — looking back at the wild, wonderful years that put America on wheels and started man's love affair with the automobile. Hour traces the growth of the auto from Karl Benz' Velocipede of 1890 (it made 13 mph over paved roads) and the Dur-yea brothers' 1893 motorcar to Henry Ford's Model T — the famed Tin Lizzie.

MORE SPECIAL Than Others (2), 10 p.m.

Clete Roberts examines the rewards and problems encountered by two white couples who have adopted black children — as the parents talk about neighborhood reaction, dating problems they anticipate, and their attempts to make the children aware of their two-fold heritage.

THE INDIVIDUALISTS (2), 10:30 p.m.

Continues his "on the road" travels by minibus, Charles Kuralt encounters six men whose lives epitomize traditional values about individual initiative and hard work. Included are a man who has spent 20 years sculpting a mountain, a homesteader in Alaska, a crusading newspaper editor in Kentucky, a merry-go-round horse-carver, a producer of maple syrup, and folksinger Pete Seeger who is trying to reverse the pollution of the Hudson River.

SPECIAL

GOLDEN AGE of the Automobile (7), 7:30 p.m. — John Secondari tells it like it was — looking back at the wild, wonderful years that put America on wheels and started man's love affair with the automobile. Hour traces the growth of the auto from Karl Benz' Velocipede of 1890 (it made 13 mph over paved roads) and the Duryea brothers' 1893 motorcar to Henry Ford's Model T — the famed Tin Lizzie.

MORE SPECIAL Than Others (2), 10 p.m. — Clele Roberts examines the rewards and problems encountered by two white couples who have adopted black children — as the parents talk about neighborhood reaction, dating problems they anticipate, and their attempts to make the children aware of their two-fold heritage.

THE INDIVIDUALISTS (2), 10:30 p.m. — Continues his "on the road" travels by minibus, Charles Kuralt encounters six men whose lives epitomize traditional values about individual initiative and hard work. Included are a man who has spent 20 years sculpting a mountain, a homesteader in Alaska, a crusading newspaper editor in Kentucky, a merry-go-round horse-carver, a producer of maple syrup, and folksinger Pete Seeger who is trying to reverse the pollution of the Hudson River.

The Night of The Squid

The ultimate moment of life — and of death — for a generation of secretive sea creatures is the focus for the ABC "The Night of the Squid" at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Ch. 7.

"The Night of the Squid" is a part of the award-winning documentary series, "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau."

The species to which the squid belongs, the cephalopods or "headfooted" creatures, is one of the most unusual and diverse in the animal kingdom. Throughout natural history, nearly 95 percent of all earth's species have belonged to this group of invertebrate marine animals.

"THE NIGHT of the Squid" takes viewers into a hitherto unseen realm, the secret spawning ground of the Pacific Coast squid, also known as the "sea jets," or "sea arrows."

Captain Cousteau and the crew of the Calypso had the unexpected good fortune to stumble upon the Pacific Coast squid breeding ground at the precise moment when the sea arrows were arriving from distant parts of the sea. Canceling all other plans, the oceanauts dropped anchor to film the first record of the procreation cycle of the squid in their natural habitat.

The scenes viewed by the dives and crew virtually defy belief. Not thousands, not millions but an estimated 7 billion baby squid are conceived in a swirling cloud of adults. During their three-day mating marathon, the adult squid are inexhaustible and omnipresent. Numbering some 20 million, they boil the waters with their bodies, clogging water intake ports of Captain Cousteau's mini-sub, jamming the cooling system of Calypso, wriggling beneath the masks and underwater gear of the divers.

THE MINDLESS procreation continues even as sharks race through the normally elusive schools of squid, decimating their ranks. Then, as the third day draws to a close, the few remaining survivors succumb to exhaustion and sink to the bottom, joining the litter of millions of tiny corpses.

A new generation of sea arrows awaits birth, and a life which will culminate in their own "Night of the Squid."

Remaining at the spawning ground for the 24-day squid incubation period, the crew collects specimens of egg capsules for observation by invertebrate zoologist June Lindest of the Southern California Marine Biological Laboratory. Through special photographic techniques, including stop-action and extra-close-ups, viewers are shown the mating process of the adult squid, the growth and development of the babies, and their eventual emergence from their gelatinous cases to join the cyclic life of the sea.

Twenty percent of the babies will die before hatching. 55 percent will be eaten by predators during their first week of life. Those surviving are the only hope of the species, and will repeat the sea arrows' ancestral convocation of life and death.

Kelly Special Wednesday

Americans who have never been to Paris or Las Vegas may see the lovely ladies of the Folies Bergere for the first time on "Gene Kelly's Wonderful World of Girls," a musical-variety special to be broadcast at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Ch. 4.

Making their television debut as a group, the girls of the American Folies Bergere from Hotel Tropicana in Las Vegas will appear on the special along with star-host Gene Kelly, Barbara Feldon and character comedienne Ruth Buzzi, the glum Gladys Oromphby of "Laugh-In."

Featured will be the flavor of the Las Vegas Folies Bergere show, including the latest costumes created for the 1970 extravaganza.

THOUGH billed collectively as the "American" Folies Bergere, the girls are groomed by the parent Parisian organization and many of them are imports from Europe and elsewhere overseas. Statuesque Felicia Atkins, a featured principal with the Las Vegas Folies since it was formed 12 years ago, was born in Australia. Another principal, Stevie Danik, comes from Hamburg, Germany. Lead singer Anna Kapel was born in Berlin.

"When we authorized the American edition of the Folies, it was necessary to do much of our original recruiting in Europe," said Parisian producer Michel Gyarmathy, in Las Vegas preparing for the Tropicana's 1970 Folies Bergere.

"However, this is not true today," he continued. "The American showgirls have developed style and poise and they are well disciplined."

WHEN HIRING a showgirl, Gyarmathy explained that he looks for a tall, small-waisted girl with a long graceful neckline, long slender legs and a firm bustline.

"It would be a catastrophe if we didn't have the world's most beautiful women for the Folies," he explained.

"And it would be a calamity to cover completely all of this beauty with clothing," continued Gyarmathy, who personally designs the costumes for the show. "It would be the end of the world."

KELLY, who flew from Hollywood to Las Vegas to meet the girls, readily agreed.

"It's pretty obvious that you have plenty of beautiful women and not enough wardrobe," he said with a smile. "How do I get a permanent job around here?"

GENE KELLY shares the spotlight with 50 lovely ladies from the American Folies Bergere and guest stars Barbara Feldon and Ruth Buzzi (at left).

Girls! Girls! Girls!

Kelly Special Wednesday

Americans who have never been to Paris or Las Vegas may see the lovely ladies of the Folies Bergere for the first time on "Gene Kelly's Wonderful World of Girls," a musical-variety special to be colorcast at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Ch. 4.

Making their television debut as a group, the girls of the American Folies Bergere from Hotel Tropicana in Las Vegas will appear on the special along with star-host Gene Kelly, Barbara Feldon and character comedienne Ruth Buzzi, the glum Gladys Gormphby of "Laugh-In."

Featured will be the flavor of the Las Vegas Folies Bergere show, including the latest costumes created for the 1970 extravaganza.

THOUGH billed collectively as the "American" Folies Bergere, the girls are groomed by the parent Parisian organization and many of them are imports from Europe and elsewhere overseas. Statuesque Felicia Atkins, a featured principal with the Las Vegas Folies since it was formed 12 years ago, was born in Australia. Another principal, Stevie Danik, comes from Hamburg, Germany. Lead singer Anna Kapel was born in Berlin.

"When we authorized the American edition of the Folies, it was necessary to do much of our original recruiting in Europe," said Parisian producer Michel Gyarmathy, in Las Vegas preparing for the Tropicana's 1970 Folies Bergere.

"However, this is not true today," he continued. "The American showgirls have developed style and poise and they are well disciplined."

WHEN HIRING a showgirl, Gyarmathy explained that he looks for a tall, small-waisted girl with a long graceful neckline, long slender legs and a firm bustline.

"It would be a catastrophe if we didn't have the world's most beautiful women for the Folies," he explained.

"And it would be a calamity to cover completely all of this beauty with clothing," continued Gyarmathy, who personally designs the costumes for the show. "It would be the end of the world."

KELLY, who flew from Hollywood to Las Vegas to meet the girls, readily agreed.

"It's pretty obvious that you have plenty of beautiful women and not enough wardrobe," he said with a smile. "How do I get a permanent job around here?"

GENE KELLY shares the spotlight with 50 lovely ladies from the American Folies Bergere and guest stars Barbara Feldon and Ruth Buzzi (at left).

Fun with TV R&W Rib the Medium

Dan Rowan and Dick Martin operate on the premise that "nothing is so good that it cannot be better." A somewhat difficult hook to hang your hat on in the world of television, but the concept is at least part of the incentive which prompted them to undertake a video special, "Rowan and Martin Bite the Hand That Feeds Them," airing at 9 p.m. Thursday, Ch. 4.

"Most specials add up to a lot of hard work complicated by an overplus of confusion," says Rowan. "We are of the opinion that this doesn't have to be and the only way to prove our point was to do one ourselves. In all probability, nobody other than Dick, myself, our guest stars and crew will appreciate the accomplishment, but at least we now know it's a possibility."

DICK MARTIN insists the taping sessions were more along the lines of a continuing party than reporting for work.

"When you figure that we are bringing together such super talents as Carol Burnett, The Smothers Brothers and Sammy Davis it adds up to some very popular, high powered acts for openers," says Martin.

FRIENDS dropped by for the taping sessions. "It was a little like playing Las Vegas where everybody appearing in town hops over to catch the other fellow's act whenever possible. Television very rarely offers one that opportunity because of the pressures. You could work in the business for ten years and never meet more than a handful of the stars appearing on your own network," says Martin.

Bob Hope airlifted Christmas cheer to American GIs based overseas and highlights of this, his 19th Yuletide tour, will be shown at 8:30 p.m., Thursday, Ch. 4.

After playing a "command performance" at the White House, Hope and his troupe of 83 entertainers and technicians embarked on their two-week 30,000-mile tour of Germany, Italy, Turkey, Thailand, South Vietnam, Taiwan and Guam. The tour was co-sponsored by the USO and the Defense Department.

Dancer Suzanne Charney was among featured performers on the Hope tour.

Actress Connie Stevens and Astronaut Neil Armstrong greeted troops.

Ski beautiful Yosemite.

Where you'll find our slopes without moguls (we pack them every night). You'll find them fun and friendly (-and exciting too). And you won't lose your family-or your boyfriend (because our runs all end in the same place). Our weather won't freeze you blue either (we're 10° warmer-on the average-and windless). And you can find a ski patrolman when you want one (the National Park Service directs our patrols). Quick snacks or an elegant buffet is offered (our buffet is from the Ahwahnee-we make 1000 hamburgers an hour). We operate the oldest and best Ski School in the Sierra (Bill Jones' school has 30 full time instructors-American techniques). With lift lines that are shorter than usual (4 T's, 1 chair-4000 per hour). You can also ice skate (on our new, outdoor, ice-all-the-time rink). The places you stay are comfortable and attractive (we have the splendid Ahwahnee and the contemporary Yosemite Lodge). And of course, the natural beauty will take your breath away. All of which makes Yosemite your place to ski. And we have two all expense plans for you to choose between. The Midweek or Weekend Ski Specials. These include ski lessons, special rock climbing courses and unlimited use of the ice rink and ski lifts. Not to mention your comfortable stay and the delicious meals at the Ahwahnee or Yosemite Lodge. For reservations, call your travel agent or Glen W. Fawcett, Inc. at (213) 388-1151. Or contact the Yosemite Park & Curry Co., Yosemite National Park, California 95389. (209) 372-4671.

WHEN ASTHMA MAKES YOU SHORT OF BREATH

If recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma or Bronchitis make you suffer coughing and difficult breathing that ruin sleep, give quick acting MENDACO a trial. See how fast you curb coughing and breathe easier thru sleep and feel better. To help loosen and remove that choking phlegm get MENDACO as drugist.

which an old flame of the governor (Alexis Smith) turned up unexpectedly.

Imagine — good old Alexis Smith. And good old Don Dailey. Where have all the flowers gone? To television, it seems and it's nice to see them again, still blooming and fresh.

— Rick DuBrow, UPI

GET IT TOGETHER, aired Jan. 3, Ch. 7.

It may have happened finally through process of elimination and formula manipulation: an excellent rock show. But executive producer Dick Clark and producer-director Kip Walton have gone much further by not stopping at a conventional format. Rather than have minimized everything (partly, of course, because it is only 30 minutes and wisely so) to a simplicity that works for the kids in the studio audience and the at home viewer. With Sam Riddle's slick disc jockey redolence and Mama Cass Elliot's free, hang-loose personality the balance is perfect.

— Tony Lawrence
Hollywood Reporter

MY WORLD AND WELCOME TO IT, aired Jan. 5, Ch. 4.

Whimsy is a dangerous commodity to fool around with. When it is good, it is irresistible. But when it is not working, it chills the viewer in his easy chair.

There are some nights when "My World and Welcome to It," one of the season's braver efforts, is full of rich, wry humor and oblique comment on the human condition. Then there are nights, like Monday, when the comedy curdles into very bad slapstick.

The principal characters and the general format of the NBC series are always the same — perhaps writers, or directors or a change in climate do something to the show. A week ago Monday it was a tenderly amusing story about two little boys fighting over the little Monroe girl, the one with the braces. And William Windom, in his Thurberesque role of male parent, was quite perfect.

This week it was a crazy and markedly unfunny flashback to Monroe pere's childhood, his nightmares and to an especially kooky family. It just didn't work at any point, including the old aunt who thought she was being chloroformed by night prowlers or the other one who tossed shoes. And the appearance of producer Sheldon Leonard as the ghost of a gangster didn't add anything, either.

The idea of pulling together a series around a character like James Thurber and combining it with his cartoons and attitude towards life is indeed far off the usual TV situation comedy path. As it has turned out, Thurber really is not really in the series and his cartoons still are funnier without animation to punch home points he already made very clear.

— Cynthia Lowry, NY

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONCERT, aired Dec. 28, Ch. 2.

On "The Young People's Concert," composer Aaron Copland talked about background music for films. The inclusive commentary of Leonard Bernstein, who can make music sound like adventure, was missed. Copland, touching only lightly on the actual business of composing for films, spent most of his time explaining the plots of his films, then conducted the New York Philharmonic playing his scores. It was very pleasant music.

—Lowry, P

TV NOTEBOOK

There is a strong probability that Merv Griffin and company will soon move his late-evening CBS program to Hollywood.

CBS executives—not exactly ecstatic over Griffin's ratings, about half those of Johnny Carson—are concerned over the scramble for guests in New York now that Dick Cavett is also in the field. Hollywood, whatever it may lack in nontheatrical personalities, has an endless supply of film and TV stars.

Joey Bishop was Hollywood-based, and the stream of stars didn't save his show.

It would be a big wrench for Griffin, who has a successful production company operating in New York—NBC's "Jeopardy" is a Griffin production — assorted financial interests and a farm in New Jersey. Arthur Treacher has an important piece of a new restaurant which has been given his nickname, "Pip's Pub," in New York plus other business interest. CBS has the old Cort Theatre, expensively remodeled to suit the needs of the show.

NBC is doing some infighting that may interfere with ABC's Second Season premieres. On Wednesday, Jan. 21, when ABC's comedy series "Nanny and the Professor" bows, Joan Crawford will be guest-starring in "The Virginian." Later that night, when "The Johnny Cash Show" has its debut, NBC will broadcast a Friars' "roast" of Jack Benny with a big lineup of stars.

On Friday, Jan. 23, when ABC's "Love, American Style" starts in a new and, it is hoped, happier time period, the competition will be an NBC original drama "Married Alive," with Robert Culp and Diana Rigg, once of "The Avengers."

GRIFFIN CRAWFORD DAVIS WATERS

BETTE DAVIS makes a rare appearance in a prime time Jan. 26 when she portrays an arthritic, down-on-her-luck jewel robber on ABC-TV's "It Takes A Thief," which stars Robert Wagner and occasionally features Fred Astaire. Miss Davis told a Harvard University audience that Wagner is Hollywood's handsomest leading man. . . . Ethel Waters makes her first appearance in a television drama in seven years Feb. 5 when she plays the slave mother of a man who tries to take her to free land on NBC-TV's "Daniel Boone". Miss Waters has been seen on syndicated television as part of evangelist Billy Graham's crusade.

The Outlook for Movies on TV Fewer Theatrical, More TV-made Films

By JERRY BUCK
 Associated Press

The continued decline of the theatrical movie on television was forecast this week by the programming vice presidents of the three networks.

At the same time it was suggested that the movie made especially for television will become even more important in the future.

The number of movie nights will be down from the present eight to four a week by 1972-73, predicted

Michael H. Dann of CBS, who was most outspoken in pronouncing the demise of the movie.

MORT WERNER of NBC and Martin Strager of ABC said they did not think the cutback would be that much.

"The inventories of movies is just about exhausted," said Dann, and the movies being made today are not acceptable for television. People do naughty things in them.

"You will see an increase in the number of pictures made for television because they are being made with television audiences in mind."

Werner said he had information that the movie studios planned to produce more G-rated pictures. Dann said he disagreed, and argued that the movies were no longer a family entertainment medium.

WERNER AND Strager said they were accelerating their programs for movies-for-television. CBS entered the field Friday night with its first production.

The blockbuster theatrical movies were quickly exhausted in the opening weeks of the current season. Since then, only ABC's Movie of the Week has been consistently at the top of the ratings charts.

Just two seasons ago the movies dominated the ratings, but the disenchantment set in last year and they began to drop markedly in audience appeal.

IN ADDITION to his six Emmys, Serling holds the first Peabody award ever bestowed upon a writer. He has also won two Sylvia Awards, the Christo-

WELLS REPORT

I want a Girl, Just Like the Girl that picketed dear old dad.

Since the article on the Women's Liberation Front and other militant women's rights groups appeared in Life, I have been deluged with letters asking for advice from young men who trust me.

Tell us, they plead, where to go to learn the etiquette for dealing with women militants. What is the polite way to treat them on a date, at the office, at home?

I sympathize with the plight of these young men. The standard etiquette authorities long ago co-opted out to us male chauvinists. They say, for instance that a man should stand up in a crowded bus and give his seat to a lady. Nowadays that's a risky procedure.

If the lady you give your seat to, is an old-fashioned girl, everything is OK. You are rewarded with a "thank you" and a demure smile. But if she is a member of the Women's Liberation Front, you are rewarded with a karate kick. By offering her your seat you are designating her as your inferior and thus insulting her.

The problem is compounded by the fact that it is becoming increasingly difficult to recognize a woman militant. It used to be that they all wore low-cut clunker shoes and either a middy blouse or a button-down oxford shirt with a tie. Nowadays, everyone wears clunker shoes and the rest of the uniform has disappeared.

You can be sure, however, that any girl in a bikini is an old-fashioned girl. Women militants disapprove of the bikini. They say it is a device designed to attract men and thus encourages sexual exploitation.

There are a few helpful hints of etiquette that every young man should keep in mind when dealing with women militants. The orthodox way for a man to greet a woman on the street is to tip his hat. That is likely to draw a judo chop in reply from a militant.

The conventional way to greet a woman militant is for the man to fall to his knees, then prostrate his forehead in the dust with his hands flat in front of him. This is risky with strangers since it leaves the back of the skull exposed to a sharp blow with a blunt instrument such as a clunker heel. Another, more informal hello is merely to throw your arms above your head — a greeting adapted from that of the Italian combat soldier in World War II.

Never open an automobile door for a woman militant. The once exception to this rule is if the car is moving.

You will never have to worry about whether or not to pull out a militant's chair and seat her at dinner. She will never let you get behind her.

A few words about dating. A young man should never ask a young militant for a date. She will think you are forward and "easy." Wait for her to call you. Should you wish to show that you are interested without being forward, it is permissible to ask her for advice on how to improve your tennis serve, or for help in repairing the office computer.

Once you have made a date, insist that she pick you up at home and meet your father. This will make it clear at the start of the relationship just what kind of a boy you are.

As a meaningful relationship develops between you, you will want to let her know that her interests are your interests. It is perfectly proper to attend meetings of the Women's Liberation Front with her providing that the other members have also invited their young men.

You may become bored or confused with the discussions of fund-raising or picketings, or the plans to establish a foundation to find a workable way to make babies in a test tube, but do not reveal this to your militant. You can find your own conversational outlets by discussing football and sex with the other men in the kitchen as you are preparing coffee and cookies for the social hour after the business meeting.

You and your militant may in time fall in love and wish a more enduring relationship. At first, she will probably be afraid of the idea of marriage. You can help ease these fears by pointing out the comforts and advantages of a home, and by resisting her passionate importunations to "go all the way" without marriage.

One mistake that many young men make is the belief that it is easier and less expensive to terminate a tragic marriage with a women militant than with an old-fashioned girl. This is not true. An old-fashioned girl will demand alimony. The militant scorns alimony. You will find yourself paying her the same amount of money, only it will be called "reparations."

Memo to a Sexetary

By Charles Sutton

Whatever happened to all the ingenues?

Where have all those sweet, apple-cheeked innocents disappeared to, those tenderly lovable creatures who, as Newsweek's Jack Kroll recently put it, "stirred up a delicious surge of maleness in every mister ... making his heart beat to the rhythm of lover, brother, father and dirty old uncle?"

Kroll was addressing himself to the theater, but his question might just as well have been put to American society in general.

Where indeed have they gone?

Were they figments of our imagination? Or did the new age of sexuality catch up with them? The signposts are all around, of course: Carol Doda and topless, false eyelashes and false you-know-whats, minis and micros and wigs and waggles, Helen Gurley Brown and TV's "take it all off" girl, not to mention the stage productions of "Geese," "Hair," and "Oh, Calcutta."

If our ingenue is the least bit impressionable, she's got herself a wig by now, a tight-fitting micro, a pair of false eyelashes and makeup by Max Factor. In a word, she's got that s-e-x-y look. But if she's got any kind of a head on her shoulders, she also has the sense to know that it may not be the wisest thing to go looking for a job in all her sexual glory — not if she's trying to land a secretarial or office job. Most employers, it seems, frown on it. Which is not to say that if she's one of those luscious types with a shapely figure and delicious thighs, she's not going to get the drop on her more sedate competitors if she can also type better than 70 words a minute and take excellent shorthand. It's just that, all things being equal, the girl who dresses without flaunting her charms is the girl most likely to get a secretarial job these days. At least that's the consensus of those who do the hiring.

"Employers are really more interested in how well a girl types than how big her bust is," says Mrs. June Roper, manager of the Long Beach Human Resources Development Center — formerly the state employment office here. In fact, members of Mrs. Roper's staff have been known to issue some gentle advice on appearance to the "swingers" passing through their office. "We usually tell them that employers like a more conservative style of dress," says Ralph Thompson, an employment supervisor at the center. "I can't recall anyone ever taking offense," he adds.

"In our screening," says Robert Cunningham, manager of employment services for North American Rockwell's Space Division in Downey, "we look at what we consider to be good taste." And miniskirts that are very short are considered to be in poor taste, he says. Cunningham's staff, however, would think twice before disqualifying a girl simply because she seemed too obviously endowed. "If the young lady is qualified, but her dress is not appropriate," he says, "we call it to her attention." Sometimes, he adds, the girl may be asked to return another time in more acceptable attire.

The curious thing is, says a woman official of a large Long Beach business firm, "a lot of women feel that if they're not sexy looking, they won't get a job." Which isn't the case, of course. What's generally desired in a competent secretary, she explains, is presentableness. "It's usually a sign of competence," she explains. Moreover, she and others suspect that a girl who flaunts her sex is usually more interested in pleasing the men around the office than in doing her work. Which may or may not be true. But even if it isn't, it would be immaterial to the average office manager, who regards the sexy woman not as a study in female pulchritude, or as an object of male fantasy, but as an impediment to office efficiency.

There's no denying, of course, the marked effect that sexy girls have on the working habits of otherwise conscientious male office workers. The question is, is it all that bad? A lot of people seem to think it is, including some pretty virile men. Sex doesn't belong in the office, they feel. It's unbusinesslike and entirely too distracting. But a few diehards insist that girl-watching under any circumstances is a soul-lifting experience whose advantages far outweigh its disadvantages. They feel it's comparable to, if not more important than, the coffee break as a morale booster. "Frankly, I don't mind being a little inefficient," says one girl watcher, a psychiatrist. "If I were a surgeon, it would be different. But I'm only a head shrinker," he smiles.

Employment officials insist that a woman needn't be conspicuous about her charms to be appealing, attractive and even desirable. While they prefer presentableness to sexiness, some of them concede, however, that it's not easy to enforce modesty.

"You can't fight miniskirts," asserts personnel director Helen Folsom. Miss Folsom's experience indicates that today's clever young lady wears a relatively modest outfit while looking for a job, then switches — when it suits her fancy — to a sexy dress when she's on the job. All of which would seem to indicate that there's really no way of stopping the sexual revolution.

"What's sexy, anyway?" asks Miss Folsom in a question that surely suggests that one man's sexiness may be another man's poison. And why indeed, we might also ask, do girls show themselves off in ways that some people consider cheap, others

This 8-year-old girl's shoulder was badly burned. Scars tell the story of previous injuries inflicted by parents.

This spunky 5-year-old was burned with cigarets and matches. He carried many bruises on his body.

Here in brief are some nightmarish crimes against children:

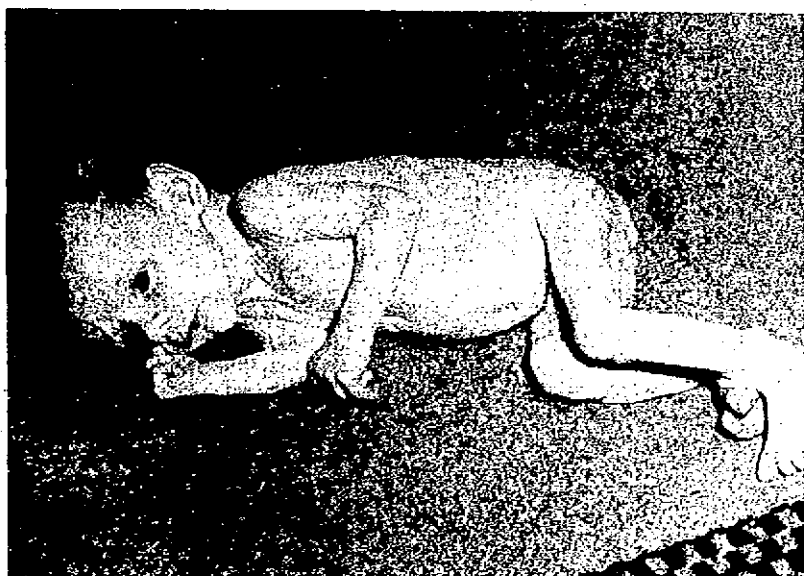

- A Lomita man beat his two-month-old daughter to death because she cried.
- An Anaheim man was convicted of felony child abuse after his son died of head injuries and multiple fractures.
- Twin babies were starved in Long Beach. One died, the other suffered permanent physical injury.
- The infant daughter of a young couple was hospitalized after being scalded and suffering internal injuries and many broken bones.
- Two Orange County infants were buried alive.
- A Stanton boy bled to death in a trash bin.
- A Laguna Beach baby with a broken skull was left to die in a vacant lot.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA

"She doesn't have much of a chance. She never did have," the doctor said, looking at the tiny figure on the emergency room operating table.

Tears flowed unchecked from the eyes of the nurse, a mature woman long hardened to scenes of human suffering.

A blue-green bruise covered half of the face of the two-year-old. Her body was criss-crossed by welts. The training panties were crusted with dried blood.

"She has a depressed skull fracture and there is internal bleeding," the doctor said. "Even if she had been in good health it would be an uphill battle. Only a miracle can save her."

The doctor did all he could, but there was no miracle. Two hours later Cindy, a lovable toddler, left a world in which no one had ever loved her.

Her murderers were her father and mother.

Fate had placed her in that pitiful parade of little children who are broken, abused, maimed, crippled, tortured, starved and murdered by their parents.

Postmortem examination revealed the extent of Cindy's injuries. Her body was pockmarked by the scars of cigaret burns. X-rays showed seven healed fractures. Her left shoulder was scarred, probably by scalding water. Torture had been her lot from birth.

The horror of Cindy's case is deepened when one learns it is not unusual. All policemen and most physicians have encountered cases of extreme parental brutality. It is estimated that one or two children are killed each day by their parents in the United States. There is no way to estimate how many more are victims of gross abuse and neglect. Dr. Vincent J. Fontana, director of pediatrics at St. Vincent's Hospital in New York and a crusader against child abuse, says:

"If the true statistics were known, it is my belief that it would be shown that abuse and neglect are the leading causes of death in children, exceeding infections, cancer and other diseases."

The facts are almost impossible to assemble. Dr. C. Henry Kempe of the University of Colorado School of Medicine first identified and attacked the battered-child syndrome a decade ago. He says, "For every child who is abused and treated at a hospital, there must be an additional 100 treated by unsuspecting doctors." Hundreds more are given treatment at home. The reported cases are like a visible iceberg, a small indication of what remains unseen. Some doctors accept the explanations of parents as to how the injuries occurred and do not express their misgivings.

Until recently doctors and nurses reporting suspicious injuries or deaths were subject to legal action by irate parents. Today, however, all 50 states have laws which require doctors to report suspected child-battering cases.

Child abuse and neglect is no new thing in human history. Sadistic cruelty often masked itself as necessary discipline. And there have always been persons incapable of controlling rage. Some observers, however, believe that offenses against children are increasing in our society. "It's a symptom of the times," said Dr. Fontana, "a part of the violence in this country and the world. And it will continue."

Whether he is right or not, public awareness of the problem has increased. No longer is a man's home a castle in which he can commit criminal offenses at whim. The police, the courts and the medical profession, backed by the general public, hold that the welfare of children is everybody's concern.

Even with public awareness many offenses go unpunished. "The bodies of 50 to 75 murdered babies each year end up on a slab in the Los Angeles County morgue," said Dr. Russell Henry of the coroner's office. He estimated that at least 700 child murders go undetected each year.

Dr. Wyman Sanders, of the UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute, says there are approximately 1,000 cases of child abuse in the county each year, and in the United States as many as 200,000 to 250,000 children "need the assistance of protective services during a year. Of these children, between 10 and 20 per cent suffer permanent brain damage or die."

The vulnerability of the victims angers Mrs. Helen Boardman, director of social services for Los Angeles Children's Hospital. "Almost one third of the battered children treated at this hospital are three months old or younger, and almost half are a year old or younger."

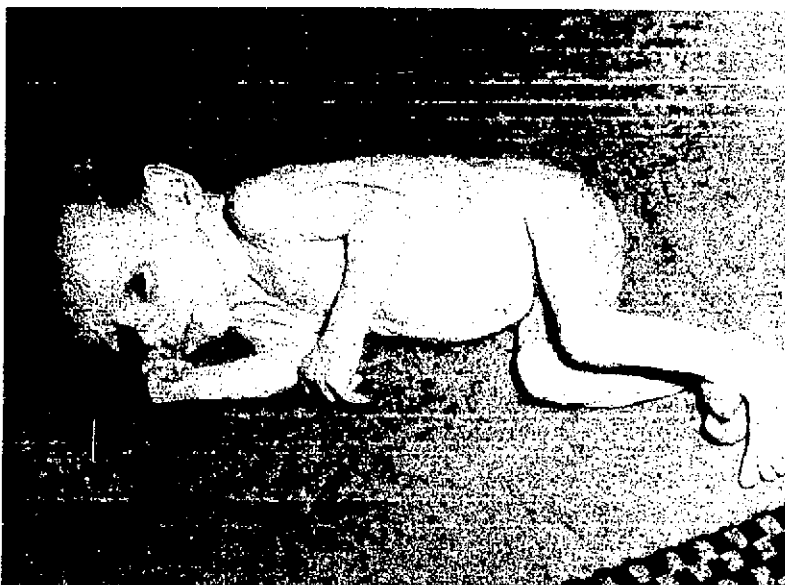

What kind of persons commit crimes so repugnant to normal human beings?

Well, they are not inevitably the product of poverty and ignorance. The parents who maim and murder their offspring are a cross-section of the Parents who abuse their children will go to any length to avoid detection. Often they use phony names, switch doctors and travel long distances to different hospitals. Once unmasked, they manufacture impossible fabrications to explain the injuries as simple household mishaps. If that fails, they construct complex, pathetic excuses to justify their use of violence.

Excuses for brutality are often strange. "She kept wetting her diapers so I sat her on the radiator until she was dry to teach her a lesson," a mother said. The baby has permanent scars on her buttocks. "She was always crying and made me nervous, so I slapped her until she went to sleep," another mother said. The child was in a coma. "I guess I showed him who was boss around here," the drill sergeant said after he had split his 18-month-old son's skull with a board.

might abuse some other child.

All states have laws dealing with the mistreatment of children. But laws alone are not enough. "Perhaps our present child abuse laws are just window dressing," Dr. Fontana said. "Perhaps we have let them relieve our consciences. But reporting is just the first step. Something more has to happen." He called for increased communication between law enforcement agencies, social services, medical facilities and the courts.

State Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, feels it is imperative to remove youngsters from abusive homes. A bill the senator guided through the Legislature amended the state penal code to provide stiffer penalties for child abuse.

"But the problem cannot be cured legislatively," Kennick said. "The public must become involved by reporting suspected cases of child abuse and by being willing to open their homes to these unfortunate children."

"The courts might be more willing to separate these mistreated children from their parents if the taxpayers were more willing to assume the burden of providing care for them."

No matter what the law says, prosecution remains difficult. Deputy District Attorney John Minor of Los Angeles said, "We are forced to prove beyond reasonable doubt who — which parent — actually did the beating." The parents often have a protective feeling toward each other and cannot be forced to testify against each other.

Child abuse is often "hereditary" in the sense that abused children — if they survive — tend to become abusive parents. Lacking love in childhood they have no way of knowing how to give love, according to Dr.

Should abusive parents be jailed as criminals or treated as mentally ill persons?

And what of their victims?

The right of little ones to life is the first consideration.

"The most important step is to protect the child," said an aroused public — willing to accept responsibility, willing to become involved — can insure their RIGHT TO LIFE!

A common complaint, echoed by most juvenile officers, concerns the long delay between the assault and the ultimate court appearance of suspected parents. In the interim, witnesses move away or forget important details, vivid elements of the brutality fade, fractures heal, bruises disappear and the child's hurt subsides, often leaving only a sterile police report as evidence.

"I believe in preserving the home, but not if it means sacrificing the child."

"Many abusive parents need psychiatric help," said Dr. Fontana, "and therapy sessions are often ordered by the courts.

"I believe in preserving the home, but not if it means sacrificing the child. The courts too often follow the concept that the child belongs to the mother and the mother belongs to the child," he added.

In many cases such a concept has resulted in a death warrant for the child. A 3-year-old girl, taken from a foster home and returned to her mother and stepfather — despite evidences of abuse — was beaten to death. The stepfather was charged with murder. In a similar case, a 4-year-old boy — treated six weeks earlier for injuries inflicted through abuse — was beaten to death by his mother and father.

Lack of communication between agencies dealing with the problem sometimes leads to unnecessary deaths, according to Dr. Fontana.

Superior Court Judge Wisor said jailing of guilty parents often does not solve the problem. "Each case must be studied and dealt with individually," he explained. "Sending a breadwinner, mother or father, to jail can destroy an entire family and force an added load on the welfare rolls. Each case must be weighed and decided on its merits."

The dispute between those who urge psychiatric care for abusive parents and those who advocate tough criminal prosecution remains unsolved. Yet progress is evident in steps being taken to deal with the problem.

For example, the state has established Protective Services for Children to provide immediate attention in meeting problems of abused and neglected youngsters. The objective, according to Mrs. Marion Carlson, a department supervisor, is to strengthen parents' ability to meet the needs of their children and to provide substitute parents where needed.

In another action, the state has established a Central Index to collect and compile information aimed at expediting the efforts of local agencies in dealing with battered child cases.

Universities are conducting studies for greater understanding of the battered child syndrome and how to correct it.

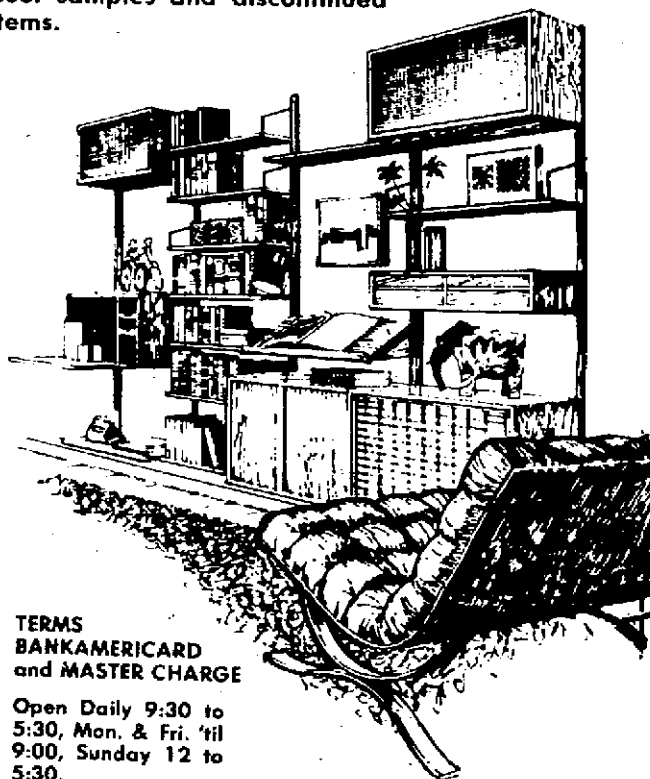

In Long Beach, according to Dr. Dan Langston, director of child welfare services for the Long Beach Unified School District, a special district guidance and appeals committee has been set up to investigate suspected child abuse and institute immediate corrective action.

"Relatives, friends and neighbors must be willing to report brutalities."

Official action is an important — but limited — move in the right direction. The most vital step, however, must be taken by concerned citizens. Relatives, friends and neighbors must be willing to report brutality, suspicious injuries and other telltale signs. An aroused public — willing to accept responsibility, willing to become involved — can be the future hope of thousands of children who, without help, may be denied the RIGHT TO LIFE! □

A Philadelphia psychiatrist says that a certain type of tranquilizer can be useful in diagnosing mental illness or in determining the severity of an emotional disorder.

Dr. Martin B. Goldstein, who is also an osteopathic physician, says the test helps him to distinguish between the psychotic patient and the one who is pre-psychotic or not psychotic at all.

The test is based on the observation that a daily dose of up to 300 milligrams of a phenothiazine-type drug will make a normal person of average weight drowsy. But a psychotic can tolerate a higher dose.

Used in the test is one of three phenothiazine derivatives — Thorazine, Mellaril and Sparine. The drugs are also known by the names chlorpromazine, thioridazine and promazine, respectively.

In general, says Dr. Goldstein, the greater the dosage required to develop drowsiness, the more severe the illness.

He calls the test 95 per cent accurate.

Dr. Goldstein described the test for a meeting of the American Osteopathic Association. Details on how to perform the test can be found in Medical World News, a publication for physicians.

thing tract — which set the stage for infection.

Pulmonary function improved in most patients after intravenous injection of the antibiotic.

NEW LEUKEMIA CLUE? Children who develop anemia soon after a serious virus infection should be watched closely by a doctor for some time afterward, a doctor warns.

Reason? The child may develop leukemia.

Dr. Isadore Brodsky of Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia says animal studies indicate some anemias may actually be preleukemic states.

Anemia often has persisted for many years before the development of leukemia, the doctor says.

Details are in Internist Observer, a medical newspaper.

STRANGE AILMENT: The Chinese Restaurant syndrome has spread to at least one French restaurant.

The syndrome is a collection of symptoms reported by some persons after eating Chinese restaurant food. The culprit has been identified as monosodium glutamate, a flavor enhancer.

Symptoms include headache, flushing, numbness and tightening about the face and a burning feeling at the back of the neck.

Dr. Vincent F. Guinee of the New York City Health Department has made a study of recent episodes of the syndrome and says that one episode occurred in a French restaurant in New York.

Symptoms appear 15 to 30 minutes after starting to eat and last only 30 minutes to three hours.

Dr. Guinee reported his studies to the American Public Health Association.

AID FOR CF VICTIMS: Patients with cystic fibrosis may benefit from a new antibiotic, carbenicillin, researchers report.

The drug helped 77 per cent of a group of hospitalized patients troubled with severe lung involvement. The ailment is marked by thick mucous plugs in the brea-

NIGHT SAFETY: Light-reflective tags should be attached to children's clothing at night, urges the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Such a move, contends the Academy, would help to reduce the more than 1,000 childhood deaths attributed each year to poor visibility during evening hours.

Another approach: Light-reflective substances could be incorporated into the design of the garment.

The suggestion appears in Public Health Reports, a medical journal.

BLOOD BANK BOON: A freezing process that will preserve blood safely for at least 10 years is to be introduced into seven regional Red Cross blood banks on an experimental basis.

The new preservation method is important because outdated in storage is the chief source of loss to the national blood supply. In most blood banks, whole blood and red blood cells become unsuitable for transfusion after 21 days.

The new storage process has been described here before in detail. Briefly, it involves removal of plasma (liquid portion), addition of a preservative substance called glycerol, and deepfreezing for long-term storage. Before use, the blood must be thawed and processed.

A Philadelphia psychiatrist says that a certain type of tranquilizer can be useful in diagnosing mental illness or in determining the severity of an emotional disorder.

Dr. Martin B. Goldstein, who is also an osteopathic physician, says the test helps him to distinguish between the psychotic patient and the one who is pre-psychotic or not psychotic at all.

The test is based on the observation that a daily dose of up to 300 milligrams of a phenothiazine-type drug will make a normal person of average weight drowsy. But a psychotic can tolerate a higher dose.

Used in the test is one of three phenothiazine derivatives — Thorazine, Mellaril and Sparine. The drugs are also known by the names chlorpromazine, thioridazine and promazine, respectively.

In general, says Dr. Goldstein, the greater the dosage required to develop drowsiness, the more severe the illness.

He calls the test 95 per cent accurate. Dr. Goldstein described the test for a meeting of the American Osteopathic Association. Details on how to perform the test can be found in Medical World News, a publication for physicians.

Pulmonary function improved in most patients after intravenous injection of the antibiotic.

NEW LEUKEMIA CLUE? Children who develop anemia soon after a serious virus infection should be watched closely by a doctor for some time afterward, a doctor warns.

Reason? The child may develop leukemia.

Dr. Isadore Brodsky of Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia says animal studies indicate some anemias may actually be preleukemic states.

Anemia often has persisted for many years before the development of leukemia, the doctor says.

Details are in Internist Observer, a medical newspaper.

NIGHT SAFETY: Light-reflective tags should be attached to children's clothing at night, urges the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Such a move, contends the Academy, would help to reduce the more than 1,000 childhood deaths attributed each year to poor visibility during evening hours.

Another approach: Light-reflective substances could be incorporated into the design of the garment.

The suggestion appears in Public Health Reports, a medical journal.

AID FOR CF VICTIMS: Patients with cystic fibrosis may benefit from a new antibiotic, carbenicillin, researchers report.

The drug helped 77 per cent of a group of hospitalized patients troubled with severe lung involvement. The ailment is marked by thick mucous plugs in the brea-artfully expressive and still others well, just plain sexy?

Perhaps, suggests Dr. Murray Korngold, a clinical psychologist in Beverly Hills, it's because "women have been defined as sex objects. Given that cultural criterion, it's no wonder that some girls flaunt their physical attributes. Of course, the trend toward open sexuality in recent years has also been a strong influence on female style," Dr. Korngold adds.

Dr. George Demos, a professor of educational psychology at California State College at Long Beach, is inclined to think that some girls who make a blatant show of their sex do it to gain attention. There's an element of the hunt in it, too, he says, explaining that many girls regard sexy dress as a means of attracting eligible males. Moreover, some people like to be commented on, the psychologist adds. And for well-endowed girls, what better way to attract comment than through dress?

Another theory suggests that girls who expose their sex indiscreetly are frequently women who are "fearful of close personal relationships" — or contact sex, if you will. They cover up their fears, explains Dr. Demos, with the facade of a sexy appearance. Down deep, the theory goes, the girl may be "quite a cold person." The phenomenon is similar to what psychologists call the reaction formation, says Dr. Demos — a situation in which a person acts contrary to his or her real feelings. The late art patroness Mabel Dodge Luhan put it well once when she said that vanity is "but another name for being uncertain of oneself." Yet Dr. Demos says it's hard to tell by appearance alone precisely where a girl stands on the psychological scale, or what her innermost feelings are about sex. It's entirely possible, says one perceptive young woman — and Dr. Demos would probably agree with her — that some girls dress in sexy attire because they actually feel sexy. "Sometimes a woman puts on a sexy dress," says the young lady, "because it suits her mood. Other times she does so because it's an artistic expression of herself. It's really unfair to make generalizations," she insists.

If the young lady is correct, then employers who discourage sexy attire might possibly be charged with a form of censorship. Some observers wonder whether their policy doesn't really reflect that curious strain in our national character — our Puritanism — that has always kept us at odds with ourselves over the question of sex. They wonder, in fact, whether, as a nation, we aren't a bit frightened by sex.

If the answer isn't apparent on the surface, there's something to be said for a discussion of the subject anyway. After all, didn't George Bernard Shaw once say there are only three things intelligent people talk about — sex, religion and politics? □

NORAH MITCHELL (Mrs. James W.) is pictured in her newly and extensively remodeled kitchen at 183 E. 67th Way, Long Beach. The Mitchells are long time California residents. Norah is associated with Lucky Markets and Jim is with ICX trucking lines. They purchased their older but charming home about 3 years ago and have concerned themselves with modernizing the house in keeping with its architectural charm. "The design and installation of our beautiful new kitchen was accomplished by the Mr. Kitchen Remodeling Center," says Mrs. Mitchell. The Mr. Kitchen Remodeling Center is located at 1819 Redondo, Long Beach, 597-5561.

AN INVITATION TO SKI is extended here by attractive Kate Alfsen of LONNIE'S SKI SHOP & SPORTING GOODS. The store features all the top names in ski equipment such as the Kneissl skis shown. Beginners can get outfitted for the slopes here, while the shop also caters to every specialized need of the seasoned pro. What's more, Kate said, the ski shop can fit you with the latest in before-and-after-ski fashions in addition to the tough outerwear needed for the downhill run. Sweaters shown are from a fine collection which includes domestic names such as White Stag and imports such as Meister. Stop in now, Kate suggested, while skiing is at its best. The store is located at 2120 Bellflower Blvd., on the mall in the LOS ALTOS SHOPPING CENTER.

Remodeling on The Increase

by
Robby Robertson
MR. KITCHEN'S
REMODELING CENTER

The unbelievable sum of almost 13 billion dollars is spent annually to remodel kitchens, add on rooms and make other general home improvements. Most experts feel that this figure will go over 20 billion dollars per year over the next five years. More people are remodeling now than ever before in the history of the construction business. The remodeling taking place in the Long Beach, Lakewood area is undoubtedly on top of the list as far as home improvements are concerned. It seems like everybody is doing it. No one is moving — they're all improving.

For further information call Mr. Kitchen's Remodeling Center, 1819 Redondo Long Beach, 597-5561.

Q: Gregory Peck is my idea of a dignified movie star. How does he feel about a famous actor like Charlton Heston showing his bare derriere in "Planet of the Apes"? — I.M.S., Houston.

A: With his usual candor, Mr. Peck responds: "Actors in the nude is a sad. It will pass. That which is legitimate will remain. As for middle-aged men putting their rear ends on view, you know this is foolish. Who wants to see that? They should be using their heads instead of their rumps to make a living."

Q: Henry Cabot Lodge, who represented us at the Paris peace talks — what does he know about war? — Charles L., Springfield, Mass.

A: Plenty. Resigning his Senate seat early in World War II, he went on active duty as a major with the 1st American Tank Detachment in the British Eighth Army. Saw action in Italy, France and Germany. At one point, rumbling along a bomb-pocked road, he jumped out of his jeep, pulled his .45 and single-handedly captured a four-man German patrol. Holding the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star with six clusters and the Croix de Guerre (among others), Lodge retired in 1945 as a brigadier general.

A: Here are quick answers to the questions hundreds of readers ask about the star of NBC's "Then Came Bronson" — Michael Parks. The blue-eyed, five-eleven, 160-pound actor was born April 24, 1938, in Corona, Calif. . . . His family had no roots . . . "Home" was an empty warehouse, a garage, an available camp site . . . He attended 21 schools . . . Went on his own at 15, taking odd jobs for eating money — such as upholstering caskets, baling hay, lighting fires . . . Been a motorcycle buff since he was 10 and does not require stuntmen or doubles to ride his "Bronson Special," a modified stock model Harley Davidson Sportster . . . He does sing the series theme himself and cut an MGM album of country songs, "Closing the Gap" . . . His wife Kay and three children live on wheels, accompanying him on location from the desert to the Rockies, through small towns and urban centers . . . He appeared in "Wild Seed," "The Idol" and other films. Guested on "Perry Mason," "A Day in Court" and "Ben Casey." In the movie, "The Bible," Michael played Adam the hard way — with clothes on!

Q: Is my memory failing, or did I once see Mer Opera star Robert Merrill in burlesque with comedian Pinky Lee? — Edward Kinnon, Newark, N.J.

A: Your memory is elephantine. Back in the hungry days, Merrill sang between strip-tease dancers in burlesque, while diminutive, lisping comedian Pinky Lee heckled him from the balcony.

Q: Isn't composer Burt Bacharach, who wrote "Alfie" and other popular songs, the same Burt Bacharach who bylines a men's fashion column? — T. Sheard, Chicago.

A: No. Songwriter Burt Bacharach (married to actress Angie Dickinson) is the son of columnist Bert Bacharach. They were recently feted as New York's March of Dimes "Men of the Year" — first time a famous father and son were so honored.

A HOUSE

Ficus Benjamina is a plant with no problems—no
insects, no microbes, no fungi. It grows
7 or 8 feet tall.

Dieffenbachia is known as the mother-in-law plant. It is very expensive—and deadly poisonous.

A house should be more than a box to shut out the weather. It should be alive. It should have big people and little people and dogs and cats and birds. Of course, one can't always have all those advantages.
But everyone can have living plants and flowers. These also belong in the scene.

The accents or accessories are the frosting on the home, and possibly the most important accent would be flowers or plants.

In selecting plants for the home, it is wise to consider:

Types of plants suited for indoors

Placement of the plants

Light requirements

Care and feeding of plants

How to pot the plants most effectively.

Bruce Mason, manager of indoor plants and florist for Park Nursery in Long Beach, provided a wealth of information regarding the care and upbringing of household plants.

According to Mason, the plants most contented in semi-light are the Dracaena family (massangeana, warneckii and sanderiana), rubber plants, including the weeping ficus benjamina, and Sansevieria. The lush low Chinese evergreen also would thrive in a low-light area.

Much light but no direct sun will produce all varieties of ferns, African violets,
spathiphyllum and anthurium.

There always are old-faithful ivy types which are now being developed into delightful lollipop topiaries.

Orchids are readily grown indoors if you have a bright moist area, and don't overlook the bathroom for ideal growing conditions — especially if you have fluorescent lighting.

Philodendron isn't an especially good houseplant unless it is multi-planted around a sphagnum totem. The large leaves head for the direct light which tends to give a stringy appearance. If it is circular planted, it must be moved frequently.

In the placement of plants it is as simple as "height requires height." In the high-ceiling room tall plants can be a near-art form if architectural slenderness is produced by the airy palms or drooping ficus.

Low-flowing plants or miniatures are table-top accents but ferns show off to advantage from the old-timey fern stand, although a new-timey pedestal in plastic or wood would be just as effective.

Any room is livelier with a plant or two.
All you have to do is select the correct one for the space ... and don't hang on like grim death to a plant that has seen better days.

No indoor plant will last forever and a few months or years of pleasure for a reasonable initial cost is all you can expect.
Don't feel obligated to revive a last-gasp
plant.

Try not to kill the plants with kindness
... such as overwatering or fresh air. In-lush low Chinese evergreen also would thrive in a low-light area.

Much light but no direct sun will produce all varieties of ferns, African violets,
spathiphyllum and anthurium.

There always are old-faithful ivy types which are now being developed into delightful lollipop topiaries.

Orchids are readily grown indoors if you have a bright moist area, and don't overlook the bathroom for ideal growing conditions — especially if you have fluorescent lighting.

Philodendron isn't an especially good houseplant unless it is multi-planted around a sphagnum totem. The large leaves head for the direct light which tends to give a stringy appearance. If it is circular planted,
it must be moved frequently.

In the placement of plants it is as simple as "height requires height." In the high-ceiling room tall plants can be a near-art form if architectural slenderness is produced by the airy palms or drooping ficus.

Low-flowing plants or miniatures are table-top accents but ferns show off to advantage from the old-timey fern stand, although a new-timey pedestal in plastic or wood would be just as effective.

Any room is livelier with a plant or two.
All you have to do is select the correct one for the space ... and don't hang on like grim death to a plant that has seen better days.

No indoor plant will last forever and a few months or years of pleasure for a reasonable initial cost is all you can expect.
Don't feel obligated to revive a last-gasp
plant.

Try not to kill the plants with kindness
... such as overwatering or fresh air. Indoor plants are climatized and do best at 70-degree temperature, so don't cool them off.

The best moisture test suggested by Mason is to use a stick in the dirt. A pencil will do, or a chopstick (not plastic or lacquered through...) Pull out the stick and if there is earth attached, it has had enough to drink... if the stick comes up dry as a bone, add water until it drains through the bottom.

If you are using a no-drain pot, it is wise to use charcoal instead of rocks in the bottom for drainage. Rocks have a tendency to create water build-up.

Feeding is a must and a good fish fertilizer will provide the required vitamins. Most plants thrive on a once-a-month feeding, but ferns are a bit more spoiled... they like a jolt every two weeks or so. Ferns also like a pot that doesn't dry out (such as plastic or metal).

Blooming plants other than violets, bromeliads and anthurium are only short-term investments. Instant color is neat with chrysanthemums, daisies, tulips and azaleas, so enjoy them and plant them outside when they wilt.

If you have an informal, casual or Mediterranean home, the good old stand-by clay pot is a fine and inexpensive choice. Terra cotta is a bit more sophisticated but will lend itself well to most home furnishings. Be sure the saucer is glazed or the moisture will destroy the surface it sits on.

Pared down architectural shapes in bold colors are fine in the simplistic atmosphere, but stoneware has more warmth and will give a nice earthy look to complement the plant.

High-glaze pottery bases are at their best in an Oriental setting (although stoneware also is recommended.)

Lacy ceramic pots do well with Italian or French provincial surroundings.

If yours is the natural architecture with much wood, a good highlight might be the brass base. However, with a metal base, alkali will cause erosion and a good preventive would be a coat of liquid tar on the inside before planting.

Buy the plant to fit the space, don't wait for it to grow, that way you will enjoy the full lifetime and won't have to change pots.

To balance pot and plant, measure your pot, adding together width and height, and your plant can range from one and a half to three times that total figure.

Delicate, slender plants should, for balance, have slender pots, although a dramatic touch with a tall plant would be the flat rounded base. This could be tricky and should be done professionally.

If you wish to use your clay pot or metal nursery insert, buy your decorative base in one-to-five-gallon size openings.

If you use this double potting method, it is best if your utility pot is well below the top of the decorative one.

A final "don't"... don't clean the underside of any leaf... that's where it breathes and you will surely destroy it.

If you insist on shiny leaves it is suggested you use a professional spray, always spraying down then wiping off the excess. □

The food of Mexico is much more than beans and tamales. The Mexican cook is ingenious and adaptable and in a country extending from the semi-arid north to the tropical jungles of the south and from the Caribbean Sea to the Pacific there are innumerable variations even in the basic recipes.

There are some dishes, however, which are, and always will be, synonymous with Old Mexico. Two of those we suggest today, Enchilada and Chili Con Carne. Be sure to clip and keep the recipes.

Enchilada Sanborn

12 corn tortillas (6-inch size)

Enchilada Sauce, heated

2 yellow onions, minced

1 lb. Cheddar cheese, grated

Chili Con Carne (about 2 cups), heated

2 cups hot, cooked rice (optional)

Have ready 4 small oven-proof bowls or individual pie plates. Dip tortillas in warm enchilada sauce. For each Sanborn, place a dipped tortilla in bottom of bowl. Sprinkle with some onion, then cheese and about 1 tablespoon enchilada sauce. Top with about 1/4 cup chili and 1/4 cup rice, if desired. Repeat layers. (Use all of the chili and rice but reserve some of the onions and cheese.) For the last layer, add a dipped tortilla, some onion and sprinkle generously with cheese. Bake at 400 degrees about 15 minutes or until cheese melts and Sanborns are heated through. Four servings.

MIKE COMMINOS
Fascinating Antiques

The menu at the new Ranch House Restaurant, 1600 Pacific Coast Hwy., Seal Beach, makes this thoughtful observation:

"The true essence of culinary art is time. We ask your kind indulgence..."

The Ranch House, a handsome establishment decorated with novel, fascinating antiques, has an old-fashioned idea about food preparation. Owner Mike Comminos and his executive chef, John Cirillo, frown on the use of packaged mixes and other quick methods. They believe that each item whenever possible should be cooked to order, making it fresh and tempting in flavor, aroma and appearance.

This doesn't mean that the guests must wait long periods for their food. Hardly. John and his assistants are efficient as well as skilled. Consequently, dinner at the Ranch House takes no longer than at any other quality establishment.

John is particularly renowned for his continental sauces. He uses wines, herbs and gentle spices to create heavenly flavors for such creations as piatto, stuffed abalone, tenderloin of beef Stroganoff, veal Oscar, scaloppini Marsala and cioppino, the robust Italian sea food bouillabaisse.

What is piatto? It's one of the most popular Italian entrees at the Ranch House, consisting of thin sliced filet mignon with eggplant, parmesan cheese, fresh mushrooms, melted cheloma cheese and a burgundy sauce. It's $4.50 on an epicurean dinner including Manhattan clam chowder or crisp salad, rice or baked potato, hot garlic cheese-bread and beverage.

The abalone, stuffed with crabmeat and accompanied by a rich buttery white wine sauce, is $4.95. Other dinners, such as sauteed chicken livers, are from $2.95. The restaurant also receives high compliments for the quality of its choice steaks, lobster tail and thick juicy slices of prime rib.

Each Sunday, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., manager Mike Dimas and his large staff offer a special $1.25 breakfast, including ham, sausage or bacon with eggs, toast and farm-style potatoes. Also served are fancy omelettes.

The restaurant, open weekdays for luncheon, is spacious, with banquet facilities for groups from 20 to 185. Comminos, born in Youngstown, Ohio, came to Long Beach in 1946 and has operated several restaurants here. He bought the Ranch House last summer, remodeled it extensively and furnished it with antiques he collected on the East Coast.

John is particularly renowned for his continental sauces. He uses wines, herbs and gentle spices to create heavenly flavors for such creations as piatto, stuffed abalone, tenderloin of beef Stroganoff, veal Oscar, scaloppini Marsala and cioppino, the robust Italian sea food bouillabaisse.

What is piatto? It's one of the most popular Italian entrees at the Ranch House, consisting of thin sliced filet mignon with eggplant, parmesan cheese, fresh mushrooms, melted cheloma cheese and a burgundy sauce. It's $4.50 on an epicurean dinner including Manhattan clam chowder or crisp salad, rice or baked potato, hot garlic cheese-bread and beverage.

The abalone, stuffed with crabmeat and accompanied by a rich buttery white wine sauce, is $4.95. Other dinners, such as sauteed chicken livers, are from $2.95. The restaurant also receives high compliments for the quality of its choice steaks, lobster tail and thick juicy slices of prime rib.

Each Sunday, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., manager Mike Dimas and his large staff offer a special $1.25 breakfast, including ham, sausage or bacon with eggs, toast and farm-style potatoes. Also served are fancy omelettes.

The restaurant, open weekdays for luncheon, is spacious, with banquet facilities for groups from 20 to 185. Comminos, born in Youngstown, Ohio, came to Long Beach in 1946 and has operated several restaurants here. He bought the Ranch House last summer, remodeled it extensively and furnished it with antiques he collected on the East Coast.

GUIDE by Tedd Thomey

ONE DAY many years ago, a teen-aged youth named Hubert Hust got a job at Ricart's restaurant (now The Tenderloin) on Atlantic Avenue. Since he was inexperienced, he was assigned the lowliest, hardest job in the kitchen — that of pot-washer.

But Hubert didn't mind. Born in Oklahoma, he came from a family that was used to hard work and which raised its children according to the Biblical principle that "In the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat bread."

Hubert was the best pot scrubber ever to work at Ricart's. He was a cheerful, obedient boy, quick to learn, and before long he was promoted to more important kitchen duties. Eventually he became a cook's assistant and then a chef, employed at better restaurants and cafeterias in Long Beach.

Ten years ago restaurateur Andy Gassaway became so busy that he decided to sell one of his several restaurants. He chose Hubert as the buyer, aware that he was reliable, hard-working and would take good care of its many friends and customers. Under Hubert's guidance the restaurant prospered as never before.

When Andy retired because of poor health, he sold Hubert his restaurants at 643½ Pine Ave. and 218 E. Broadway. Today, renamed Hubert's Cafeterias, they are two of the most successful organizations in town. Because of his philosophy of offering his patrons top quality food at modest prices, Hubert has hundreds upon hundreds of friends who continually spread the good word about the cafeterias, telling others: "Try the roast beef at Hubert's. It's the greatest!"

Both cafeterias are open Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., serving superb dinners, ranging from that tender, juicy roast beef to Swiss steak, savory leg of lamb, chicken and dumplings and baked ham. The colorful accompaniments are salad, potato, vegetable, hot roll or muffin made in Hubert's bakery, beverage and dessert. The prices are $1.60 to $1.70. Dinners of such quality would easily cost $2.50 or more elsewhere.

Both restaurants are open every day, serving breakfast and luncheon as well as dinners. They are attractive, immaculate places staffed with employees who do their best to be as cheerful and friendly as their boss.

WALTER SCOTT'S Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y., 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Is it true that Sen. Edward Kennedy paid the Arthur D. Little company of Cambridge, Mass., thousands of dollars to re-enact with dummies the car accident involving him and Mary Jo Kopechne?—Lois Lamb, Roxbury, Mass.

A. Senator Kennedy's attorneys retained the Arthur D. Little company to conduct tests on the car in which Mary Jo Kopechne died. The tests indicated that the force with which the car hit the water may have stunned her or knocked her out. A dummy, duplicating the size and weight of Miss Kopechne, was used in the tests. The Arthur D. Little company declines to reveal how much Kennedy was charged.

BARBRA STREISAND

PIERRE TRUDEAU

Q. The dating between Barbra Streisand and Pierre Trudeau, Prime Minister of Canada—is it serious?—Carol Rabinowitz, Jersey City, N.J.

A. Trudeau is a swinger, likes show business girls, gives many of them the benefit of his companionship. Streisand is merely on his string.

Q. Poor Diane Linkletter—did she commit suicide under the influence of LSD or because she was unhappy with her very secret marriage? Why, in all the newspaper accounts, has nothing been printed about this tragic girl's marriage? She was a schoolmate of mine, and I know she was married at 17.—D. E., Palm Springs, Calif.

A. Diane Linkletter was obviously mentally sick when she took her own life. Her motivation is, of course, unfathomable. Her father, Art Linkletter, claims she was a user of LSD and attributes the suicide to that fact. It is also true that at age 17, Diane was married to 19-year-old Grant Conroy. The teenage marriage was subsequently annulled. The newspapers printed no background information on the marriage because it was kept quiet by both families.

Q. Western singer Hank Williams—was he really part of a dope-smuggling ring?—Robert W. Matthews Conroe, Tex.

A. Recently, Mrs. Irene Williams Smith, sister of the late Hank Williams, country and western singer, was sentenced to eight years in prison on a charge of attempted smuggling of cocaine worth $7 million into the U.S. from Mexico. Mrs. Smith, a prominent Dallas businesswoman, claimed she was innocent. Her late brother had nothing to do with smuggling.

Q. Is Lawrence Welk a woman-hater? Is that why he fires so many of his female singers?—T. L., Minot, N.D.

A. Welk is no woman-hater, but he's a hard taskmaster. Violate or abridge his rules, and out you go, male or female.

Q. I understand that ex-President Johnson tried to censor the book My Brother Lyndon, by Sam Houston Johnson, by using his sister Rebekah to intervene with Look magazine. Is this so?—A. T., Austin, Tex.

A. When Cowles Book Company signed Sam Houston Johnson to write a book about his brother, it was specified that the book would not be submitted to Lyndon Johnson for approval, suggestions, or censorship. It never was. Galleys were sent to the author who was staying with his sister, Mrs. Rebekah Bobbitt in Austin, Tex. In Sam's absence, Mrs. Bobbitt read the galleys, and penned a lengthy critique of the work. Accompanied by her husband, Oscar Price Bobbitt, senior vice president of KTBC, the TV station owned by the Johnsons in Austin, she flew to New York with her critique. There she demanded of Charles Heckelmann, Sam's editor, that approximately 200 changes be made in the book about L. B. J. Politely, Heckelmann refused, and no changes were made.

In Austin, it is now joked that Lyndon Johnson will change the title of his own memoirs to read, My Brother Sam.

LYNDON AND SAM HOUSTON JOHNSON

Q. Was Tom Jones ever on relief in England?—Hallie Stack, Vero Beach, Fla.

A. Three years ago, singer Tom Jones, now a multimillionaire and the highest-priced singer in show business, was on national assistance in Wales. This is roughly equivalent to our unemployment insurance setup.

Q. How old is Frank Sinatra's latest love, Carol Lynley? Will he marry her?—Matilda Burton, Oneonta, N.Y.

A. Carol Lynley is 26. Supposedly Sinatra swore off matrimony after his third marriage, to Mia Farrow, turned sour. But Miss Lynley has the beauty and just about the right intellectual capacity to keep Sinatra and his pedagogical complex in action.

Q. Cynthia Rosenwald who writes some of Spiro Agnew's speeches—when was she graduated from Goucher College in Baltimore?—Mrs. Robert Terrell, Arlington, Va.

A. Mrs. Rosenwald was never graduated from Goucher College. She attended intermittently from 1959 to 1963, left to have two children, then returned. She is still shy three credits for graduation.

Q. Pat Nixon, the President's wife, looks as if she has been losing weight ever since she moved into the White House? Is she a size 6, 8, or 10?—Goldi Sutton, San Clemente, Calif.

A. At this writing, a 6.

Q. How many U.S. troops do we have in Europe? Why does Senator Mansfield want them brought home?—N. L. Snyder, Butte, Mont.

A. As of last month, we had approximately 315,000 troops in Europe, also 235,000 dependents and 14,000 civilians employed by the U.S. in Western Europe. The Senator doesn't want all the troops brought home. He wants a substantial reduction, because U.S. forces in Europe are "a voracious consumer of U.S. resources, a source of inflation, and, in present circumstances, a factor in the reduction of the international strength of the dollar."

history!

This valuable commemorative envelope is cancelled with a unique Moon-Landing Postmark. Both stamp and postmark were created from dies carried to the Moon and back by our Apollo 11 Astronauts. The cover features a century-old woodcut from Jules Verne's best-selling novel of 1865 predicting 3 Americans would be first to land on the Moon. We are not taking orders for this sensational cover — we think it is priceless; but we'll give you one free of extra cost to introduce the exciting hobby of stamp collecting and our famous stamps-on-approval service. You get over 100 other stamps including spectacular Space Issues plus an Illustrated Album — yours to keep as a bonus should you buy $1 worth from our approval selection. Or you can return album and stamps with selection and buy nothing. Cancel service anytime. But in either case the "Postmarked Moon" Cover is yours to keep. Send $2 for postage and handling today while supplies last!

Kennore Co., Midland NC 474, N. Hamp. 03055

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Little boys such as Chuck and Doug Daniels, Bernie Kistler and Billy Reach are far too young to think about college. The eldest of them is only 6 and they're pretty busy with all the games youngsters play. But somebody else has been thinking about college for them and that's why each of them already has a $1500 nest egg to his credit toward the future expense of education. And that's also why each will someday be grateful for the heartening slogan—"The Big Red One Takes Care of Its Own."

"The Big Red One" is the U.S. Army's First Infantry Division—so called because its shoulder patch is a husky red Number 1 on a green background. The Society of the First Division, a sort of alumni association of the thousands of men who've worn that patch in peace and war, has established a scholarship fund. From it every child of a First Division enlisted man or officer who loses his life in Vietnam is awarded a $1500 stipend to help pay eventual college bills.

"We want them to know our hearts are with them," says Arthur L. Chait, executive secretary of the society which has headquarters here in Philadelphia. "Loyalty of First Division people to each other has been a very real concept over the years. Our scholarship fund helps to make this a living tradition."

So far more than 400 kids spread over 50 states, Puerto Rico and five foreign countries have received the awards. First Division men and families in many parts of the world have been so generous in building the fund that more than $500,000 is on hand and the scope of the scholarships is widening.

Girls, too

"We began it," says Chait, "just for the eldest boy in each family. 'We reasoned he'd set the example for brothers and sisters in getting a college education. Then, we found we were able to extend it to all the boys and, now, we're taking in the girls, too.'"

It's understatement to say that the widows are grateful to "The Big Red One." Mrs. Marie Kizer, of New Jersey, who lost her captain husband, wrote: "I wish to extend our deepest appreciation. I cannot express in mere words how your kindness and hospitality touched me." Another wrote: "James is still too young to realize the full importance but he does understand that this gift was from the men in his Dad's Army division and that they not only remembered him but are helping him."

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Little boys such as Chuck and Doug Daniels, Bernie Kistler and Billy Reach are far too young to think about college. The eldest of them is only 6 and they're pretty busy with all the games youngsters play. But somebody else has been thinking about college for them and that's why each of them already has a $1500 nest egg to his credit toward the future expense of education. And that's also why each will someday be grateful for the heartening slogan—"The Big Red One Takes Care of Its Own."

"The Big Red One" is the U.S. Army's First Infantry Division—so called because its shoulder patch is a husky red Number 1 on a green background. The Society of the First Division, a sort of alumni association of the thousands of men who've worn that patch in peace and war, has established a scholarship fund. From it every child of a First Division enlisted man or officer who loses his life in Vietnam is awarded a $1500 stipend to help pay eventual college bills.

"We want them to know our hearts are with them," says Arthur L. Chaitt, executive secretary of the society which has headquarters here in Philadelphia. "Loyalty of First Division people to each other has been a very real concept over the years. Our scholarship fund helps to make this a living tradition."

So far more than 400 kids spread over 50 states, Puerto Rico and five foreign countries have received the awards. First Division men and families in many parts of the world have been so generous in building the fund that more than $500,000 is on hand and the scope of the scholarships is widening.

Girls, too

"We began it," says Chaitt, "just for the eldest boy in each family. 'We reasoned he'd set the example for brothers and sisters in getting a college education. Then, we found we were able to extend it to all the boys and, now, we're taking in the girls, too.'"

It's understatement to say that the widows are grateful to "The Big Red One." Mrs. Marie Kizer, of New Jersey, who lost her captain husband, wrote: "I wish to extend our deepest appreciation. I cannot express in mere words how your kindness and hospitality touched me." Another wrote: "James is still too young to realize the full importance but he does understand that this gift was from the men in his Dad's Army division and that they not only remembered him but are helping him."

One family already has received six scholarships—four for sons, two for daughters. Like all the grants, these actually are certificates representing the fund's promise to pay directly to college, or vocational or technical school when the time of need arrives. The money is an important supplement to Veterans Administration scholarship assistance which currently is $130 a month for 36 months. Some other U.S. military divisions have scholarship programs but they generally are small and do not automatically apply to whole families.

In "The Big Red One's" project, two little sons of Mrs. Rosemary Kistler of New York have received one scholarship each and from that comes a tragic tale. Each has a different father because brown-eyed, auburn-haired Rosemary Kistler has lost two husbands in Vietnam—both lieutenants, both West Pointers, one early in 1965, the other late in 1966. Only the second one, Lt. Bernard Kistler, of Meadville, Pa., was First Division but when it became known after his death that he had intended to adopt Rosemary's first son, "The Big Red One" also decided on adoption and awarded the boy $1500.

Help the orphans

The fund was founded in Vietnam in June of 1966 when the then commander of the First Division, Lt. Gen. William E. DePuy, visualized a vast program of aid for orphans of his lost soldiers. A notice went into the division newspaper asking for comment. Instead of comment there came instant money—several hundred dollars delivered to the general's tent after GI's passed the hat. The fund picked up fast. Soldiers filled helmets placed on pay tables. Men's and officers' clubs made donations. Former First Division men all over the U.S. and in many countries sent money. The biggest single contribution was $100,000 from the private McCormick Foundation in Chicago.

The fund is held in stocks, bonds and government securities and watched over by a broker who's a former member of "The Big Red One." Chaitt says it's good news that even in the recent sour investment market, the First Division broker has made the fund grow.

Since the average age of the kids aided so far is around 8, obviously most of the money actually will be used years from now. There are, however, two young men who've recently graduated—one from Georgia Tech, one from Florida State. It is, in fact, the families with older children who are most grateful for the help. One mother wrote: "With three in college at one time and a fourth ready in two years, the First Division has saved my life, financially."

A scholarship is presented to Charles E. Daniels of Long Island City, N.Y., as his mother stands by.

The 'Manson Family' Murders

by Lloyd Shearer

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Last month when the grand jury here indicted a motley group of hippies — most of them girls — for the senseless slaughter of film actress Sharon Tate and six others, the public became progressively more appalled and incredulous.

How, people asked, could these flower-power children whose memorable slogan had been—"Make love not war"—brutally butcher a group of persons they had never before met, seen, or knew anything about?

Who was Charles Manson, their revered leader? What occult magic did this 35-year-old Pied Piper practice? What sex rites did he employ to enslave half a dozen women? How did this small (5 feet 4, 110 pounds), bearded, long-haired cultist, this pitiful little ex-convict, half of whose life had been spent in jail, allegedly mesmerize his hippie tribe into executing any order he gave, from petty theft to ritualistic murder?

As the horrendous activities of the so-called "Manson Family" leaked out, the public, especially in Southern California, grew more fearful: "I bet they must have killed a hundred . . . It's hard to believe we've had them in our midst . . . I'll never pick up another hippie so long as I live . . . I'd feel safer if we got new locks for the doors and the windows."

Nevertheless, people are morbidly enthralled by the Manson Family, by the bizarre behavior and motivations they cannot understand.

They can explain

To the psychiatrists and psychologists, however, to the sociologists and the social workers, Charles Milles Manson and his harem are easily explicable.

The Manson Family of murderers consists of lost children, homeless, loveless, rootless outcasts who could not make it in conventional society. For such lost souls, bereft of fathers or father-figures, what are the choices? A nervous breakdown is one. A life of crime is another. The world of drugs is a third. The search for a father-substitute is a fourth. The discovery of an escape world such as the Haight-Ashbury hippie community of San Francisco is a fifth.

Take the case of Susan Denise Atkins, 21. It was she who blew the whistle on the Manson group and subsequently informed the police how she and three other Mansonites had committed the Sharon Tate murders.

Susan was born in San Gabriel, Calif., on May 7, 1948. Her father was a construction worker, a sometimes carpenter who drank heavily, was sick with lung trouble, and had been hospitalized periodically for alcoholism. Her mother, Mrs. Jeanne Jett Atkins, originally from Kansas City, Mo., died of "cancer in 1964 when Sue was 15. A year before her death Mrs. Atkins began to drink excessively and to quarrel frequently with her husband.

Charles Manson, who allegedly hypnotized followers to do his bidding.

The family never had enough money. Sue does not recall her father as a good provider. From time to time relatives had to help out. Sue's older brother, John, escaped into the U.S. Navy, while Sue and a younger brother, Steve, lived at home in San Jose, a picturesque city in California's Santa Clara Valley.

For a while Sue worked as a waitress in the Los Banos Pancake House. She sang in the Baptist church choir. She attended Los Banos High School until the 11th grade. As a teenager she was boy-crazy, and for a time her father sent her to live with an aunt in Los Angeles. But the aunt found Sue uncontrollable and sent her back to San Jose.

When Sue's mother died, her paternal grandmother moved in to look after things. But money was scarce. Her father lost his job, her mother's medical bills were mountainous. Sue and her father argued bitterly about almost everything. The family came apart at the seams. One day Sue's father walked out, ostensibly looking for a job. When he didn't come back, Sue quit school and headed for San Francisco.

Susan Atkins, 21, has turned state's evidence. It was she who unwittingly leaked the details of the murder of Sharon Tate and six others to a jail mate who then told police authorities. It was the first break in a case that had baffled them since August.

Sue and her father argued bitterly about almost everything. The family came apart at the seams. One day Sue's father walked out, ostensibly looking for a job. When he didn't come back, Sue quit school and headed for San Francisco.

At 17, she was on her own with no mother, an estranged father, no brother in the Navy, another brother in a foster home. She had no skill, no contacts, no money—a young wanderer on the face of the land, searching for a modicum of warmth, a molecule of love, a safe harbor.

In San Francisco she got a job hashing in Burke's Restaurant on 14th and Market Street. It was there she met a pair of ex-convicts, Al Sund Jr. and Clinton Talioferro, both of whom had freshly stolen a new Buick Riviera from a San Leandro parking lot.

"I met Al Sund in mid-August, 1966, in San Francisco," Sue Atkins related, "while I was working at Burke's Restaurant. He asked me to take Tahoe just for a fun week with him and Clinton Talioferro. I liked Al right off the bat. They told me they had a car, and it was teased . . . I had no reason to think otherwise . . . We took off, stopped at Stockton, then decided against Tahoe and decided to stay in Stockton for two days."

"I didn't want to leave Al. I was in love with him. I just decided to stay with him and go where he went . . . We took off north and kept driving, stopping at some hotel . . . I didn't realize they were stealing the car until after we were in Oregon. I asked Al how they were going to pay rent on the car and Clint said, 'They're just going to have to catch us.' That was when I knew they were stealing it.

"We dumped the Riviera, I think in Salem, and bought a 1957 Rambler for $65 cash. We ended up camping, the three of us. The men were presumably hiding from the police. We got caught because Clinton told everybody about the stolen car, the guns, and shot his mouth off. We were arrested by the Oregon state police on Sept. 12th, 1966."

Suspended sentence

Two weeks later Sue Atkins pleaded guilty to charges of receiving stolen property and concealing a weapon. Judge George Jones of the Marion County District Court sentenced her to six months in jail. Because she had no prior criminal record, however, he suspended sentence and placed her on probation for two years. Her boyfriend Al Sund was sentenced to two years in jail, and Talioferro was handed over to federal authorities for interstate car theft.

Sue asked the Oregon probation authorities to let her return to California. She promised to live with her aunt, Mrs. Joy Curry, in Sunnyvale when her father told state officials he could not provide a home for her.

After a few weeks in Sunnyvale, Sue, 18, 5 feet 7, a well-built comely young lady, told authorities her aunt had to be hospitalized and that she was moving to San Francisco.

There, she got a job as a go-go girl and waitress at the Guys and Dolls Bar on Geary Street, earning $150 a week. She lived in Room 30 at 2162 Market Street, rent: $13.50 a week, and was doing all right, until she was told that because she was under 21 she would have to give up her job at the bar.

Sue's father then showed up at the probation department and explained that his daughter needed psychiatric help. He said that she had turned her back on her family, that she was drinking, taking narcotics, and hanging around with the Haight-Ashbury hippies. He was asked if he would care to commit his daughter to a state institution, and he said no.

He explained further that he had talked to Sue's landlady, who reported that various men had been trying to visit his daughter in her room at odd hours. One time, he said, he had seen a red-headed beatnik with a knapsack sleeping on the floor of Sue's room.

Tells of fiancé

He said that Sue had a fiancé who had learned about her delinquent behavior in Oregon and had broken off their engagement even though he still loved her.

A few days later, confronted with her father's allegations, Sue denied them vigorously. She admitted that she had a fiancé but explained that she was the one who had broken their engagement, "because he drinks on occasion and, when he does, he whacks me around and accuses me of being a lesbian and of taking narcotics. I never really loved him, but he stood behind me while I was in jail in Oregon, and I thought I could get to love him."

She described her father and his medical history in unflattering terms, but claimed she was healthy and happy and was sure she could make it on her own without getting into any trouble.

After working for a grocer, Sue hired herself out as a domestic. She worked for a Mrs. Greenfielder and a Mr. En-tricken in Muir Beach, lived for a while in a cabin.

On Nov. 6th, 1967, Sue explained in detail to a social worker that she was anxious to make dancing her career. She had soured on men, wanted nothing to do with them. Marriage was of no interest to her, and she felt sure that she would never again be interested in any man.

Change of heart

Less than one week later she saw a probation officer and announced ecstatically that she had fallen madly and tempestuously in love with hippie leader Charlie (Manson) and was leaving the state with him.

"I informed her," the probation officer wrote to Oregon authorities, "that she could not get permission for this move from our department but from the originating agency (in Oregon)."

"I told her to telephone her probation officer and discuss her plans since she rejected my counseling on her new plans. She was advised I did not approve of the move.

"Susan stated she and seven other girls, two of whom are pregnant, were going off with Charlie, a traveling minister. She does not know his last name, and claims she has known him for some time.

"Charlie has a big yellow bus and they all live in it. Charlie is in love with all of them, and they all love each other. When they run out of money, people give it to them. Someone gave Charlie a credit card, and he has identification, so they don't have to worry about gas, she claimed.

"I pointed out the fact that Charlie did not have the right to use anyone else's credit card and that this could result in jail for anyone who used it. This did not disturb her as she said she would just have to live through it as she did previously.

"She then volunteered the information that Charlie had spent 17 years in jail already. She feels that he is a soul, as everyone else, that it does not matter what happened before, and there is no past. She explained that they started on this mission of Charlie's on 11-9-67, and they traveled to Sacramento, Calif., and cities en route.

"Today they leave for Los Angeles and then on to Florida. I told her she was not to leave without permission of the Oregon Probation Department, but I am just as certain she will do as she pleases. She admitted it was sort of a hippie movement."

"Since she will be on the road, and we don't know just where, there seems no need to keep this case open any longer. I feel perhaps Susan needs to be brought back before the court to see if her probation should be revoked. Hopefully, she won't get into further difficulties with Charlie and the other seven girls."

MURDERS CONTINUED

Susan Atkins got into plenty of trouble. Under the "hypnotic spell," of little Charlie, she became pregnant by him, took the alias of Sadie Glutz, placed her baby, when he arrived, in a foster home.

Later, under the complete domination of Manson, she joined other members of his "Family" in the brutal murders for which they will all probably stand trial next month.

Susan Atkins is typical of the girls and young men who did Manson's bidding. She is gullible, disturbed, emotionally immature, an easy mark for primary brainwashing. She suffers from debility, dependency, and dread, the three "D's" that psychiatrists have long pointed to as prerequisites for ardent cult membership.

She is one of the large army of lost and empty people who have so little of value in their lives that they search constantly for some cause or group of organization, someone or something to make them feel worthy and desirable.

Once they find such a group — in Susan's case it was the Manson Family — and discover that it offers no solution to their feeling of inadequacy, they become frantic.

According to Dr. Gerald Aronson, clinical professor of psychiatry at UCLA, a consultant to the Rand Corporation on psychiatric approaches to problems and a physician who has had extensive experience with hippies and hippie-types, "there follows a peculiar operation in the minds of such people. They deny the shortcomings of their group. They assert that everything about it is wonderful and that their leader is super-marvelous.

"They cannot stand to tell themselves the truth," Aronson continues. "Manson's followers, for example, could not afford to realistically assess this ridiculous little guy who had spent most of his life behind bars, who was relatively unlearned, unloved, and filled with tremendous hostility. They could not permit themselves the luxury to judge him honestly. Because once they permit doubts to creep into their minds, then the value of their group starts to crumble and eventually they crumble themselves.

"Thus, they eventually become fanatics. Everything connected with their group is good, everything outside their group is bad. Once you have established that belief, everything becomes permissible, murder included. There is an idealization of your group and the denigration of the other. The whole world becomes polarized."

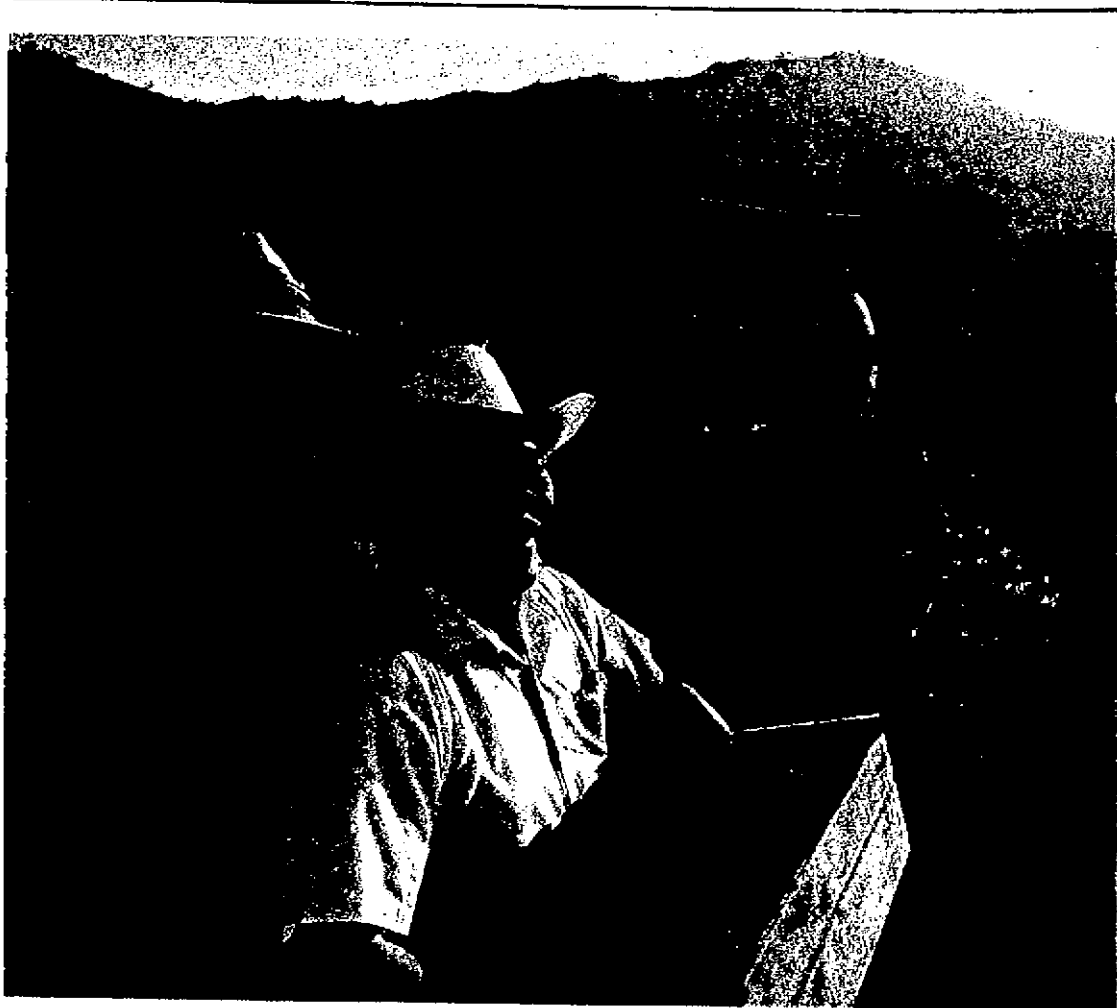

Dr. Aronson maintains that hippie-leader Charles Manson did not have to practice hypnotism or post-hypnotic suggestions on his subjects.

"If Susan Atkins, Linda Kasabian, Patricia Krenwinkel, Charles Watson, and the others," he asserts, "did not do what Manson offered or suggested, they would feel themselves disconnected from everything which heretofore had given them a sense of value, a feeling of worth, a pleasure of belonging. That's why they carried out his orders. They dared not chance what would happen within themselves if they said no."

An authority's view

Dr. Ernest Hilgard of Stanford University, who has placed more than 1000 students in hypnosis and is an authority on that therapy, says that generally no one will perform in a trance a deed which he considers strongly anti-social or "which rubs him the wrong way." There are exceptions, he grants, "but trust in the hypnotist is what makes for a most compliant subject."

Charles Manson is not a hypnotist. He is a tiny man who found the hippie-land of Haight Ashbury a garden of lost female souls to be plucked for the asking.

GREAT PARTS OF THE COUNTRY.

Drive east from Monterey Bay. You'll know when you're there. It's the fine wine country of California. Where the days are dry and sunny. The evenings, fresh and cool. Where it rains just enough. And the soil is friendly to the vines that climb over high, gently rolling hills. It compares with the finest wine country in Europe. And its people lovingly produce the American table wines and champagnes that rival some of Europe's best.

MURDERS CONTINUED

Susan Atkins got into plenty of trouble. Under the "hypnotic spell," of little Charlie, she became pregnant by him, took the alias of Sadie Glutz, placed her baby when he arrived, in a foster home.

Later, under the complete domination of Manson, she joined other members of his "Family" in the brutal murders for which they will all probably stand trial next month.

Susan Atkins is typical of the girls and young men who did Manson's bidding. She is gullible, disturbed, emotionally immature, an easy mark for primary brainwashing. She suffers from debility, dependency, and dread, the three "D's" that psychiatrists have long pointed to as prerequisites for ardent cult membership.

She is one of the large army of lost and empty people who have so little of value in their lives that they search constantly for some cause or group of organization, someone or something to make them feel worthy and desirable.

Once they find such a group — in Susan's case it was the Manson Family — and discover that it offers no solution to their feeling of inadequacy, they become frantic.

Unwanted from the day of his birth in Cincinnati on Nov. 11, 1934, conceived by a prostitute and an unknown father, farmed out first to relatives in McMechen, W. Va., then to other foster homes, Charles Manson was a child of adversity.

Lonely and hostile

Semi-abandoned by a drinking mother, he tried to survive on his own by working as a Western Union messenger boy and stealing from groceries. He never had a chance. Sent to a variety of correctional and charity schools—Gibault School for Boys in Terre Haute, Ind., Boys School in Plainfield, Ind., Boys Town in Nebraska, the National Training School for Boys in Washington, D.C.—he spent 13 of his first 25 years in either reformatories or prisons, learned no skill, no trade.

Small, thin, perceptive and intelligent (I.Q. 114), he managed to hide his loneliness and hostility with a strange, ingratiating smile. It was purely cunning and defensive. In his mind he grew to hate the world and his personal fate.

In 1954, in between prisons, he returned to West Virginia. There, early in January of 1955, he married Rosalie Jean Willis. She bore him a son, then quickly divorced him. He learned about both events while he was in a federal prison, serving time for transporting stolen cars.

prison in San Pedro, Calif., where his parole applications had been turned down four times, Manson evolved for himself and later for his followers, a personal philosophy which completely and conveniently obliterated the past. "According to Charlie," one of his disciples explained to me, "there is no past. We are all free souls, living and loving from day to day."

Free of prison, Manson bummed north to San Francisco. In hippie country, he passed himself off as a traveling minister and a wandering minstrel. Quickly he collected a harem of lost, naive, young women who moved into a converted school bus with him.

There, he sang, lectured, played the guitar, and made love to them in long-lasting, pleasurable sex sessions, "giving off lots of magic." It was there, too, that these girls became subservient and obedient to his every whim, agreeing that he was "God, Jesus, Satan," or whatever he chose to call himself at the time. In Charlie Manson, the little guru, these young women found what they had long been seeking—a father-image to love, serve, protect, cherish, and respect. He promised them no less, and they believed him.

He led them south to the environs of Los Angeles where he was sure success would come to him as a composer-guitarist. He struck up friendships with Dennis Wilson of the Beach Boys, with Terry Melcher, Doris Day's son who lived in the Benedict Canyon house Sharon Tate was later to rent, and with Gary Hinman, a musician who let Charlie and his family move into his Malibu pad. Last July, according to Susan Atkins, they murdered Hinman because he had aroused Charlie's anger.

Eventually rebuffed by figures in the music world he had counted on, convinced that they were part and parcel of life's conspiracy against him, Manson detonated his prison-pent hostility. He ordered his followers to murder indiscriminately people with the status symbols of wealth—a big house, a large car, a boat.

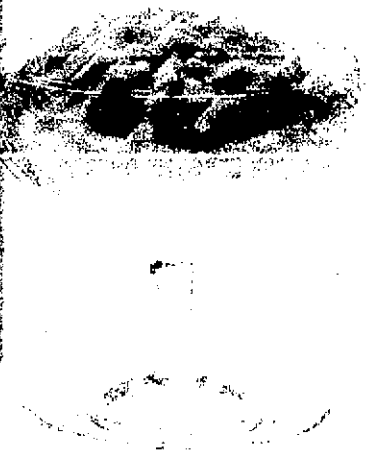

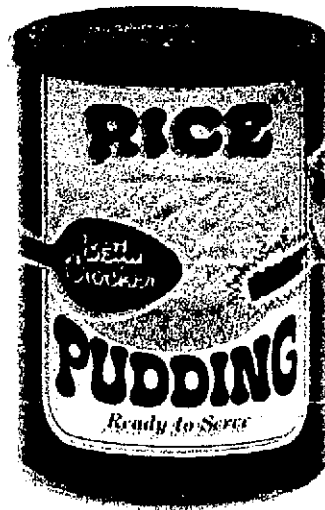

Allegedly Charles "Tex" Watson, former high school honor student and star athlete from McKinney, Tex., age 24; Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, of Inglewood, Calif.; Linda Kasabian, 20, of Milford, N.H.; Susan Atkins, 21, of San Jose, Calif., and Leslie Van Houghton, 19 (first identified as Leslie Sankston), performed their master's bidding.

Along with Manson, these rejects who became outcasts will undoubtedly, when their case comes to trial, plead "diminished responsibility." In other, more primitive societies, their parents would stand trial, too.

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

HOME ACCIDENTS About 8½ million Americans are injured at home each year. Of this number, 22 percent have been drinking. So claims a recent survey on the subject made by the Medical Foundation in Boston.

"This is the first time," avers psychologist Henry Wechsler, head of the research team, "that a systematic large-scale study using objective measures of alcohol level has implicated alcohol as a factor in home accidents."

Dr. Wechsler and his team used interviews, Breathalyzer tests and venous blood samples of over 8000 patients admitted to the emergency service of Massachusetts General Hospital in their research. Other pertinent findings: Home accidents occur most frequently in the drinking hours between 5 p.m. and midnight. They strike both sexes equally, except that men drink more and sustain more serious injuries than women. They tend to suffer head injuries, cuts, abrasions, and self-inflicted knife wounds rather than burns, fractures, or sprains.

Dr. Wechsler does not pinpoint drinking as the primary cause of accidents. He merely says the person who drinks too much at home makes himself "a high risk for all accidents."

LLOYD'S FIRST WOMEN For the first time since it was born in a 17th-century coffee house, Lloyd's of London, the world's largest insurance organization, is accepting women as underwriting members.

Last month 25 women who applied for membership were admitted. Each had to invest $36,000 of her own money plus minimum reserves of $180,000.

RAFFAELE MINICHIELLO

HJACK FILM Carlo Ponti, film producer who is married to Sophia Loren, plans to make a film about Raffaele Minichiello, the U.S. Marine who hijacked a TWA plane from California to Rome. The plot calls for Minichiello to be portrayed as a contemporary Robin Hood. Ponti wants Steve McQueen for the role.

RUSSIAN MOVES

Several weeks ago, Andrei Grechko, the Soviet Defense Minister, secretly visited Cuba, accompanied by five Soviet generals and one admiral. In Havana, they conferred with Fidel Castro and Castro's brother Raul, who is Cuba's Defense Minister. The meeting was kept top secret.

Intelligence observers suggest that Grechko probably discussed with the Castros what role Cuba might play in this hemisphere should the Soviet Union have to go to war against Red China in the Far East.

As regards Soviet-Sino relationships, it is significant to note that the Soviet Union has completed a thorough reorganization of its military command along the frontiers facing Red China.

The Soviet Far Eastern command has increased its numbers by more than one-third in the last two years, now has 21 standing divisions. In 1967, Mongolia, the pro-Soviet buffer state between China and the Soviet Union, revealed that tens of thousands of Soviet troops were moving into its territory, where many Soviet missile units are now located.

The Soviet officers who headed the Far Eastern command have been replaced by younger men. Gen. Vladimir Tolubko, 55, former commander of the Siberian military district and one of the advisers to Hanoi on war strategy, is currently the general in charge. He is a missile expert.

SEX IN ITALY

Italy is in the process of liberalizing its sex laws. Not only is divorce about to be legalized if it hasn't already, but recently the Italian Constitutional Court invalidated two articles of the penal code involving Italy's long-suffering wives.

These articles held that if an Italian wife was convicted of adultery, she could be sentenced to jail for two years. Her husband, if caught in adultery, could not be jailed --unless he was found guilty of keeping a concubine at home or "notoriously elsewhere." Otherwise, adultery for the Italian male was legally permissible. Now the double standard has been removed.

While the legal aspects of divorce and infidelity are topics of conversation in Rome these days, both have taken a back seat to the Ballerini scandal.

For years, Anna Ballerini, 47, ran an elegant fashion boutique in Rome. It was patronized by young beauties from the city's best families. To these socially prestigious young women, Anna Ballerini extended as much credit as she considered congruent with her plans. When the debts grew sufficiently high, she demanded payment.

Girls who could not meet their bills were threatened with lawsuits, unless, of course, they wished to meet older and wealthy men. These men, who were friends of Madame Ballerini, could be most generous if entertained properly.

Madame Ballerini offered her own quarters in the fashionable Vigna Clara district for entertainment purposes. She collected half the entertainment fees. Thus was born, according to the "Squadra del Buondostume," Rome's vice squad, the most luxurious bordello in Italy.

When police raided it the other week, they confiscated 50 address books with the names of 200 girls, including one film star who charged $400 a half hour. Prices for the other girls started at $150. At those rates the dress bills could be paid off quickly.

The police also confiscated a thick list of clients which reads like an Italian edition of Who's Who, naming prominent businessmen, politicians, lawyers, and physicians.

It is being hushed all over Rome that the case of Anna Ballerini, charged with procuring, contributing to the delinquency of minors, condoning lechery, and achieving monetary gain through professional prostitution, will never come to trial. If it does, sophisticated and cynical Romans expect that a large share of the city's most important men will suddenly "be out of town on business or vacation."

THE SUPER-RICH Rich people pose a much larger threat to our environment than poor people. This is the opinion of Jean Mayer, professor of nutrition at Harvard University and Presidential adviser on hunger.

"Rich people occupy more space, consume more of each natural resource, disturb ecology more and create more land, air, water, chemical, thermal, and radioactive pollution than poor people," states Mayer.

The U.S. accounts for only 6 percent of the world's population. Yet in 1966 this rich nation consumed 34 percent of the energy produced in the world, 29 percent of the steel, and 17 percent of the cut timber.

The super-rich, Mayer claims, are also super-polluters. "We produce 800 million pounds of trash a day, a great deal of which ends up in our fields, our parks, and our forests. Only one-fifth of the 100 billion pounds of paper we use every year is reclaimed. Each year we abandon 9 million cars, trucks and buses."

Family portrait: President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon pose happily in the White House with Julie, and her husband, David Eisenhower and daughter, Tricia.

A Report Card on One Year of Richard Nixon

by Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON, D.C.

A year ago next week, Richard Milhous Nixon moved into the White House with remarkable ease. He strode into his first meeting, sat down as if accustomed to the Presidential chair and took charge with confidence and authority.

President Nixon took office quietly, suggesting it was time for all of us to "lower our voices." For a time, the furious pace of his predecessor gave way to apparent lethargy. The Nixon Administration was efficient but dull, its policies tame, its style square. For many, the drumbeat of progress seemed to have been replaced by humdrum. Over the past 12 months, Nixon has modified many things but has made few fundamental changes. He has finessed most problems—going through the motions but taking only limited action—so he could concentrate, first, on ending the war and, second, on halting inflation. At least his showdown with the Senate over Judge Clement Haynsworth, Vice President Spiro Agnew's speeches and the impromptu interviews of Attorney General John Mitchell's bubbly, blonde wife, Martha, have generated a new excitement.

If I were to give the President a report card on his first year in office, here is how I would rate him:

DEPORTMENT—Richard Nixon has a thorough understanding of the Presidency, its powers and its limitations. He is a no-nonsense executive whose work habits are orderly, thought processes logical and administrative abilities competent.

Introverted and self-contained, he likes to withdraw into the snug Lincoln sitting room for long hours of solitary meditation. Indeed, he likes to withdraw from Washington altogether for frequent visits to his hideaways at Key Biscayne, Fla., San Clemente, Calif., and Camp David in the Maryland mountains.

He has little direct contact with the outside world. He sees few people, even on his own staff. Rather than read the newspapers like John Kennedy or watch TV news like Lyndon Johnson, Nixon has his news strained for him by speechwriter Pat Buchanan. The President reads two typewritten news summaries, one of newspaper stories, the other of TV news.

He also prefers to have problems presented to him in handy briefing papers. His responses usually are dictated into IBM dictating machines strategically located at his meditation spots. Sometimes he will scrawl out his thoughts in longhand on legal-size yellow pads.

Access to the President is guarded by John Ehrlichman, whose function as appointments secretary seems to be keeping visitors from getting appointments.

Rating: C.

VIETNAM—As a candidate, Nixon implied that he had a solution to the Vietnam war. His secret plan, as he explained it to intimates, depended upon the Russians. He believed the Kremlin could compel the North Vietnamese to settle the war simply by shutting off military shipments. Nixon was prepared to sit down with the Russians for some hard bargaining. He was willing to offer them trade they sorely need in return for pressuring Hanoi into signing a peace pact. But, unhappily, the Russians never rose to the bait.

The President is still optimistic about ending the war this year. Although the U.S. command has warned that the Communists have built up a capability to launch another Tet offensive, he doubts that the enemy wants to risk defeat. The capacity to mount an offensive, he believes, gives them more bargaining power than an actual assault that might fail. He anticipates, therefore, that the Paris truce negotiations will become serious as early as March or April, with the war ended by Christmas.

As his own bargaining card, Nixon's plan is to reduce U.S. troops in Vietnam to an all-volunteer force of 200,000. They will gradually turn the front-line fighting over to the South Vietnamese, but will supply artillery, air and logistical support. The President believes the reduced manpower, lower casualties and volunteer nature of the force will take some of the wind out of the anti-war movement. This will leave him free, he hopes, to hold off the withdrawal of the last 200,000 men and convince Hanoi that he can keep these men in South Vietnam for as long as is necessary. Last month Nixon ordered a third withdrawal of troops—50,000 by April 15 — bringing the total reduction to 110,000 since he took office.

Rating: B.

MILITARY—Nixon has come the closest to taming the Pentagon of any President in recent times. He has made clear to the brass hats that the Pentagon's wishes are subservient to the edicts of the Budget Bureau. By closing bases and reducing commitments, Nixon has been able to make more cuts in military spending than either JFK or LBJ. Yet he has cut the military budget only around the edges. He also allowed the firing of the cost watchdog who brought attention to the multimillion-dollar overruns on the giant C5A cargo plane.

The President has also overruled the Pentagon on biological warfare and draft reforms. He ousted draft director Lewis Hershey and pushed through a more equitable draft lottery. Under Nixon, the military-industrial complex that so worried Dwight Eisenhower is less formidable.

Rating: B.

LAW AND ORDER—On the campaign stump, Nixon flayed the Democrats over crime and promised to make the streets safe again. He pointed, in particular, to the high rate of crime in Washington, D.C., the one city under federal control.

Since taking office, the President has been unwilling to spend the money it will take to make the streets safe and reduce the causes of crime. The crime-control measures he has pressed upon Congress are clearly inadequate.

Meanwhile, Washington's crime rate has leaped to alarming new highs. In the ghettos of the major cities, violent men rule with the knife and the gun. The present trend, if it isn't arrested, could lead to anarchy and chaos. It could take us back to the days of the Western frontier when each man protected his own property with a six-gun.

Rating: C.

SALT TALKS—Of all the Nixon Administration's actions to date, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with Russia hold the most promise for future peace. White House assistant Henry Kissinger prepared for the negotiations in Finland with unparalleled thoroughness, compiling the most detailed comparison of Soviet-American weapons systems.

Thus, America's negotiators went to the conference table armed with a complete knowledge of Russia's military capability. They knew exactly what the U.S. can offer and what it can use to counter Russian concessions. The President instructed them to seek meaningful agreements, not merely to score propaganda points. If his efforts are successful, the two superpowers will be able to reduce military expenditures and divert the money to peaceful purposes.

Rating: A.

CIVIL RIGHTS—The trend toward polarization—the two Americas, one white and the other black—was already in motion before President Nixon took office. With his "Southern Strategy" to undercut George Wallace, Nixon has measurably increased this polarization.

He has emphasized that he is President of all Americans. But he can hardly disassociate himself from the activities of his political strategists, Attorney General John Mitchell and White House aide Harry Dent.

For a President who preaches law and order, Nixon has been remiss in enforcing the civil rights laws. His Attorney General, to a large extent, has tied the hands of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division. A proposal that lowers

Tells How to Make Money Writing Short Paragraphs

Chicago Man Reveals a Short Cut to Authorship

Discloses little-known angle by which beginners often get paid five to ten times more per word than the rates paid to famous authors. Now anyone who can write a sentence in plain English can write for money without spending weary years "learning to write."

FOR years and years a relatively few people have had a "corner" on one of the most profitable authors' markets ever known. They've been going quietly along selling thousands and thousands of contributions. None of them has had to be trained authors; None of them has been "big name" writers. Yet, in hundreds of cases they have been paid from five to ten times as much per word as was earned by famous authors.

The successful men and women in this field had such a good thing that they kept it pretty well to themselves. Mr. Benson Barrett was one of these people. For years he enjoyed a steady income—made enough money in spare time to pay for a fine farm near Chicago.

Finally, Mr. Barrett decided to let others in on the secret. Since then he has shown a number of other men and women how to write for money. He has not had to give them any lessons in writing. He has not asked them to go through any long course of study or practice. In fact, most of his protégés have started mailing contributions to magazines within two weeks after starting with his plan.

Mr. Barrett says that the only skill required is that the beginner be able to write a sentence in plain English. Almost anyone with a grade school education can write well enough to follow Mr. Barrett's plan, because the contributions you will send to magazines are almost never more than one short paragraph in length.

Shut-ins, housewives, folks who are retired on small incomes, even employed men and women who like to use idle hours in a constructive way—all types are making money on short paragraphs.

Mr. Barrett does not teach you to write. He shows you what to write, what form to put it in, and where to send it to. He shows you a simple method for getting ideas by the hundreds. He gives you a list of more than 200 magazines whose editors are looking for this kind of material and who will buy from beginners. In other words, he teaches you a method, an angle, a plan for starting to write for money right away.

If you would like to see your writing in print and get paid for it—just send your name on coupon to Mr. Barrett. He will send full information about his plan of coaching by return mail—postage prepaid. He makes no charge for this information. And, no salesman will call on you. You decide, at home, whether you'd like to try his plan. If the idea of getting paid for writing short paragraphs appeals to you write to Mr. Barrett for this information.

No telling where it might lead. Such a small start may even open opportunities for real authorship. And, since it can't cost you anything more than a postage stamp, you'll certainly want to get all the facts. Please address coupon below to Mr. Benson Barrett, 6216 N. Clark Street, Dept. 423-A, Chicago, Illinois 60626.

BENSON BARRETT

6216 N. Clark Street, Dept. 423-A, Chicago, Illinois 60626

Please send me, free and without obligation, the full story of your unique coaching method, showing how I can write to sell right away, how you furnish names and addresses of editors who buy from beginners and tell me how I can start submitting manuscripts the first week. I understand that everything you send me will come postpaid and that no salesman will call.

American troops withdrawn from Vietnam parade in Saigon on their way to home-bound planes. Last month Nixon ordered a pullout of 50,000 more men by April 15.

safeguards for black voters in the South is a backward move. Under Nixon, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has become impotent. And it was a national embarrassment when the Administration advocated a go-slow policy on integration in Southern schools—a policy that was reversed by the first major decision of Warren Burger's Supreme Court.

Rating: C minus.

ASIA—With more than half of the world's manpower, Asia should have little need for American troops. In money alone, it costs $50,000 a year to keep an American soldier in Vietnam, while an Asian soldier can be kept in the field for a mere $2,500.

President Nixon has wisely told Asian leaders that the U.S. no longer will send soldiers to Asia to fight Vietnam-style wars, although the U.S. will assist its allies with backup support. The Administration has been slow, however, to put this policy into effect.

One of Nixon's most significant moves was his offer to return Okinawa to Japan, a gesture intended to calm anti-American feeling. With Japan about to overtake Russia as the world's second largest producer, Japan is a particularly valuable ally.

Rating: B.

CONSUMERS—President Nixon has infused the regulatory agencies with a new spirit: don't harass businessmen. The tone was set during the 1968 campaign, when Nixon said in a letter to stockbrokers that he would not enforce rules against profiteering from "inside" information. He also instructed his new consumer adviser, Virginia Knauer, to concentrate on protecting the public from unsafe products and not to meddle with prices.

The regulatory agencies did all too little to protect the consumers under Nixon's Democratic predecessors. Now they show even less zeal.

Rating: C.

BIOLOGICAL WARFARE—At laboratories and arsenals around the nation, the United States has been breeding bacteria capable of infecting people with diseases for which there is no known cure. Bizarre bacteria could bring an enemy to its knees, but women and children would be as vulnerable as soldiers. There would also be no way to bring these plagues under control, and they might jeopardize the safety of all living creatures.

President Nixon announced in late November that the U.S. would renounce the use of these germs and destroy its stockpiles of bacteriological weapons. This was a major step toward restoring the world's opinion of the U.S.

Rating: A.

CONGRESSIONAL RELATIONS—Despite his own experience on Capitol Hill, President Nixon has not been effective in his dealings with Congress. Bryce Harlow, the chief White House lobbyist, is competent, but Nixon has heaped him too high with other responsibilities.

The poor Congressional showing, of course, must be blamed more upon the Democrats who control both chambers. House Speaker John McCormack is too old to be an effective leader. Under gentle Mike Mansfield, Senate Democrats also are not united. The power in both houses has been diverted to the committee chairmen, many of them old and incompetent.

Yet the President hasn't been able to keep his own party members in line (witness the GOP votes against the confirmation of Clement Haynsworth to the Supreme Court). A dozen Republican Senators found their liaison with the President so poor that they drafted a formal complaint. As far as Congress goes, Nixon has not been a leader.

Rating: C.

PRESS RELATIONS—President Nixon has never felt comfortable with the press. Even during the honeymoon period, he held few press conferences. He has been sensitive, however, to press criticism, as indicated by Vice President Agnew's attacks on the media.

Nevertheless, the President has instructed his subordinates to run an open Administration, and they have been generally candid in talking to reporters. Result: The credibility gap of the Johnson years has largely disappeared.

Rating: B minus.

GOVERNMENT MANAGEMENT—Every President in modern times has found the burgeoning bureaucracy difficult to manage. President Kennedy compared the experience to "grappling with a whale."

President Nixon has set an example of efficiency but has made little impact on the bureaucracy. He has managed to bring some good administrators to key government positions, but overall, he has enticed disappointingly few top-caliber Republicans to join him.

Indeed, he has badly botched some appointments, most notably that of Dr. John Knowles, who was dropped from consideration as assistant secretary in the Health, Education and Welfare Department after the opposition of the American Medical Association.

Rating: C.

WELFARE—President Nixon has given more lip service than he has taken action on the great domestic issues of our time—urban problems, hunger, education and pollution. Scientific advisers to the White House developed extensive material on pollution which was made public in 1965. It was December, 1969, before Nixon let it be known he would announce plans in this area.

The President, however, has taken one giant step toward bettering American life. Over the objections of a majority of his Cabinet, he adopted a welfare program that could offer a dramatic breakthrough in caring for the poor.

Rating: B minus.

Richard Nixon, of course, can't be judged by only 12 months in office. Much of his program has yet to be carried out and should be judged in the framework of a Congress that has done little. This, therefore, is an interim report card—only one man's opinion. It remains for the voters to give him his final rating.

TO OUR READERS: How would you rate the President? Let's hear from you.

Plastic Surgeon's Cosmetic Released Again— This Time at a $3 Discount!

Yes, over 40,000 women have already paid $10 apiece, simply to try this revolutionary new cosmetic. But now it is yours for less than two-thirds that price. And you prove its wonder-working qualities on your own face FREE...without risking a penny!

Here's why...

Developed By A World-Famous Plastic Surgeon—To Give To Women Who Wanted To Look Younger, Instantly, But Did Not Yet Need A Face Lift!

Medical ethics, of course, prohibit us from giving you the name of this world-renowned surgeon. It will probably be sufficient to say, however, that he has treated more movie stars than any other plastic surgeon in the world—treated more royalty—treated more society leaders. That over one thousand of the most beautiful and glamorous women of our time have passed through his office—and come out looking ten years younger...twenty years younger...thirty years younger than when they went in.

Why, then, would such a man—an acknowledged master of the surgical face lift—ever bother to develop a "cosmetic"? For this vital reason: Because out of every ten women who came to see him, only one or two really needed the face lift. The other eight or nine could be helped—could actually be made to look younger overnight—with nothing more than the aid of this simple "SUPER-COSMETIC."

It Will Not, Of Course, Do The Same Thing For You As A Face Lift. It Was Not Designed For That Purpose. But It Will Make You Look Younger Overnight, And We Will Prove This To You At Our Risk!

There is a logic—an extremely strong logic—behind the development and perfecting of this cosmetic. It goes like this (as nearly as we can approximate the doctor's own words):—Let us accept the fact—first of all—but after thirty the restorative mechanism of a woman's face begin to fade. Unless she has an exceptional heredity (one out of every hundred and fifty), she can no longer keep her face looking young without outside help.

Several things happen to the human face that cause it to age—and are more rapid every year past thirty. The skin dries... it hardens... it collapses into wrinkles... the muscles lose their elasticity and begin to sag. Your own face will show you—in a greater or lesser degree—all these things at the present moment. If the wrinkles are too deep, and if the muscles have begun to sag too much, then by all means you need medical science's number one weapon against aging skin—the surgical face lift.

But—if like eight or nine out of every ten women—the real signs of aging on your face today are drying out and hardening of your skin that produces MORE lines and MORE wrinkles every month, THEN YOUR GREAT PROBLEM IS TO COUNTERACT THAT HARDENING RIGHT NOW... TO SMOOTH "CHEMICAL SOFTNESS" ONTO THAT SKIN TO MAKE UP FOR THE NATURAL SOFTNESS THAT HAS ALREADY BEEN ROBBED BY AGE AND SUN AND WEATHER.

In fact, this problem is so universal that even after a patient has had a face lift, this doctor gives them a jar of this exact same cosmetic. Because he realizes that there is no way taking away wrinkles with a scalpel, if he does not also help prevent their hardening once more back into that very same skin.

He Ordinary Artificial Cosmetic Can Do This For You. Its Ingredients Are Simply Too Hard To Soften Your Skin. It Lacks A Doctor's Skill To Choose The Proper Natural Softeners.

All this can be proved the very moment you receive the two-jar set of this plastic surgeon's cosmetic—which we are willing to send you without your risking a penny.

When these jars arrive, open the first of them—the day cream. Lift it to your face and inhale its delicious fragrance. If you wish, taste it. Since it has no artificial ingredients, it is actually good enough to eat.

Now take a jar of your present day cream. Open it, and place it side by side with this plastic surgeon's cosmetic, in front of your mirror. Take the ordinary cream and apply it to the left side of your face, as you do every day. Then wipe off your hand (preferably wash it), and apply the plastic surgeon's cosmetic to the right side of your face. And then look in your mirror.

The left-hand side of your face will appear shiny and greasy, and about as old-looking as it was yesterday and the day before. (How could it be anything else—when you have put so inferior oil cosmetic on it in an attempt to soften its look into new youthfulness?)

But now look at the right-side of your face. It too will be slightly shiny (your everyday makeup base will cover this shininess in seconds) but it will also seem incredibly soft. This will be the overwhelming effect it gives you back in your mirror. Instantly soft. And therefore, somehow, younger and smoother and with a soft glowing radiance you remember only from the last time you fell in love.

The Next Thirty Days Of Your Life Must Reward You In A Hundred Ways—Or This Entire Cosmetic Doesn't Cost You A Penny!

Now—wash the old cosmetic off your face—wash it off both of your face forever—and treat your entire face to the incredible luxury of this new cream for three completely restorative moments.

Then put on your usual make-up—and go out and conquer your world all over again.

For the only real test of any cosmetic lies in the reactions of the other people you meet every day. And we promise you this: If the people you work with, and the people you live with, don't remark about that change in your face that very first day—and don't continue to compliment you on that change (with their eyes as well as their words) every day thereafter—it is truly safe to mark these two used jars of cosmetic for every penny of your money back.

It's not that sure it will work for you. The risk is yours. The opportunity is yours. Why not send in the Special Discount Coupon—today?

My Favorite Jokes

by George Kirby

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Kirby, whose mother and aunt starred in the minstrel shows of the '20's, has loved entertaining since childhood, when he would amuse his friends by re-enacting entire movies—even the sound effects. He got his first job as close to show business as he could—in Chicago's Club Delisa, where he worked his way from porter to bartender, up to comedian and impressionist. Since then Kirby has taken his act all over the world, has appeared at top nightclubs across the U.S. and on major TV shows. On March 1 Kirby will be featured on ABC-TV's American Sportsman's Show. Herewith some of his favorite jokes:

A bank executive was boasting to a potential client of the wonderful services offered by his institution.

"Why this bank is so big," he concluded, "we have a special window for holdups."

I know a father who got so annoyed over the noise his kids made running in and out of the house that he put in a revolving door just to see if they could slam it.

A speaker at a lodge meeting droned on for over an hour, nearly putting his audience to sleep. Realizing that he had taken up too much time, he offered a brief apology.

"I didn't realize I'd been talking so long" he said. "I don't have a watch with me."

To which a lodge member replied:

"Yea, but you could have looked at the calendar behind you."

All the psychiatry books are making a nervous wreck of me. They say it's catastrophic to be an orphan, traumatic to be an only child, disturbing to be the oldest, and confusing to be in between. Which leaves you with only one conclusion. If you have to do it over again, be born an adult.

Personally, I stand in awe of modern education and the marvelous programs and facilities we make available to our children today. I think it's just wonderful to have an $8000 bus come along to every door so that the kids won't have to walk to the $80,000 gymnasium, put up to give them a little exercise. How about that?

They tell a story about the late Al Smith when he was Governor of New York and making his first visit to Sing Sing Prison. After touring the place he was ushered into the auditorium to address the inmates.

"My fellow citizens," he began, then remembered that prisoners in state prison are no longer citizens.

"My fellow convicts," he began again, but felt that was not quite right.

Finally, in desperation, he said:

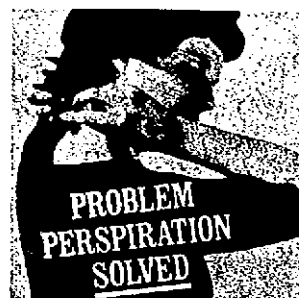

"Well, anyhow, I'm glad to see so many of you here."

Twenty years ago my wife had a million-dollar figure, and she's still got it. Only now when she walks it's like it's all in loose change.

D. GERARD

"Wine and women are out but you can sing in moderation!"

Called Mitchum Anti-Perspirant, it is the product of a trustworthy 57-year-old laboratory and guaranteed by Good Housekeeping. By the thousands, women with problem perspiration are finding the protection they need—and never could find before. And fully effective as a deodorant, too, of course. ## See Wrinkles* Actually Reduced With Medically Proven Hormone Application

Now you can see your skin become clearer and younger-looking as "dry-skin wrinkles diminish in only 10 to 12 days. A laboratory test conducted by skin specialists proves conclusively that estrogenic hormones, applied to the skin, actually reduce dry-skin lines and wrinkles to a marked—visible—degree.

A preparation containing female hormones was applied to one side of the face and neck of 50 middle-aged women. A similar formula—but without hormones—was applied to the other side.

The results of this "half-woman" test showed that skin lines on the hormone side were clearly, visibly reduced. Many fine lines had disappeared altogether, while even deep wrinkles showed dramatic improvement.

How? Why? Doctors say the hormones cause skin cells to increase their natural moisture. As millions of cells become plumper, they smooth out lines much as you plump up a pillow. Results are often visible in 10 to 12 days.

This anti-wrinkle formula is produced by the trustworthy 56-year-old Mitchum laboratories under the name HORMONEX Beauty Serum. It acts so rapidly because pure hormones are quickly carried into the skin in a penetrating liquid formula.

Note this: Only 7 drops a day of HORMONEX Beauty Serum are the full recommended treatment for face and neck. Just seven drops a day!

The regular 100-day supply comes in a convenient dropper bottle at $3.50—less than 4 cents a day. Look younger quickly. See those dry-skin wrinkles visibly reduced.

You may obtain HORMONEX Beauty Serum at your favorite drug or toiletry counter.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

HOME ACCIDENTS About 8½ million Americans are injured at home each year. Of this number, 22 percent have been drinking. So claims a recent survey on the subject made by the Medical Foundation in Boston.

"This is the first time," avers psychologist Henry Wechsler, head of the research team, "that a systematic large-scale study using objective measures of alcohol level has implicated alcohol as a factor in home accidents."

Dr. Wechsler and his team used interviews, Breathalyzer tests and venous blood samples of over 8000 patients admitted to the emergency service of Massachusetts General Hospital in their research. Other pertinent findings: Home accidents occur most frequently in the drinking hours between 5 p.m. and midnight. They strike both sexes equally, except that men drink more and sustain more serious injuries than women. They tend to suffer head injuries, cuts, abrasions, and self-inflicted knife wounds rather than burns, fractures, or sprains.

Dr. Wechsler does not pinpoint drinking as the primary cause of accidents. He merely says the person who drinks too much at home makes himself "a high risk for all accidents."

LLOYD'S FIRST WOMEN For the first time since it was born in a 17th-century coffee house, Lloyd's of London, the world's largest insurance organization, is accepting women as under-writing members.

Last month 25 women who applied for membership were admitted. Each had to invest $36,000 of her own money plus minimum reserves of $180,000.

RAFFAELE MINICHIELLO

HIJACK FILM Carlo Ponti, film producer who is married to Sophia Loren, plans to make a film about Raffaele Minichiello, the U.S. Marine who hijacked a TWA plane from California to Rome. The plot calls for Minichiello to be portrayed as a contemporary Robin Hood. Ponti wants Steve McQueen for the role.

RUSSIAN MOVES Several weeks ago, Andrei Grechko, the Soviet Defense Minister, secretly visited Cuba, accompanied by five Soviet generals and one admiral. In Havana, they conferred with Fidel Castro and Castro's brother Raul, who is Cuba's Defense Minister. The meeting was kept top secret.

Intelligence observers suggest that Grechko probably discussed with the Castros what role Cuba might play in this hemisphere should the Soviet Union have to go to war against Red China in the Far East.

As regards Soviet-Sino relationships, it is significant to note that the Soviet Union has completed a thorough reorganization of its military command along the frontiers facing Red China.

The Soviet Far Eastern command has increased its numbers by more than one-third in the last two years, now has 21 standing divisions. In 1967, Mongolia, the pro-Soviet buffer state between China and the Soviet Union, revealed that tens of thousands of Soviet troops were moving into its territory, where many Soviet missile units are now located.

The Soviet officers who headed the Far Eastern command have been replaced by younger men. Gen. Vladimir Tolubko, 55, former commander of the Siberian military district and one of the advisers to Hanoi on war strategy, is currently the general in charge. He is a missile expert.

SEX IN ITALY Italy is in the process of liberalizing its sex laws. Not only is divorce about to be legalized if it hasn't already, but recently the Italian Constitutional Court invalidated two articles of the penal code involving Italy's long-suffering wives.

These articles held that if an Italian wife was convicted of adultery, she could be sentenced to jail for two years. Her husband, if caught in adultery, could not be jailed -- unless he was found guilty of keeping a concubine at home or "notoriously elsewhere." Otherwise, adultery for the Italian male was legally permissible. Now the double standard has been removed.

While the legal aspects of divorce and infidelity are topics of conversation in Rome these days, both have taken a back seat to the Ballerini scandal.

For years, Anna Ballerini, 47, ran an elegant fashion boutique in Rome. It was patronized by young beauties from the city's best families. To these socially prestigious young Girls who could not meet their bills were threatened with lawsuits, unless, of course, they wished to meet older and wealthy men. These men, who were friends of Madame Balzerini, could be most generous if entertained properly.

Madame Ballerini offered her own quarters in the fashionable Vigna Clara district for entertainment purposes. She collected half the entertainment fees. Thus was born, according to the "Squadra del Buoncostume," Rome's vice squad, the most luxurious

When police raided it the other week, they confiscated 50 address books with the names of 200 girls, including one film star who charged $400 a half hour. Prices for the other girls started at $150. At those rates the dress bills could be paid off quickly.

The police also confiscated a thick list of clients which reads like an Italian edition of Who's Who, naming prominent businessmen, politicians, lawyers, and physicians.

It is being hushed all over Rome that the case of Anna Ballerini, charged with procuring, contributing to the delinquency of minors, condoning lechery, and achieving monetary gain

THE SUPER-RICH Rich people pose a much larger threat to our environment than poor people. This is the opinion of Jean Mayer, professor of nutrition at Harvard University and Presidential adviser on hunger.

"Rich people occupy more space, consume more of each natural resource, disturb ecology more and create more land, air,

The U.S. accounts for only 6 percent of the world's population. Yet in 1966 this rich nation consumed 34 percent of the energy produced in the world, 29 percent of the steel, and 17 percent of the cut timber.

The super-rich, Mayer claims, are also super-polluters. "We produce 800 million pounds of trash a day, a great deal of which ends up in our fields, our parks, and our forests. Only one-fifth of the 100 billion pounds of paper we use every year is reclaimed. Each year we abandon 9 million cars, trucks and buses."

A Report Card on One Year of Richard Nixon

by Jack Anderson

A year ago next week, Richard Milhous Nixon moved into the White House with remarkable ease. He strode into his first meeting, sat down as if accustomed to the Presidential chair and took charge with confidence and authority.

President Nixon took office quietly, suggesting it was time for all of us to "lower our voices." For a time, the furious pace of his predecessor gave way to apparent lethargy. The Nixon Administration was efficient but dull, its policies tame, its style square. For many, the drumbeat of progress seemed to have been replaced by humdrum. Over the past 12 months, Nixon has modified many things but has made few fundamental changes. He has finessed most problems—going through the motions but taking only limited action—so he could concentrate, first, on ending the war and, second, on halting inflation. At least his showdown with the Senate over Judge Clement Haynsworth, Vice President Spiro Agnew's speeches and the impromptu interviews of Attorney General John Mitchell's bubbly, blonde wife, Martha, have generated a new excitement.

If I were to give the President a report card on his first year in office, here is how I would rate him:

DEPARTMENT—Richard Nixon has a thorough understanding of the Presidency, its powers and its limitations. He is a no-nonsense executive whose work habits are orderly, thought processes logical and administrative abilities competent.

Introverted and self-contained, he likes to withdraw into the snug Lincoln sitting room for long hours of solitary meditation. Indeed, he likes to withdraw from Washington altogether for frequent visits to his hideaways at Key Biscayne, Fla., San Clemente, Calif., and Camp David in the Maryland mountains.

He has little direct contact with the outside world. He sees few people, even on his own staff. Rather than read the newspapers like John Kennedy or watch TV news like Lyndon Johnson, Nixon has his news strained for him by speechwriter Pat Buchanan. The President reads two typewritten news summaries, one of newspaper stories, the other of TV news.

He also prefers to have problems presented to him in handy briefing papers. His responses usually are dictated into IBM dictating machines strategically located at his meditation spots. Sometimes he will scrawl out his thoughts in longhand on legal-size yellow pads.

Access to the President is guarded by John Ehrlichman, whose function as appointments secretary seems to be keeping visitors from getting appointments.

Rating: C.

VIETNAM—As a candidate, Nixon implied that he had a solution to the Vietnam war. His secret plan, as he explained it to intimates, depended upon the Russians. He believed the Kremlin could compel the North Vietnamese to settle the war simply by shutting off military shipments. Nixon was prepared to sit down with the Russians for some hard bargaining. He was willing to offer them trade they sorely need in return for pressuring Hanoi into signing a peace pact. But, unhappily, the Russians never rose to the bait.

The President is still optimistic about ending the war this year. Although the U.S. command has warned that the Communists have built up a capability to launch another Tet offensive, he doubts that the enemy wants to risk defeat. The capacity to mount an offensive, he believes, gives them more bargaining power than an actual assault that might fail. He anticipates, therefore, that the Paris truce negotiations will become serious as early as March or April, with the war ended by Christmas.

As his own bargaining card, Nixon's plan is to reduce U.S. troops in Vietnam to an all-volunteer force of 200,000. They will gradually turn the front-line fighting over to the South Vietnamese, but will supply artillery, air and logistical support. The President believes the reduced manpower, lower casualties and volunteer nature of the force will take some of the wind out of the anti-war movement. This will leave him free, he hopes, to hold off the withdrawal of the last 200,000 men and convince Hanoi that he can keep these men in South Vietnam for as long as is necessary. Last month Nixon ordered a third withdrawal of troops—50,000 by April 15 — bringing the total reduction to 110,000 since he took office.

Rating: B.

MILITARY—Nixon has come the closest to taming the Pentagon of any President in recent times. He has made clear to the brass hats that the Pentagon's wishes are subservient to the edicts of the Budget Bureau. By closing bases and reducing commitments, Nixon has been able to make more cuts in military spending than either JFK or LBJ. Yet he has cut the military budget only around the edges. He also allowed the firing of the cost watchdog who brought attention to the multimillion-dollar overruns on the giant C5A cargo plane.

The President has also overruled the Pentagon on biological warfare and draft reforms. He ousted draft director Lewis Hershey and pushed through a more equitable draft lottery. Under Nixon, the military-industrial complex that so worried Dwight Eisenhower is less formidable.

Rating: B.

LAW AND ORDER—On the campaign stump, Nixon flayed the Democrats over crime and promised to make the streets safe again. He pointed, in particular, to the high rate of crime in Washington, D.C., the one city under federal control.

Since taking office, the President has been unwilling to spend the money it will take to make the streets safe and reduce the causes of crime. The crime-control measures he has pressed upon Congress are clearly inadequate.

Meanwhile, Washington's crime rate has leaped to alarming new highs. In the ghettos of the major cities, violent men rule with the knife and the gun. The present trend, if it isn't arrested, could lead to anarchy and chaos. It could take us back to the days of the Western frontier when each man protected his own property with a six-gun.

Rating: C.

SALT TALKS—Of all the Nixon Administration's actions to date, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with Russia hold the most promise for future peace. White House assistant Henry Kissinger prepared for the negotiations in Finland with unparalleled thoroughness, compiling the most detailed comparison of Soviet-American weapons systems.

Thus, America's negotiators went to the conference table armed with a complete knowledge of Russia's military capability. They knew exactly what the U.S. can offer and what it can use to counter Russian concessions. The President instructed them to seek meaningful agreements, not merely to score propaganda points. If his efforts are successful, the two superpowers will be able to reduce military expenditures and divert the money to peaceful purposes.

Rating: A.

CIVIL RIGHTS—The trend toward polarization—the two Americas, one white and the other black—was already in motion before President Nixon took office. With his "Southern Strategy" to undercut George Wallace, Nixon has measurably increased this polarization.

He has emphasized that he is President of all Americans. But he can hardly disassociate himself from the activities of his political strategists, Attorney General John Mitchell and White House aide Harry Dent.

For a President who preaches law and order, Nixon has been remiss in enforcing the civil rights laws. His Attorney General, to a large extent, has tied the hands of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division. A proposal that lowers safeguards for black voters in the South is a backward move. Under Nixon, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has become impotent. And it was a national embarrassment when the Administration advocated a go-slow policy on integration in Southern schools—a policy that was reversed by the first major decision of Warren Burger's Supreme Court.

American troops withdrawn from Vietnam parade in Saigon on their way to home-bound planes. Last month Nixon ordered a pullout of 50,000 more men by April 15.

Rating: C minus.

ASIA—With more than half of the world's manpower, Asia should have little need for American troops. In money alone, it costs $50,000 a year to keep an American soldier in Vietnam, while an Asian soldier can be kept in the field for a mere $2,500.

President Nixon has wisely told Asian leaders that the U.S. no longer will send soldiers to Asia to fight Vietnam-style wars, although the U.S. will assist its allies with backup support. The Administration has been slow, however, to put this policy into effect.

One of Nixon's most significant moves was his offer to return Okinawa to Japan, a gesture intended to calm anti-American feeling. With Japan about to overtake Russia as the world's second largest producer, Japan is a particularly valuable ally.

Rating: B.

CONSUMERS—President Nixon has infused the regulatory agencies with a new spirit: don't harass businessmen. The tone was set during the 1968 campaign, when Nixon said in a letter to stockbrokers that he would not enforce rules against profiteering from "inside" information. He also instructed his new consumer adviser, Virginia Knauer, to concentrate on protecting the public from unsafe products and not to meddle with prices.

The regulatory agencies did all too little to protect the consumers under Nixon's Democratic predecessors. Now they show even less zeal.

Rating: C.

BIOLOGICAL WARFARE—At laboratories and arsenals around the nation, the United States has been breeding bacteria capable of infecting people with diseases for which there is no known cure. Bizarre bacteria could bring an enemy to its knees, but women and children would be as vulnerable as soldiers. There would also be no way to bring these plagues under control, and they might jeopardize the safety of all living creatures.

President Nixon announced in late November that the U.S. would renounce the use of these germs and destroy its stockpiles of bacteriological weapons. This was a major step toward restoring the world's opinion of the U.S.

Rating: A.

CONGRESSIONAL RELATIONS—Despite his own experience on Capitol Hill, President Nixon has not been effective in his dealings with Congress. Bryce Harlow, the chief White House lobbyist, is competent, but Nixon has heaped him too high with other responsibilities.

The poor Congressional showing, of course, must be blamed more upon the Democrats who control both chambers. House Speaker John McCormack is too old to be an effective leader. Under gentle Mike Mansfield, Senate Democrats also are not united. The power in both houses has been diverted to the committee chairmen, many of them old and incompetent.

Yet the President hasn't been able to keep his own party members in line (witness the GOP votes against the confirmation of Clement Haynsworth to the Supreme Court). A dozen Republican Senators found their liaison with the President so poor that they drafted a formal complaint. As far as Congress goes, Nixon has not been a leader.

Rating: C.

PRESS RELATIONS—President Nixon has never felt comfortable with the press. Even during the honeymoon period, he held few press conferences. He has been sensitive, however, to press criticism, as indicated by Vice President Agnew's attacks on the media.

Nevertheless, the President has instructed his subordinates to run an open Administration, and they have been generally candid in talking to reporters. Result: The credibility gap of the Johnson years has largely disappeared.

Rating: B minus.

GOVERNMENT MANAGEMENT—Every President in modern times has found the burgeoning bureaucracy difficult to manage. President Kennedy compared the experience to "grappling with a whale."

President Nixon has set an example of efficiency but has made little impact on the bureaucracy. He has managed to bring some good administrators to key government positions, but overall, he has enticed disappointingly few top-caliber Republicans to join him.

Indeed, he has badly botched some appointments, most notably that of Dr. John Knowles, who was dropped from consideration as assistant secretary in the Health, Education and Welfare Department after the opposition of the American Medical Association.

Rating: C.

WELFARE—President Nixon has given more lip service than he has taken action on the great domestic issues of our time—urban problems, hunger, education and pollution. Scientific advisers to the White House developed extensive material on pollution which was made public in 1965. It was December, 1969, before Nixon let it be known he would announce plans in this area.

The President, however, has taken one giant step toward bettering American life. Over the objections of a majority of his Cabinet, he adopted a welfare program that could offer a dramatic breakthrough in caring for the poor.

Rating: B minus.

Richard Nixon, of course, can't be judged by only 12 months in office. Much of his program has yet to be carried out and should be judged in the framework of a Congress that has done little. This, therefore, is an interim report card—only one man's opinion. It remains for the voters to give him his final rating.

TO OUR READERS: How would you rate the President? Let's hear from you.

My Favorite Jokes

by George Kirby

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Kirby, whose mother and aunt starred in the minstrel shows of the '20's, has loved entertaining since childhood, when he would amuse his friends by re-enacting entire movies—even the sound effects. He got his first job as close to show business as he could—in Chicago's Club Delisa, where he worked his way from porter to bartender, up to comedian and impressionist. Since then Kirby has taken his act all over the world, has appeared at top nightclubs across the U.S. and on major TV shows. On March 1 Kirby will be featured on ABC-TV's American Sportsman's Show. Herewith some of his favorite jokes:

A bank executive was boasting to a potential client of the wonderful services offered by his institution.

"Why this bank is so big," he concluded, "we have a special window for holdups."

I know a father who got so annoyed over the noise his kids made running in and out of the house that he put in a revolving door just to see if they could slam it.

A speaker at a lodge meeting droned on for over an hour, nearly putting his audience to sleep. Realizing that he had taken up too much time, he offered a brief apology.

"I didn't realize I'd been talking so long," he said. "I don't have a watch with me."

To which a lodge member replied:

"Yea, but you could have looked at the calendar behind you."

All the psychiatry books are making a nervous wreck of me. They say it's catastrophic to be an orphan, traumatic to be an only child, disturbing to be the oldest, and confusing to be in between. Which leaves you with only one conclusion. If you have to do it over again, be born an adult.

Personally, I stand in awe of modern education and the marvelous programs and facilities we make available to our children today. I think it's just wonderful to have an $8000 bus come along to every door so that the kids won't have to walk to the $80,000 gymnasium, put up to give them a little exercise. How about that?

They tell a story about the late Al Smith when he was Governor of New York and making his first visit to Sing Sing Prison. After touring the place he was ushered into the auditorium to address the inmates.

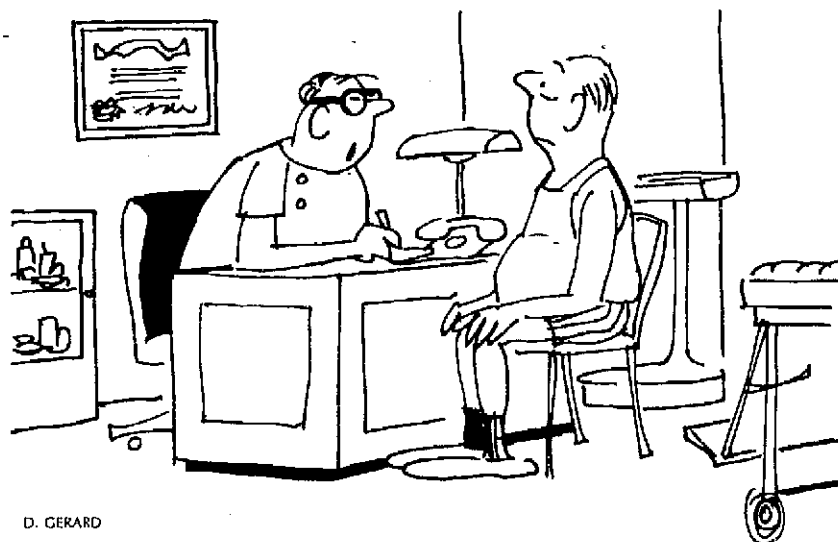

"My fellow citizens," he began, then remembered that prisoners in state prison are no longer citizens.

"My fellow convicts," he began again, but felt that was not quite right.

Finally, in desperation, he said:

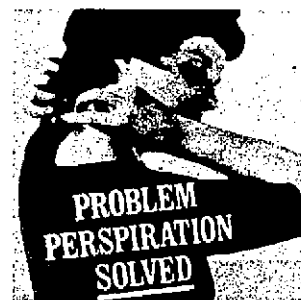

"Well, anyhow, I'm glad to see so many of you here."

Twenty years ago my wife had a million-dollar figure, and she's still got it. Only now when she walks it's like it's all in loose change.

See Wrinkles* Actually Reduced With Medically Proven Hormone Application

Now you can see your skin become clearer and younger-looking as *dry-skin wrinkles diminish in only 10 to 12 days. A laboratory test conducted by skin specialists proves conclusively that estrogenic hormones, applied to the skin, actually reduce dry-skin lines and wrinkles to a marked—visible—degree.

A preparation containing female hormones was applied to one side of the face and neck of 50 middle-aged women. A similar formula—but without hormones—was applied to the other side.

The results of this "half-woman" test showed that skin lines on the hormone side were clearly, visibly reduced. Many fine lines had disappeared altogether, while even deep wrinkles showed dramatic improvement.

How? Why? Doctors say the hormones cause skin cells to increase their natural moisture. As millions of cells become plumper, they smooth out lines much as you plump up a pillow. Results are often visible in 10 to 12 days.

This anti-wrinkle formula is produced by the trustworthy 56-year-old Mitchum Laboratories under the name HORMONEX Beauty Serum. It acts so rapidly because pure hormones are quickly carried into the skin in a penetrating liquid formula.

Note this: Only 7 drops a day of HORMONEX Beauty Serum are the full recommended treatment for face and neck. Just seven drops a day!

The regular 100-day supply comes in a convenient dropper bottle at $3.50—less than 4 cents a day. Look younger quickly. See those dry-skin wrinkles visibly reduced.

You may obtain HORMONEX Beauty Serum at your favorite drug or toiletry counter.

Please accept my application for a trial membership in the Literary Guild and send me the FOUR books or sets whose numbers I have printed in the four boxes below. Bill me only $1 plus shipping and handling for all four. If not delighted, I may return them in 10 days and this membership will be canceled.

I do not have to accept a book every month—only as few as four a year—and may resign any time after purchasing four books. All selections and alternates will be described to me in advance in the Literary Guild magazine, sent free each month, and a convenient form will always be provided for my use if I do not wish to receive a forthcoming selection. You will bill me the special Guild price for each book I take. This will average at least 40% below the price of the publisher's edition. (A modest charge is added for shipping and handling.) For each monthly selection (or alternate selection) I accept, I may choose a bonus book at a fraction of the already low Guild price—often for as little as $1.

Now, simply by the stroke of your pen, you may enjoy the expense-free, tax-free protection of The Doctors Hospital Plan—the new "bonus" plan that pays extra cash direct to you when a sudden accident or an unexpected sickness hospitalizes you or a covered member of your family! And you may enroll during this Limited Enrollment Period without having to see a company representative and without any red tape whatsoever!

Why You Need The Doctors Hospital Plan In Addition To Ordinary Hospital Insurance

The unique Doctors Hospital Plan was created by an insurance company run by doctors since 1902, Physicians Mutual Insurance Company. They have for many years

WHICHEVER PLAN YOU CHOOSE, YOU GET:

50% INCREASE IN YOUR CASH BENEFITS... if you or any member of your family is hospitalized for cancer (including Leukemia and Hodgkin's Disease), heart attack (acute myocardial infarction, coronary thrombosis and coronary occlusion), or stroke (apoplexy).

If you choose the All-Family Plan or the Husband-Wife Plan, you get in addition:

DOUBLE CASH BENEFITS if both you and your wife are injured and hospitalized at the same time: You get twice the amount — $350 A WEEK!

Important: Here is another real "plus"—if you have been told that anyone in your family is "uninsurable"! Even if one of your covered family members has suffered from chronic ailments in the past—ailments that come back again and again, or are likely to recur—you will be covered for these pre-existing conditions after your policy has been in force for one year!

On all plans, your "extra cash" benefits are paid from the very first day you enter the hospital, for as long—and for as many times—as you are hospitalized, right up to the maximum (Aggregate of Benefits) of the plan you select.

Naturally, The Doctor's Hospital Plan will cover any new accident or sickness. New accidents are covered immediately. After your policy is 30 days old, you are covered for new sicknesses which begin thereafter. There are only these minimum necessary exceptions: pregnancy or any consequence thereof (unless you have the All-Family or Husband-Wife Plan, each of which covers maternity after the policy is in force for 10 months), war, military service, mental derangement, alcoholism or drug addiction, or conditions covered by Workmen's Compensation or Employers Liability Laws.

You may go to any lawfully operated hospital of your own choice, with these exceptions only: nursing homes; convalescent, extended-care, or self-care units of hospitals; or V. A. facilities.

NEW "EXTRA CASH" PLAN SO PRACTICAL YOU MAY EVEN LEAVE THE HOSPITAL MONEY AHEAD!

specialized in health and accident protection for physicians, surgeons and dentists. Now this fine old "doctors company" has created this remarkable new "extra cash" plan—and at a cost substantially less than you might expect to pay!

Doctors know that ordinary hospital insurance—even Medicare—simply will not cover everything. Actually, even if your ordinary hospital insurance covered all your medical and hospital bills, what about all your other expenses—the bills that keep piling up at home—the tremendous and costly upset to your budget, your reserves, and your family life?

Without "extra cash" protection, a hospital emergency may leave you with savings gone, debts you can't pay, peace of mind shattered—even your recovery can be seriously delayed!

How The Plan Protects You And Your Family

Now, with the unique "extra cash" protection of The Doctors Hospital Plan, you can avoid these worries—because you can be assured of extra cash income when you or any covered member of your family goes to the hospital. No matter how large your family, no matter what your age or occupation and without any qualifications whatsoever, you can choose any of four low-cost plans, specially tailored to suit your family's needs. (Full details of each plan and benefits are shown on preceding page.)

In addition to the extra cash hospital benefits, you get all these valuable "extra" features:

How Your "Health-Bank Account" Grows Each Month

Here's a wonderful benefit, no matter which plan you choose—almost like having an extra "Bank Account." When your policy is issued, your insurance provides up to $10,000, $7,500, or $5,000—depending upon the plan you choose. This is your "Health-Bank Account."

Then, every month your policy is in force, a sum equal to your regular monthly premium (including your first month) is actually added to your maximum! When you have claims, your benefits are subtracted from your "account." It's much like putting money in and taking it out of a bank account.

Enjoy Peace Of Mind And Security

For as long as you live and continue to pay your premiums, we will never cancel or refuse to renew your policy for health reasons—and we guarantee that we will never cancel, modify or terminate your policy unless we decline renewal or modify all policies of this type in your entire state or until the maximum (Aggregate of Benefits) of your policy has been paid.

You Get Paid In Addition To Any Other Insurance You Have—Even Medicare!

Yes, The Doctors Hospital Plan pays you in addition to any other company's health insurance you carry, individual or group—even Medicare! And all your benefits are tax-free! In some cases, you may even come out money ahead. Of course, you may have only one like policy with Physicians Mutual.

Enjoy All This Protection At Surprisingly Low Cost

Membership in The Doctors Hospital Plan costs considerably less than you might expect. Whichever plan you choose, you get your first month for only $1 if you are under 65 and only $2 if you or your wife are 65 or older. Renewal premiums are only $7.95 a month for the All-Family Plan; only $5.95 a month for the One-Parent Family Plan; only $6.45 for the Husband-Wife Plan; and the Individual Plan costs only $3.95. (When you become 65—or if you are over 65 now—special Senior Citizen rates apply. See the modest increase in the box on the preceding page.)

How Can A Plan Offer So Much For So Little?

The answer is simple: We have lower total sales costs! The Doctors Hospital Plan is a mass enrollment plan. All business is conducted directly between you and the company by mail. No salesmen will call. It all adds up to real savings we share with you by giving you high quality protection at low cost.

Your Policy Is Backed By A Respected Company

Your policy is backed by the resources, integrity and reputation of Physicians

Mutual Insurance Company, "the doctors company," specializing in health and accident protection for physicians, surgeons and dentists for more than 67 years. Dunne's Insurance Reports, one of the leading insurance industry authorities in the nation, gives Physicians Mutual its highest policyholders' rating of "A Plus (Excellent)." Serving hundreds of thousands of policyholders throughout the United States direct by mail, Physicians Mutual has its headquarters in Omaha, Nebraska, and is licensed and incorporated in that state. Its Board of Directors is composed entirely of respected members of the medical, dental and insurance professions.

Easy To Enroll—No Red Tape No Salesman Will Call

If you enroll now, during this limited enrollment period, there are no other qualifications other than to complete and mail the Enrollment Form at the end of this announcement. Use the Air Mail envelope stapled between these pages: No stamp needed. We will issue you The Doctors Hospital Policy (Form P322 Series) immediately—the same day we receive your Form. This automatically puts your policy in force. Along with your policy, you will receive a simple, easy-to-use Claim Form. When you need your benefits, you can be sure that your claim will be handled promptly.

Why not take a moment right now to fill out the Enrollment Form on the back page and mail it with your low-cost first month's premium.

SPECIAL NOTE IF YOU ARE OVER 65

Even though Medicare will pay most of your hospital expenses it will not cover all of your needs. During this limited enrollment, you can get the extra cash protection you need during the high-risk senior years without any qualifications just by using the form on the back page of this announcement!

It's a fact that people over 65 go to hospitals more often and have larger hospital bills. That's exactly why senior citizens need extra cash protection! And that's why some hospital plans won't accept them or charge rates beyond their means. But The Doctors Hospital Plan not only accepts you regardless of age, it gives you easy-to-carry protection that is within your means. If you are over 65 now, or when you become 65, the following modest monthly additional rate applies: female on All-Family or Husband-Wife Plan, $2.50; female on One-Parent Family or Individual Plan, $3.50; male on any Plan, $3.50.

19 Important Questions answered about the New Doctors Hospital Plan

1. What is The Doctors Hospital Plan?

The Doctors Hospital Plan is a brand-new, low-cost health protection plan—that pays extra cash direct to you when a covered accident or illness hospitalizes you or a covered member of your family.

2. Why do I need The Doctors Hospital Plan in addition to my regular insurance?

Probably your present hospital insurance won't cover all your hospital expenses, but even if it does, you will still need help to cover all your household expenses when you are hospitalized.

3. Can I collect even if I carry other health insurance?

Yes, The Doctors Hospital Plan pays you in addition to any health insurance you carry, whether individual or group—even in addition to Medicare! And all your benefits are tax-free! Of course, you may have only one like policy with Physicians Mutual.

4. Is there a lot of red tape to qualify?

None at all. Your only qualification is to complete and mail your Enrollment Form by the deadline date shown. Simply use the Air Mail envelope enclosed to mail your form today. No stamp needed.

5. Which plan should I choose?

You may choose any of four low-cost plans—you can actually select the exact plan that suits you best!

If yours is a young, growing family, we recommend the ALL-FAMILY PLAN. You and your wife are covered at once for accidents, for new sicknesses after 30 days, and for maternity benefits after 10 months. All your children (and future additions) between 3 months and under 21 are included, at no extra cost, as long as they are unmarried and live at home.

If you are the only parent living with your children, we suggest the ONE-PARENT FAMILY PLAN. This covers you and all unmarried children living at home between 3 months of age and under 21.

If you have no children as yet, or if you have children who are grown and no longer dependent on you, you will want the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN.

Or, if you are living by yourself, or wish to cover only one member of the family, choose the INDIVIDUAL PLAN.

6. If I become hospitalized, when do my benefits begin?

On all plans, your cash benefits are paid from the very first day of covered hospital confinement, for as long—and for as many times—as you are hospitalized, up to the maximum (Aggregate of Benefits) of the plan you choose.

7. How much can I be paid?

Each plan has its own "Aggregate of Benefits," what we call the maximum.

For example, under the ALL-FAMILY PLAN, the maximum is $10,000—$100 a week ($14.28 a day) extra cash when you are hospitalized; $75 weekly ($10.71 daily) when your wife is hospitalized; $50 weekly ($7.14 daily) for each eligible child hospitalized.

Under the ONE-PARENT FAMILY PLAN, the maximum is $7,500—$100 weekly ($14.28 daily) when you are hospitalized; $50 weekly ($7.14 daily) for each eligible child hospitalized.

Under the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN, the maximum is $7,500—$100 weekly ($14.28 daily) when you are hospitalized; $75 weekly ($10.71 daily) when your wife is hospitalized.

Under the INDIVIDUAL PLAN, the maximum is $5,000—$100 a week ($14.28 a day) when you are hospitalized.

8. Are any additional benefits included in The Doctors Hospital Plan?

Yes. You receive a 50% increase in cash benefits if you or any covered family member is hospitalized for cancer (including Leukemia and Hodgkin's Disease), heart attack (acute myocardial infarction, coronary thrombosis and coronary occlusion), or stroke (apoplexy).

9. What are the "double" cash benefits?

If you and your wife are both injured and hospitalized at the same time and are covered by the ALL-FAMILY PLAN or the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN, you get double cash benefits. You get twice the amount—$350 A WEEK!

10. Does this plan pay in any hospital?

You will be covered in any lawfully operated hospital except nursing homes; convalescent, extended-care, or self-care units of hospitals; or V. A. facilities.

11. When does my policy go into force?

It becomes effective the very same day we receive your Enrollment Form. New accidents are covered on that date. After your policy is 30 days old, new sicknesses which begin thereafter are covered. Under the ALL-FAMILY PLAN and the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN, childbirth or pregnancy or any consequence thereof is covered after your policy is in force for 10 months.

12. What if someone in my family has had a health problem that may occur again?

Even if one of your covered family members has suffered from chronic ailments in the past, pre-existing conditions are covered after the policy has been in force for one year.

13. What conditions aren't covered?

Only these minimum necessary exceptions: pregnancy or any consequence thereof (unless you have the ALL-FAMILY PLAN or the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN), war, military service, mental derangement, alcoholism or drug addiction, or if something happens "on the job" and is covered by Workmen's Compensation or Employers Liability Laws.

14. Can I drop out any time? Can you drop me?

We will never cancel or refuse to renew your policy for health reasons—for as long as you live and continue to pay your premiums. We guarantee that we will never cancel, modify or terminate your policy unless we decline renewal or modify all policies of this type in your entire state or until the maximum (Aggregate of Benefits) of your policy has been paid. You, of course, can drop your policy on any renewal date.

15. Why is The Doctors Hospital Plan almost like having an extra "bank account"?

When your policy is issued, your insurance provides up to $10,000, $7,500, or $5,000—depending upon the plan you choose. This is your "Health-Bank Account." Then, every month your policy is in force, a sum equal to your regular monthly premium (including your first month) is actually added to your maximum. When you have claims, benefits are subtracted from your "account"!

16. Will my claims be handled promptly?

Yes. With your policy, you will receive a simple, easy-to-use Claim Form. Your claims will be processed quickly and your checks sent directly to you.

17. Why are the premiums so low?

With The Doctors Hospital Plan, you actually get all these benefits—at such a low cost—because this is a mass enrollment plan—and no salesmen will call. Our volume is higher and our total sales costs are lower.

18. How much does my first month cost?

If you are under 65, your first month costs only $1... if you or your wife are 65 or older, only $2. After the first month, if you are under 65, you pay only these low monthly rates: only $7.95 a month for the ALL-FAMILY PLAN; only $5.95 a month for one ONE-PARENT FAMILY PLAN; only $6.45 a month for the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN; only $3.95 a month for the INDIVIDUAL PLAN. (If you are 65 or older, monthly renewal premiums increase. See modest increase in box on a preceding page.)

19. Why should I enroll right now?

Because an unexpected sickness or accident could strike without warning—and you will not be covered until your policy is in force. Remember, if for any reason you change your mind, you may return your policy within 10 days and your first month's premium will be refunded immediately.

Fill out Enrollment Form on next page and mail in Air Mail envelope stapled on previous page. No stamp needed. Be sure to mail before date shown on Enrollment Form.

— PLEASE NOTE —
BEFORE MAILING — Be sure you have indicated coverage desired and have enclosed your first monthly premium ($1.00 if you are under 65, $2.00 if you are 65 or older.)
THANK YOU!
